Picnics in Red Wing Park were a favorite family observance.

There was a beach — and it was crowded — despite a lengthy Nor'Easter during the week.

The fish were biting. Even at Rudee Inlet.

Holiday A Good One For Beach, Despite Heavy Odds Against It

The Memorial Day weekend holiday was apparently a successful one for Virginia Beach, from the standpoint of visitors, despite adverse weather conditions and renewed damage to the resort strip beaches.

According to Al Mailhes, Executive Director, Chamber of Commerce, "Scattering reports from several motel owners indicate they were well pleased, and had just as much business in spite of the weather and everything else." Mailhes added, "And I'm amazed, I'm amazed myself."

Mailhes indicated he based his impression partly on reports from a few motel owners who estimated that overall their business ran from 80 to 95 percent of previous years.

Earlier indications at the Chamber however were in direct conflict to the above results. Mailhes indicated that the Chamber felt there were fewer inquiries on availabilities, and activities, in the city for the holiday weekend than last year. He added, "But we feel this was due to the weather."

A casual inspection of the resort strip beaches on Memorial Day Monday appeared to substantiate the above statements in view of the number of people who took to the beach for a day of relaxation and fun.

Even though a large portion of sand which had been replaced on the beach had been removed by unusually high tides, resulting from several days of strong northeast winds, sunbathers were undaunted. Despite the presence of large amounts of seaweed and debris carried ashore in tidal action they crowded against the boardwalk to spread towels and blankets on the beach, and sprawled on lawns of their ocean-front motels, in hopes of obtaining that "holiday tan".

Empty berths at the municipal marina at Rudee Inlet Monday also indicated charter boats were able to venture seaward to accommodate those sportsmen hoping to land "a big one". Others who chose to "wet a line" under more sedate conditions could be seen lining fishing piers and banks around Rudee Inlet and other areas of the resort city.

Others who chose to spend a quiet holiday were seen in abundance at Red Wing Park gathering for family picnics, or playing tennis, while youngsters flocked to the children's playground enjoying the various rides.

The partial clearing of weather Monday also permitted those golfers forced to remain indoors for some time by weather to freshen up on their swings and putting by enjoying a round at the city's municipal golf course.

As for the remainder of this Summer season's outlook for the resort city Mailhes says, "The season ahead looks real good."

He indicates that inquiries for the season through the month of May were "...running about 1,000 above last year, with approximately 50,000 to this point as compared to 49,000 at this time last year." Mailhes also indicated the inquiries were "...coming not so much from within the State as compared from areas in the northeastern United States, where the people are."

The requirement is contained in a city ordinance revising motor vehicle license tax fees adopted by City Council last week.

The ordinance places a "city sticker" requirement on "trailers and semi-trailers not designed and used for the transportation of passengers." This includes boating, camping, and utility trailers whether home-made or manufactured commercially.

Trailer licenses can be obtained in the City Treasurer's Office. The fee is based on weight of the equipment, with a minimum fee of $15.00 for equipment weighing 4,000 pounds or less.

Major criminal activities in the resort city decreased 11 percent last year below the level of 1970, according to the Virginia Beach Police Division's "1971 Annual Report".

Offenses considered included criminal homicide, rape, robbery, assault, burglary, larceny, and auto theft. Each of these categories also included attempts to commit the various crimes.

This decrease in criminal activities becomes very significant in light of congratulations from the Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to the City of Virginia Beach on its prevention of crime through law enforcement activities.

The congratulations were contained in a telegram to Mayor Donald H. Rhodes from Jerris Leonard, LEAA, citing a Federal Bureau of Investigation comparison of crime in major cities throughout the United States.

The telegram read in part, "The fact that your City and 52 others were able to actually reduce crime in the past year should be very heartening to the entire Nation and to all of us who have a responsibility for law enforcement improvements."

"It is a powerful rebuttal to those who have said either that crime cannot be reduced or that it would take decades to do so."

"I believe that the accomplishment in your City represents the real wave of the future as far as the control of crime is concerned. If 52 of our sister cities can reduce crime, it then follows that all can do the same—given the proper leadership and resources."

Perhaps the most significant factor in the Annual Report is the illustration that the solving of crimes in each of the above mentioned categories. With the exception of grand larceny, in Virginia Beach exceeds the national clearance level. It should be noted that while local statistics reflect last year's activities, national figures represent 1970 since the 1971 statistics are still being compiled.

In reviewing the grand larceny clearance level it must be taken into consideration that the City's population swells considerably during the Summer season with larceny reaching a tremendous peak, especially in the resort area, and some individuals who could be responsible for larcenies remain in the City for only for a brief time.

Enforcement of drug and/or narcotic abuse laws was also prominent in Virginia Beach last year. In 1971 415 such charges were placed against some 440 people, representing a 53.5 per cent increase in the number of persons arrested and a 31.6 per cent increase in the number of charges placed in 1970.

This does not necessarily represent an increase in illegal drug and/or narcotic trafficking in Virginia Beach since, according to officials, some individuals represented above are arrested more than once in drug related charges.

That portion of the Report dealing with the Juvenile Bureau does however point out that "Again in 1971, illegal use and sale of narcotics and drugs emerged as the most serious problem among young people in our city, resulting in a 45 per cent increase in arrests."

The Report also points out that, "There has been a noticeable decrease in reported drug offenses within the school system (of Virginia Beach), and while violence seems to be an everyday occurrence in the schools within some of our neighboring cities, the lack of it has been very conspicuous in our own city schools."

While the Annual Report reflects a marked decrease in overall criminal activities in the city, it must also be considered that increases were noted in certain categories of the crimes considered. Decreases were recorded in homicide, rape, larceny and auto theft. Crimes which recorded increased activities included robbery, assault, and burglary.

Decreases were recorded in homicide, rape, larceny and auto theft. Crimes which recorded increased activities included robbery, assault, and burglary.

The greatest decrease was noted in criminal homicide with six less offenses of murder and non-negligent manslaughter, and two less attempted murders. While nine less statutory rapes were reported, forcible rape increased by four offenses. There were 415 less offenses of petit larceny (under $100) and 245 fewer grand larcenies (over $100). Auto theft also decreased by 91 offenses.

The largest increase in criminal offenses was noted in crimes against persons, such as robbery and assault. Armed robbery offenses increased by 13, with three less incidents of strong arm robbery. While assaults involving a knife or cutting instruments increased by 32, there were 10 less assaults with guns or with less severe assaults with other weapons. Simple assault increased by 86 offenses, as well as nine more incidents of aggravated assault recorded. Residential burglaries increased by 82 incidents, while commercial burglaries increased by 17 offenses.

The Report also points out that, "There has been a

Beach Juveniles Benefit From Unique 'Self-Help' Program

Judge Frederick P. Aucamp has initiated a unique self-help program designed to renew pride and self confidence for young people convicted in Virginia Beach Juvenile Court of breaking the law.

Fundamentally the program permits the juveniles to "work-out" sentences imposed upon them in court, and provide them with physical evidence of the "fruits of their labor", rather than have them confined to a juvenile detention center. The program is also utilized for juveniles to paying fines imposed upon them in Juvenile Court by having them "work-off" the fee rather than making monetary payment to the Court.

Under the program juvenile's spend a specified number of days working with the City's Department of Parks and Recreation in improving various public parks and recreational areas around the city. The juvenile's devote their time to such jobs as cutting grass, raking leaves, shoveling debris, tidying-up picnic areas, and general improvement of such areas.

Aucamp indicates that while the program is used primarily for juveniles found guilty of traffic law violations and misdeemeanors, some youngsters convicted of felonies have also benefited from the program. He stresses however any juvenile found guilty of more than one felony is not given permission to participate in the program, that in these cases some alternative form of punishment must be resorted to.

The program entered into planning stages this past February and was fully implemented April 8. Since that time some 70 juveniles have participated in the program, and 35 others are scheduled to enter it within the next month.

The majority of those who have benefited from the program are still attending school, and therefore spend their time with the project on weekends. Aucamp points out, however if a youngster is no longer attending school, or has been suspended from school for a period of time, they would be assigned to the project on weekdays. While maximum sentences on weekends have involved up to six weekends, Aucamp indicates that maximum sentences during the Summer could reach two weeks.

Oddly enough, according to Aucamp, the majority of those assigned to the project are boys. He attributes this to a number of factors. Boys outnumber girls in law violations, by a ratio of 4 or 5 to 1, acts committed by boys are more severe, a goodly portion of work involved in the program consists of strong physical labor. He summarizes by saying, "Quite frankly girls aren't involved with juvenile delinquency the way boys are."

Areas in which these youngsters have worked under the program thus far include Little Island Beach at Sandbridge, and Red Wing, Princess Anne and Lynnhaven Parks.

Aucamp says reaction to the program thus far has been most favorable from the juveniles involved, their parents and those who supervise the juveniles in their work.

When asked what rule he used in applying the program Aucamp replied, "You have to take every case on its own individual merits."

In response to the question of what prompted him to initiate such a program, Aucamp said, "Kids expect if they've done something wrong to be punished, but we're here to rehabilitate. Yet we have some laws which must be imposed upon them in some way."

Summer Ballet Program Starts

Registrations for the summer program are now being accepted by The Academy of the Virginia Beach Ballet, a non-profit school and home of the Virginia Beach Civic Ballet. The eight-week summer session will begin June 18th and continue through August 12th.

An exciting program will be offered to students with the school enhancement of guest teachers, that will be including Anna Coriavala, who will be a permanent member of the summer faculty. Miss Coriavala is with Mateo and the Pearl Lang Company. She is also the Director of the Dance Department at the Spence School in New York.

Master classes in Classical Ballet will be taught by Donna Cohen, soloist with the Robert Joffrey Ballet, formerly with Richard Burgund's American Dance Theatre; Dermot Burke, soloist with the Robert Joffrey Ballet; and David Gleason, graduate of the Royal Academy, London, and presently with the New Haven Civic Ballet.

Major H. Burchfield, present Director of the Academy of the Virginia Beach Ballet, will teach Classical Ballet and Modern Dance. Contemporary Jazz, Modern Dance, and Character (various national dances) will be taught by Anna Coriavala. Spanish Dance will be taught by Theresa Martinez. Classical Ballet classes will be for all levels, from beginners to advanced. Modern Dance, Contemporary Jazz, and Smoking has become a traditional part of the stage direction in most plays. But there may be a change put into effect during the Little Theatre of Virginia Beach's presentation of "All the Better to Kill You With".

The no-smoking ban was declared by the director Chi Chi Lively, who happens to be a vice president of the Virginia Beach Unit of the American Cancer Society and is herself a conqueror of the dread disease. This is just one small way the vivacious Mrs. Lively can impress upon others the necessity of cancer control, so that others might be spared the battle she fought.

"Business having to do with crossing center stage for a cigarette, or puffing on a cigar or posing with pipe raised...all this used to appear frequently in scripts," she said. "And it was included in the script we're doing."

One of the reasons she eliminated this stage "business" was because it might introduce smoking to a performer, or even interest a reformed smoker in resuming the habit. And she knows whereof she speaks.

"Why, I remember actually starting to smoke again many years ago because I was in-

Nancy Bates Wins Dance Scholarship

Nancy Bates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Bates, is the recent winner of the Virginia Federated Music Clubs' modern dance scholarship.

Nancy received a superior rating in both ballet and modern dance and was awarded a special trophy for scoring a superior rating for three consecutive years in the annual dance festivals.

She has studied modern dance with Vija Martinsons Cunningham for two and one half years, and ballet for three years. She has studied with Era Bohner, Christian Carriere and Christina and Richard Munro of Old Dominion University.

A 6th grader at Point O'View, Nancy doesn't have a problem maintaining good grades because of frequent dance classes. "When you're a busy schedule, you just have to learn how to use time wisely. It's hectic sometimes, but I love it—every minute of it," she said.

Alanton PTA Elects Officers

The Alanton PTA elected their new officers at the May meeting held recently at Alanton Elementary School.

Mimi Burt was elected president; Mike Katsias, first vice-president; Elaine Kyrras, second vice-president; Shirley Montgomery, recording secretary; Joyce Phillips, corresponding secretary; and Bill Nagg, treasurer.

PTA Life Memberships were awarded to seven people who have given many years of their time and talent to the PTA. For each recipient, $35 is given toward a scholarship. Mrs. Luella White, Mrs. Tillie White, Mr. & Mrs. Dale Stoy, Mrs. Rose Breedlove, Mrs. Caroline Kennett, and Mrs. Margaret Wallace received the Life Membership pin.

Musical Tryouts Tuesday

The Little Theatre of Virginia Beach will hold tryouts for its final show of the season, "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown," on one night only—Tuesday, June 6.

Tryouts will start at 8 p.m. in the theatre building, located at the corner of 94th Street and Barbours Drive, one block east of Birdcock Road.

Under the direction of Penny Martin, this popular musical needs a cast of two girls and four young men, preferably between the ages of 17 and 25, who can act and also sing. Two of the men must be able to "dance a bit," Mrs. Martin said.

Faye Whitlock will be the show's musical director.

Those auditioning should bring their own sheet music, Mrs. Whitlock said. "And we are asking the girls to wear skirts, not pants," Mrs. Martin added.

Those interested in backstage and technical work are also invited to attend tryouts. The Little Theatre welcomes all newcomers.

"Charlie Brown" will open July 14 and play Wednesday through Saturday nights until the end of July.

Orchestra Welcomes June With Music

Concentration and hard work is all part of the game for the young orchestra members and Lynn Harris does her share on the bassoon.

June will be welcomed in musically and lyrically with a "June Serenade" by the Virginia Beach Civic Orchestra. The Princess Anne Ruritan Club, headed by president Owen Pickett will present the concert at Plaza Junior High School on Saturday at 8:15 p.m.

The Virginia Beach Civic Orchestra is an all volunteer group organized in 1966 by Frank and Olga Ferrigno. Its purpose is to allow young students of music to gain experience in performing, as well as supplement, broaden, and add to their musical education. The orchestra also provides seasoned musicians the opportunity to resume their performances for personal enjoyment.

The Beach Concert Singers and some members of the Norfolk Savoyards will also combine their talents to present excerpts from Gilbert & Sullivan's "Gondoliers" and "Fiddler on the Roof".

Directed by Maestro Alberto Aserolon and assisted by Larry Harrington, the Virginia Beach Civic Orchestra will accompany the entire ensemble. The orchestra will also feature two of George Bizet's most popular works; the incidental music to Alphonse Daudet's drama "L'Arlesienne", four movements: "Prelude", "Minuetto", "Adagietto", and "Le Carillon"; and the Spanish styled spirited serenade "Ouvre Ton Coeur".

The master of ceremony for the evening will be the very popular "Voice of the Wings", Al McClelland. Tickets may be obtained by calling ticket chairman, Mrs. Kasmak at 340-7769. The Princess Anne Ruritan members and members of the orchestra also have tickets available.

Young Poets Win Ribbons

Four students from Star of the Sea were honored recently for their works submitted in the annual National Poetry Contest sponsored by the Catholic Daughters of America.

Kurt Felthousen, was the first place winner for Division I, grades 4, 5, and 6. Second place winner was Donna Mumford and third place was Charlene Foley.

The first place winner for Division II, grades 7, 8, and 9 was Linda Hennick from St. Gregory the Great. Laura Whitley from Star of the Sea placed second. Thomas Siebels from St. Mathews took third place and also won honorable mention in the state competition.

The awards were presented by Helen F. Ables, Chairman of Education for Court Stella Maris No. 1881 of Virginia Beach.

Auditions Scheduled

Performers, both Equity and non-Equity members, are invited to attend the first auditions for the 1972-73 Season of the Virginia Museum Theatre Sunday in Richmond.

Two audition sessions will be held. Equity members may audition by appointment between 1 and 3 p.m.; a scheduled time may be obtained by telephoning the Theatre office, 770-6333. Open auditions for both Equity and non-Equity performers will be held between 3 and 6 p.m.

Those wishing to try out should come with two prepared selections, of contrasting nature, and each no more than two minutes in length. Appropriate selections could be chosen according to the plays announced for next season, which include "Cyrano de Bergerac," "A Christmas Carol," either "Godspell" or "Your Own Thing," "Look," a Shakespearean production, "The Night Thoreau Spent in Jail," and the premiere of an exciting new play.

Big Bands At Cavalier Beach Club

Castlevor TV Productions, Ltd. has scheduled a full summer of big name orchestras at the Cavalier Beach Club to follow Vaughn Monroe current performance.

Poe Wee Hunt will appear June 1 through June 25, followed by Don Glasser through July 9, Johnny Long will perform July 10 through July 23, and Bob Crosby, July 24 through August 6. August 7 through August 20, Russ Carlyle will appear, followed by Ray McKinley, who will play through September 4.

Joe Jones and Three Decades will appear seven nights a week throughout the summer. On Sundays, a tea dance will be held from 3 to 8 p.m. and an evening dance will be held from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Pants Suits- As Seen By The Experts

"We planned, experimented and researched for three years before we brought out the first pant suits for women. That was 1968," said Helen Lazar of Kimberley.

Now that the pant suit is as much a part of our life as orange juice or the family car, there's still a lot to be learned from experts like Helen Lazar as regards becomingness and fit. Most women think of a pant suit as a necessity of life, but how much pleasure she gets out of wearing it can often be tempered by not feeling exactly a smash in looks.

"The 'professors' of pants making are the men's tailors. Even though a man's figure is different from a woman, his tailor has learned to cope with every bulge he's apt to develop. The same technique applies to women," said Helen Lazar.

"The secret of well-fitting, slender, tall-making pants is that in profile they lie smooth and unstrained over the stomach sides and hips, and that they fall straight from the point just below the derriere to the top of the heel. Wide legged pants should fall straight from the widest point of the thigh to the instep. Bellbottom pants taper in toward the knee, but they never bunch under the hips."

Men's pants are sent to the stores without the hem being sewn in, Mrs. Lazar pointed out. Kimberley's research included studies on the length of legs in America, and their pants sizing averaged these lengths.

"Women should be careful to make any adjustment necessary to make their pants the exact correct length," said Mrs. Lazar. "Otherwise they will look either baggy or skimpy. The correct look is a slight break of the line at the instep in front and a straight line touching the top of the shoe heel at the back."

An elasticized waistband gives the best fit to the most women in pants, Mrs. Lazar and her staff found. "If women can easily adjust the elastic so the pants ride easily above the hips," she said. "A stitched in waistband is apt to make the pants ride up at the sides unless the hips are very slender."

When a woman begins to wear pants as a matter of course, she does well to borrow the man's habit of pulling up the pants at the knee before sitting down, Mrs. Lazar pointed out.

The new idea of a coat, blouse and pants, a sleeveless long jacket and overblouse and the new loose smock toppers with pants are answers to every woman's dream of smart pants-dressing, Mrs. Lazar believes. The short battle and bellhop jackets shown by some of the top designers in their summer collections and indicated as important autumn looks are, however, to be approached with caution by all but the perfect in measurements.

A fine point known by the well-tailored man, but often overlooked by women, she added, is the importance of having plaids of large patterns match perfectly at the seams. "At Kimberly it's imperative that the pants be mitted. A bad match in the pattern cancels out the whole effect."

So watch it, ladies.

Village Circle Elects Slate

Mrs. William T. Joseph has been elected president of the Virginia Wesleyan College Village Circle. The Village Circle is made up of faculty, administration and staff wives and women members of the College faculty.

Other new officers and committee chairmen are Mrs. James R. Bergdoll, vice-president and program chairman; Mrs. Charles L. Kessler, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Robert E. Tucker, student relations committee; Mrs. William M. Wilson, newcomer; committee and Mrs. George A. Churuklan, telephone committee.

Editor's Mother Dies

This week's Women's News does not reflect the usual personal touch of Mrs. Helen Crist, women's editor of the Sun. Mrs. Crist was called to Baltimore, Md. last Wednesday by the illness of her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Warner. On Friday Mrs. Warner passed away and funeral services were held in Baltimore Saturday. Mrs. Crist will return to Virginia Beach today.

Landmarks Commission Names New Director

Junius R. Fishburne, Jr. has been named Executive Director of the Virginia Historic Landmarks Commission, effective July 1, according to Stanley W. Abbott Chairman of the Commission. He will succeed James W. Moody, Jr. who has held the position since its creation in 1967 and who has resigned to become Director of the Historic Pensacola Preservation Board in Florida.

Fishburne, 32, a native of Albemarle County, graduated from Episcopal High School and received his undergraduate education at the University of Virginia. His Masters and PhD Degrees were awarded by Tulane University with emphasis on colonial Virginia history. He has been Assistant Director of the Commission since 1968.

It is Fishburne's hope to maintain and expand the programs started by his predecessor. "There are scores of historic buildings and sites throughout the Commonwealth that merit preservation and

Principal Retires After 26 Years

Mrs. Hortense P. Parkerson, principal of Bayside Elementary School, will retire on July 1, completing 30 years of working with elementary school children. She has been the principal of Bayside Elementary for the past 15 years.

Born in Knotts Island, she is the daughter of the late Alma Jarvis Poyner, a guide, caretaker, and superintendent of the Swan Island Hunting Club in the Currituck Sound. Her mother was a teacher in a one-room school.

"Both had great influence upon my life," she said.

Mrs. Parkerson attended Norfolk Public Schools, graduating from Maury High School. She began her teaching career as a first grade teacher in Herndon Elementary School in Fairfax County after receiving a Professional Diploma from Harrisonburg State Teacher's College.

She earned her B.S. from Old Dominion University and did graduate work at the University of Virginia. Mr. Parkerson taught first and second grades at Bayside for 11 years prior to becoming principal.

A member of Who's Who of American Women, Mrs. Parkerson is also a member of several educational groups including the Virginia and Virginia Beach Education Associations, National Education Association, PTA, and National Association of Elementary School Principals. She is also a charter member and past president of the Chesapeake Beach Woman's Club.

She is married to Charles J. Parkerson, retired manager of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and has one son, Tony, who is married and has two children.

About her years of educational experience Mrs. Parkerson says "I am very grateful for the opportunities I have had working in the teaching profession. The teachers, administrators, and parents with whom I have had the privilege of working have been of high caliber and have inspired me by their confidence."

"I believe Virginia Beach Public Schools are the greatest. The system is continually striving to improve the educational offering for each child. After I rest, perhaps I'll work with children again—but without the constant responsibility which goes with being a principal."

Garden Club Installs Officers

The Point D'Woods Garden Club held its annual luncheon and installation of officers recently at the home of Mrs. Walter W. Chapman.

Mrs. M.J. Schwartz installed Mrs. Walter Chapman as president; Mrs. Jack Mills, first vice-president; Mrs. Thomas Newton, second vice-president; Mrs. Keister King, recording secretary; Mrs. John Trueman, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. James Sullivan, treasurer.

Mrs. Jack Mills received an award for having received the most points in artistic arrangements and horticulture specimens exhibited during the year. Mrs. Thomas A. Newton, the outgoing president, was presented the Most Valuable member award.

The garden club received seven awards at the Council of Garden Clubs annual awards luncheon. First place honors were won for the Mary Freeman Crane Myrtle Award for planting 53 crane myrtle trees, for the Charlotte Tilbrook Beautification award for planting 49 dogwood trees, the Olive Culpepper Garden Therapy Volunteer Service Award, and the Sylvia Brewington Best Slide Award.

A second place award was given for their BANDS project of beautifying along the fence of the London Bridge Neighborhood Park and for their Club Yearbook. The club scrapbook won a third place award.

German Club Holds Dance

The Carolina June German Club will hold its sixth annual dance Friday at 9 p.m. at the Cavalier Hotel ballroom with music by Frank Brown. Mrs. H.L. Walsch is chairman of the dance.

Bellamy Manor Officers

Awards Luncheon

The Spring and Awards Luncheon, and the final meeting of the year, of the King's Grant Garden Club was recently held at the 19th Hole Dining Room of the Golf Ranch Motel.

Mrs. William Werndli, outgoing president, presented each of her club officers and committee chairwomen with a fresh "mum" plant, in recognition of their year's service.

She also gave, in absentia, plants to F. N. Howe, W. W. Werndli, Anthony Mencini and C. D. Hawkins for their "innovative and brute-strength" assistance with the club's "battle-flag, with ribbons," ecology program and numberless onerous landscapal endeavors.

Mrs. Jack Moran was doubly awarded with a small silver pitcher for her "Christmas Doorway" and with a silver nut-dish for her exhibits. Mrs. Charles Kimnach was given the horticulture prize with a similar nut-dish.

Mrs. R. C. Kirkpatrick, past president, officiated at the installation of new officers. They are: Mrs. Charles Lovell, president; Mrs. Jack Moran, first vice president; Mrs. Anthony Mencini, second vice president; Mrs. Carl Herrick, secretary and parliamentarian; Mrs. C. M. Phillips, treasurer. Following the officer in

Thalia Garden Club Meets

The Thalia Garden Club held its 17th annual luncheon at the Cavalier Yacht and Golf Club with Mrs. R. Glenn Owens as chairman. Mrs. Jackie Segaloff was commentator of a fashion show presented by LaVogus. Mrs. Arthur Callagher installed the officers for the coming year. Mrs. E. G. Freeman will be the new president; Mrs. W. M. Shirley, first vice-president; Mrs. J. D. McCleod, second vice-president; Mrs. H. J. Hansell, recording secretary; Mrs. David Arris, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. R. Glenn Owens, treasurer.

The club made plans for a family picnic to be held at Red Wing Park on August 19. A donation of $50 was made to the Federation of Garden Clubs of Norfolk and Vicinity, placing the name of Mrs. J.H. Smith on the honor roll.

Delegates to the annual luncheon meeting of the Council of Garden Clubs of Virginia Beach are Mrs. H. O. Freeman and Mrs. W. H. Bush. Awards were also presented to the winning members. In the horticulture division, Mrs. J. H. Smith won first place for the most blue ribbons for the year. Mrs. C. H. Thayer won second place. Mrs. A. V. Kunh took top award in the arrangement division and Mrs. J. A. Wood, second place.

A gift of appreciation was presented to the outgoing president, Mrs. Walter Engliet, Jr.

Mrs. Stephen Gray

Susan Fisch Weds 2nd Lt. Stephen Gray

Miss Martha Susan Fisch and 2nd Lt. James Stephen Gray were married Tuesday in the Central United Methodist Church, Clifton Forge. The Rev. Robert Bridges officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Roland V. Fisch and the late Roland V. Fisch of Clifton Forge. She is a graduate of Arlington High School in Arlington Heights, Illinois, and Ripon College in Ripon, Wisconsin, and taught drama at St. Ann's School in Charlottesville.

The bridegroom is the son of Lt. Col. (ret.) and Mrs. James E. Gray, Jr., of the Beach. He is a graduate of First Colonial High School and Virginia Military Institute.

Given in marriage by her mother, the bride wore a formal princess line gown of slubbed linen, styled with a yoke and sleeves of heavy venise lace. The a-line skirt and sweep train were bordered with matching lace. She carried a bouquet of yellow and white roses and stephanotis.

Miss Phyllis Holley of Charlottesville served as the maid of honor wearing a blue linen gown styled with an empire waist and white lace trim. Miss Carol Lee Blankenship of Chicago and Mrs. Cheryl Fisch of Harrisonburg, wearing dresses identical to the maid of honor, were the bridesmaids.

Fontaine Graham Jarman III of Roanoke Rapids was the best man. Ushers were Roland E. Fisch of Harrisonburg and Herbert McCulloch of Buchanan.

Judge Is Speaker

At the April meeting of the Princess Anne Plaza Garden Club, Mrs. M.J. Schwarz, an accredited judge, presented a highly informative program on "Miniature Arrangements". She demonstrated the talk as they went along with several types of miniature arrangement displays.

It was reported that the Ecology Committee was responsible for pruning and fertilizing trees at Plaza Jr. High School, Plaza Elementary and Brookwood Elementary. Easter favors of small baskets and corsages were also taken to the Lakeside Nursing Home.

Judges from the Windsor Woods Garden Club awarded blue ribbons in the category of "Kitchen Magic" to Mrs. Darrel Hughes and Mrs. Everett Mitchell. Corsage awards were presented to Mrs. Richard Cannon, Mrs. Charles Dunn, and Mrs. William Cologas, Jr. in the category of horticulture the awards went to Mrs. William Cologas, Jr., Mrs. Everett Mitchell, and Mrs. Cecil Whitehead.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Joseph Goss and Mrs. John Seneker.

Paula Evans

Paula Evans To Wed Lt. (j.g.) Jerry Smith

Capt. Jack Lacle Evans, USN, and Mrs. Evans of Austin, Texas, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Paula Delrey Evans, to Lt. (j.g.) Jerry Lynn Smith, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Smith of Hickory Plains, Arkansas.

The wedding will take place June 17 at Saint Luke's on the Lake Episcopal Church, Austin, Texas.

Miss Evans is a former resident of Pecan Grove Road, Virginia Beach. She attended Frank W. Cox High School, where she was a member of the National Honor Society. She moved to New Orleans, when her father became commanding officer of the Naval Air Station, N.O. Louisiana.

A graduate of Metairie Park Country Day School, New Orleans, Miss Evans is a biology major at Sophie Newcomb College in New Orleans. She served as a

Senior Citizens

The Kempville Senior Citizens Club will meet Wednesday, June 7 and June 21 at 10 a.m. at the Kempville Presbyterian Church on Kempville Road.

Linda Cratch Weds Robert Smith, Jr.

The marriage of Miss Linda Anne Cratch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Edwin Cratch of the Beach to Robert Ernest Smith, Jr., took place June 3 at 3:30 p.m. in the Church of the Advent, Norfolk.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of candlelight peau de soie with an empire waist of silk organza. She carried a bouquet of white sweetheart roses, champagne carnations, and baby's breath.

Deborah Jean Hayman of Norfolk served as the maid of honor wearing an orchid chiffon gown trimmed with lace and embroidered roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Jeferie Ann Markham and Miss Cynthia Lane Koejer. Their dresses of candlelight and lavender chiffon were similar to the maid of honor's.

John F. Shoulders, Jr. served as best man. Ushers were Harold S. Spatz of Exton, Pennsylvania and Tom Clark of Athens, Georgia. After a reception at the Church Parish Hall, the couple left for a wedding trip to Nassau. They will live at 1015 Fleming Circle, Apt. 2, Virginia Beach.

The bride is a First Colonial High School graduate. She attended Chowan College and Princess Anne Business College. The groom graduated from John Hanley High School in Winchester and The Citadel.

Bridal Shower

Miss Dawn Harsh was hostess last week at a bridal shower given at her home on Club House Road for Miss Maurice Denise Charles, who will marry Mr. Beryn Grant West, Jr. on June 24 at Bayside Presbyterian Church.

Miss Harsh will be a bridesmaid in the wedding. Other members of the bridal party attending the shower were Mrs. Peter H. Owens, sister of the bride who will serve as matron of honor and Miss Carol Charles, also sister of the bride who will serve as a junior bridesmaid.

Shutters May Be Answer

She who faces an imponderable problem in window treatment might find her answer in shutters, suggested a Virginia Tech Extension specialist in home furnishings. Mrs. Mildred A. Payne, an assistant professor in the College of Home Economics, commented, "Shutters are adaptable to almost every room in the house. They have taken on a new importance because of the many variations available.

"Homemakers can now select from shutters with vertical as well as horizontal louvers, shutters with fabric inserts, and shutters which can be painted to suit individual tastes," she noted.

Shutters, almost endless in versatility, frequently serve a special decorative purpose when they are used to conceal heating elements or air conditioners installed below or in the window.

"Shutters are easy to use. They are extremely attractive and easy to maintain. And they offer excellent control of light and air without sacrificing privacy," the home economist advised.

Wooden shutters, usually made of pine, are available with fixed or movable louvers and finished or unfinished surfaces. Look for smooth wood, even tension of louvers, fine joinings and attractive, well-attached hardware.

In some instances shutters are available and completely ready for installation. Others may require fitting, hanging and finishing before installation.

Mrs. Payne advised those ordering ready-to-install shutters to measure very carefully. An accurate fit is essential. "Measure the overall width and length at three points: the top, center and bottom. Then, use the most narrow measurement," she suggested.

Burns Wins Zeus Award

William G. Burns, of Norfolk, was recognized as the "Man with 40,000 Sweethearts" by the Beta Kappa Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International a women's cultural and philanthropic service organization. The award, known as the Zeus Award and given to men who have performed an outstanding service to the chapter, community or mankind, was presented during Beta Kappa's Hawaiian Luau held at the home of Sue Foy, 2421 Sandpiper Road, Sandbridge.

Charm Course At Chesapeake College

Those things that make women charming will be revealed and stressed in an evening course beginning June 5 at Chesapeake College. The "Charm and Poise" classes, which consist of a different content and approach than similar courses offered as non-credit subjects at the college, will run for five Mondays, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Theory, practical tips, and expert assistance will be offered to participants by Mrs. Margaret Ostrander, agency director of Charm Associates. Form, etiquette, grooming and conversation will be highlighted, with self-analysis help featured. Ways to acquire an ideal figure and create a charming atmosphere will be taught.

To enroll in the course, which costs $17.50, anyone interested should call Chesapeake College. Space permitting, students can also register during the first class on Monday, June 5.

Sun And Ousterhaut Win Junior Tennis Tournament

Tommy Sun and Jo Ousterhaut won the top matches in the 18-year-old division of the Virginia Beach Junior Tennis Tournament last weekend. Tommy Sun defeated John Matthews 7-5 and 6-3 to win the boy's title, and Jo Ousterhaut defeated Mari Beas 6-4 and 6-1 for the girl's crown.

In the rest of the boys finals, Doug Savage defeated Jeff Danforth 6-1 and 6-2 to win the 16-year-old division. Langley Holland defeated Barry Charlton 6-0 and 6-1 in the 14-year-old match, and Bill Foster defeated Adam Phillips 7-5 and 6-3 to win the 12-and-under title. For the girls, the 16-year-old bracket champion was Nancy Hollans, who defeated Shelly Hamill 6-3 and 6-0. Margaret Reinhardt defeated Cathy Hatcher 7-4 and 6-0 for the 14-year-old title, and Stacy Ives defeated Ginger Lovering 6-3 and 6-1 for the girl's 12-and-under championship.

The matches were played last Saturday and Sunday at Princess Anne High School after being delayed a week because of the weather. The Junior Net Tourney is sponsored annually by the City Parks and Recreation Department and the Virginia Beach Tennis Patrons' Association.

In 1972-73 Federal Duck Stamp will show two emperor geese landing in overcast Arctic surroundings. The winning entry, a full-color wash drawing, was created by artist Arthur M. Cook of Bloomington, Minnesota.

Aluminum canoes outsell all others by five to one. Yet, all the existing canoe shapes are fiberglass construction.

SPORTSAFIELD Magazine passes along a great recipe for dolphin which you can use if you hit upon a hungry school of the lasty fighters. Called charcoal dolphin, the preparation starts by cutting up filleted dolphin into serving-size pieces. Place these on separate sheets of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Add, per serving, one or two slices of onion, one tablespoon of butter or margarine, dashes of salt and fresh ground black pepper, and a thimble or so of white wine. Close each package carefully so that they will retain all juices, and set them neatly on glowing charcoal briquettes. Serve (in fifteen minutes later, along with the rest of the white wine (in glasses). The angler who serves this delicious treat will easily be the hero of the day.

The Tides will be in town, beginning tonight, for seven games. They will meet Rochester in single games on June 1st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th, and then they will face Syracuse in single games June 5th, 6th, and 7th. They will then hit the road for a week, returning to Tidewater June 15th for a game with the parent New York Mets. Let's hope the Mets bring their regular players this time. Last year, most of the sell-out crowd left Metro Park because the Mets came to town with practically none of their front-line stars. Realizing of course that the Mets must save their players for their own league race, they should realize that the local fans deserve to see them at least for a few innings when it is advertised that the Mets are coming to town. Let them play a few innings and sign a few autographs for the baseball supporters of tomorrow. Another "pull-the-wool-over-their-eyes" deal like last year will mean tickets will go begging in 1973.

Do you know who was the youngest golfer ever to win a tournament on the regular pro golf tour? Gene Sarazen was just 20 years old when he won the U. S. Open in 1922.

The next meeting of the City Recreation Commission will be held on June 13th, a week later than originally announced. The Tuesday meeting will start at 3 p.m. in the School Board Building's conference room.

Ferguson's 4:52.4 Mile Sets Jr. High Record

Chuck Ferguson, a ninth grader at Plaza Junior High School, set a record in the mile run in the recent City Junior High School Track and Field Tournament. Chuck chipped almost eight seconds off the previous record, crossing the finish line in a record setting four minutes, fifty-two and four tenths seconds.

Chuck received Plaza Junior's Most Valuable Player Award in Track this year. In addition to track, he also was a member of the football and basketball teams. Between games and practice sessions, Chuck even found time to play in the band.

Six new City records were set in the City tourney. Five were recognized in last week's issue of the SUN. Tim Dally of Bayside Junior High set two City records — broad jumping a record 20' 9" and high jumping a record 5' 7 3/4" — and had a hand in setting two more, in the 440-yard relay and in the mile relay.

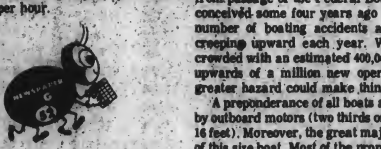

Don Robinson of Bayside Junior High set a new record in the 440-yard dash with a time of 54.3 seconds. Chuck Ferguson's 4:52.4 mile was the sixth City record set in the 1972 meet.

Two Virginia Beach entrants won the other two titles.

Walker Marshall, in a Chevy II, took hot rod eliminator honors, driving the marked distance in 11.10 seconds at a speed of 122 miles per hour. Gary Hurst sped his Honda 90 miles per hour to win the bike eliminator event with an elapsed time of 14.38 seconds.

Racing at Virginia Beach Dragway gets underway every Saturday night at 8 p.m. Gates open at 4 p.m., and time trials begin at hour later.

The funny cat event was won by Dan Smoker of Newport News, churning out 144 miles per hour in an elapsed time of 7.34 seconds. The East Coast funny feliars was won by a New York entry, John Skiselman, with an elapsed time of 9.05 seconds and a speed of 177 miles per hour.

Charlie Hawk And Jerry Inge Make State Track's Top Five

Only two Virginia Beach athletes placed in the top five finishers in the fifteen events in the State Group AAA Scholastic Track and Field Championships at the University of Virginia last Saturday. Peninsula District champion won pretty much as expected.

Kellam pole vaulter Charlie Hawk cleared the crossbar at 14'0", which equaled his best effort of the season. This time it was good enough for second place, an winner Kevin Meyers of Herndon High School vaulted 15' 1/4" for a new State record. Jerry Inge of Kempville finished fifth in the 120yd high hurdles event with a time of 15.2 seconds. Inge had covered the distance in 14.5 seconds earlier in the year. John Johnson of T.C. Williams High School won the event with a time of 14.6 seconds.

Kellam finished 22nd and Kempville 34th in the 36-team field. Kempville's Clyde Doxey qualified for the 440 and the 220 events on Friday, but he failed to place in the State finals.

Tommy Currin Receives Kellam's Top Award At Athletic Banquet

Kellam High School athletes were honored at the school's Tenth Annual Spring Sports Banquet last Thursday evening at White Sands Country Club. Kellam athletic director Vic Gregor acted as master of ceremonies and introduced the school's coaches who presented certificates, letters, and awards to deserving players.

The evening's biggest award, the S.P.A.R.C. Award, went to senior Tommy Currin. The award is given annually to the athlete who excels in scholarship, participation, attitude, reliability, and citizenship. Currin, as a member of the Kellam baseball and football teams, distinguished himself in each of these areas.

Mike Delitto received the Monogram Club Scholarship. Mike was also a member of the baseball and football teams. Richard Wood, a basketball standout for the Knights, was named alternate in case Delitto does not go on to college.

Mike Delitto also won three baseball awards, greatest of which was the school's Most Valuable Player honor. He won the trophy for the best batting average, a .308, and for the most stolen bases. His fourteen stolen bases set a school record for seven inning games. Mike also received the Most Stars Award, given to the player who receives the most top-performance stars during the games for flawless play.

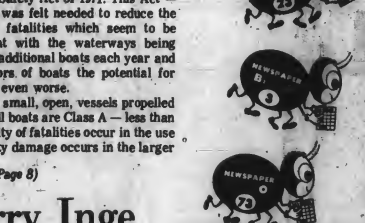

Bill Lanning was named the Outstanding Pitcher. Best Defensive Player honors went to Tommy Currin.

Richard Wood won the Most Valuable Player Award in basketball. The Kellam cage star finished his senior year as the State's tenth top scorer and the top point-maker in Virginia Beach. He was the highest scorer in Kellam's history, made 66 per cent of his free throws, led his team in steals, and was named to the Virginia Beach SUN All-City Basketball First Team. The speedy guard is headed toward Chesapeake College next fall to lend his scoring punch to the Cougars. Doug Crow received the Coach's Free-Throw Award. Crow set a school record for free-throw accuracy, dropping in 76 per cent of his charity shots. Charles Langley, who set a school record for rebounding, received the Coach's Rebounding Award.

Rick Land, who was runner-up in his weight class in the State Scholastic Wrestling Tournament, was named wrestling's Most Valuable Player. Land also received the Coach's Award for the most escapes and reversals. John Akins won two Coach's Awards, one for the most takedowns and one for the most pins.

Don Cox was awarded the Most Valuable Player Award in tennis. Teammate David Howard won the Coach's Special Tennis Award.

Other sports had one trophy each, which was awarded to the Most Valuable Player. MVP winner for golf was Alan Duxler, for girls' gymnastics Bunny Wiseman; for boys' gymnastics Keith Reiger, and for indoor track Charlie Hawk. Sherry Taylor was named the Most Outstanding Senior Cheerleader. Earlier in the year, Mike Tate received the Most Valuable Player Award for football.

Blessing Of The Animals

Amidst growls, barks, squeaks and meows the Eastern Shore Chapel held a service dedicated to the blessing of God's animals that are our pets and friends. Pets of all sizes and shapes were presented to the Rev. Charles M. Riddle, III, rector of Eastern Shore Chapel. Receiving the blessing is "Sam" a Saint Bernard belonging to Mrs. James McCan. Waiting their turn are Lix Harwood with her guinea pig "Schultze", Kim Nye and her turtle "Harvey", and Natalie Ferrell with her cat "Sammy". Proceeds from a special collection were presented to the Virginia Beach Chapter SPCA. (Photo by Jon Sagerst)

DON'T FORGET SON- GET A BLUM ONE

I SURE DO LONG MY FINEST LP DO ANYTHING HE SAYS

ISN'T THAT RICH ONE PRETTY! THAT'S THE ONE I'LL GET

BUT HE SAID TO GET BLUM

HE DIDN'T SAY NOT TO GET RED

BESIDES- IT'S JUST A MATTER OF INTERPRETATION!

Why did God accept Abel's offering and reject Cain's? I've known academic preachers who have attempted to answer this with, "Abel was sincere and Cain lacked sincerity." This is PURE CONJECTURE... the Bible reveals the answer for us in two passages, Gen. 4:1-4, "By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain..." Compark this with Rom.10:17, "So then FAITH COMETH

BY HEARING, and hearing by THE WORD OF GOD." From this we can see that Abel's sacrifice was accepted because he offered it in obedience to the word he had heard from God. Cain's was rejected because he chose to ignore what God said and offered what he felt would do just as well. Repent, how do you react to the word of God?

One pilot was killed another escaped injury Saturday when their A6 Intruder jet aircraft crashed at Oceana Naval Air Station.

Officials identified the pilot killed as Lt. Kenneth S. Culver, 25, of Troy, Mich., and his co-pilot as Lt. James Kern, 28, of Regency Drive, Virginia Beach.

Authorities said both men ejected from the aircraft moments before it crashed during a routine field-carrier landing practice session. Both were qualified pilots, attached to Attack Squadron VA-85 based at Oceana NAS. Culver was at the plane's controls.

There was no report of any danger aboard the plane prior to the crash, according to officials, and an investigation is underway to determine cause of the crash.

Cadet Charles W. Gardner, Jr., of Virginia Beach, a third classman at the Virginia Military Institute, recently received the William Brent Bell Award for excellence in military studies. Making the presentation is Maj. Gen. Richard L. Irby, VMI superintendent. Cadet Gardner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Gardner of 1300 Kingfisher Ct.

Cadet James S. Cray of Virginia Beach, who was one of 218 seniors to be graduated by the Virginia Military Institute, is sworn into the Army as a second lieutenant by his father, Lt. Col. James E. Gray, Jr., AUS, retired, of Virginia Beach, in a ceremony in the VMI military science building.

THIS GREAT NECK ROAD HOME was surrounded by water last Friday morning when incoming high tides swelled the waters of Long Creek. Indications are this was a common place sight throughout the resort city as a storm center hovered off the Atlantic Coast for several days.

Six students from Virginia Beach received degrees from Elon College during the 82nd spring commencement exercises held on May 21.

Barry Wade Cheatham, 4361
Lynnville Crescent, and William Bruce Law, 902
Bingham St., were awarded degrees in business administration. Joseph Allen
Freve, 1805 Birchwood Road, was awarded a degree in physical education. Robert Hill Venner, 2001 Holland Road, received a degree in biology, and Louis Wayne Schnitzer, 200
82nd St., received a degree in English.

Donald Czar Rudy, son of Mr. & Mrs. Donald Harold Rudy and a senior at Princess Anne High School, and Alison Grace McGee, daughter of Cdr. & Mrs. Claude McGee and a senior at Norfolk Christian High School, have both been accepted at Elon College for the coming school year.

Held For Graduates

The Baylake United Methodist Church will conduct a special service on June 4 honoring all members of its church family who are graduating from high school and college this spring. In addition to recognizing the new graduates the services will include participation by Chesapeake College leaders and students, and the principals of Bayside and Cox High Schools.

June 11

Students from the Virginia Beach Campus of Tidewater Community College will receive degrees at commencement exercises on the Frederick Campus June 11, at 5 p.m.

Dr. Roy E. McTearnaughan, Director of the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia, will deliver the address. The degrees will be awarded by Dr. Douglas M. Montgomery, president of T. C. C.

Following the exercises, a reception for all graduates, their families, and friends will be held.

Graduates

Michael Robert Marer, son of Mr. & Mrs. Robert Marer, 1406 Cooper Circle, was awarded the associate of science degree, academic, from Wingate College last week.

Sally J. Shimoda¹⁴ of Virginia Beach is one of 25 Virginia Tech students to complete an emergency medical technician course offered through the Tech's Volunteer Rescue Squad this spring.

Residents Up In Arms Over Sewer Problems

By Jon Sager

Some 100 residents of Malibu and nearby areas stood in a steady downpour for an hour-and-a-half Tuesday night listening to public officials tell them what might be done about a two-year-old sewage problem. The problem centers around a sewerage treatment plant belonging to County Utilities Corporation. Sewerage treatment plants are known by their odors, but the one located in Malibu is alleged to be exceptionally bad.

Residents of Malibu, Thalia, Kings Forest and Birchwood Gardens are affected depending on which way the wind is blowing.

"It's like living in an outhouse," commented one distraught woman. Residents of the area have been trying for relief. A tall, healthy young man declared the smell was so bad it awoke him in the middle of the night from a deep sleep.

According to Mrs. William Lunaford, of Royal Palm Drive, the attempts have resulted in little more than impolite brushoffs and constant frustration. "I have called the State Health Department, Water Control Board, and appeared before City Council," she states.

The matter was brought to a head two weeks ago when a portion of the 3500 block of Royal Palm Drive caved in, breaking a sewer pipe and revealing an 18-foot deep hole. The cave-in was the result of a contractor or developer digging a hole to tie into a sewer line and then not filling in the hole afterwards, according to George Hanbury, Assistant City Manager. Erosion caused the hole to enlarge, thus undermining the street.

The broken sewer line caused a back-up of sewage on Memorial Day, allowing an overflow valve to actuate on Sandy Point Key, causing raw sewage to flow in the streets.

"The worst problem is the raw sewage in the streets. The children are playing in it," said Mrs. Pamela Bonham, of Sandy Point Key, "and the smell is just like an outhouse."

"We decided something had to be done," noted Hanbury. The city is repairing the hole in the street and will then charge the party responsible for the situation.

In response to a question, Hanbury said the city could not take over the treatment plant; there is no money available for such an action. Also, he said, the city has no jurisdiction over the operation of private sanitation companies since they were authorized when the area was still part of Princess Anne County.

Assistant Director of the State Water Control Board, Enforcement Division, Ray Bowles commented that the Water Control Board will have to do something about it. "It's our duty," he said.

The first ray of hope, according to the residents, has come from the State Air Pollution Control Board. County Utilities Corporation has been given until June 30 to submit a plan for reducing the odor.

"Odor from the sewerage treatment plant cannot be eliminated, but it can be reduced to a point with which you can live," said Adamson, of the Air Pollution Control Board.

It was mentioned that the only real relief would come when Hampton Roads Sanitation District takes over operations in the area. According to Bowles, that is not feasible at present, although County Utilities is currently engaged in discussions with HRSD.

Councilman F. Reid-Ervin concurred with the residents in noting that the only real relief will come with the restriction of building.

"We accomplished our purpose of making the citizens aware of what the officials believe the situation to be," stated Robert Miller of Royal Palm Arch, one of those responsible for putting the meeting together.

Miller told the Sun: "It is unfortunate the neither the building contractors nor the utilities operator saw fit to attend tonight's gathering even so much as to send an authorized representative. I must thereby assume that this, then, in an accurate reflection of the true esteem, or lack thereof, which they hold, both separately and collectively, for the citizens of the affected areas. Especially in light of any possible unfavorable financial consequence resultant from such a meeting as this."

Senator Byrd At Oceana

The Naval Air Station Oceana will be the host activity for the June 8, 1972 meeting of the Federal Safety Council, Hampton Roads Area.

The Honorable Harry F. Byrd, Jr., U.S. Senator from Virginia will be guest speaker for the meeting. The evening has been designated as ladies night so that wives of the membership could share in the opportunity of hearing Senator Byrd speak.

Year-Round Schooling To Start June '73

"It's vital that the people understand our program," School Supt. E.E. Brickell told the news media Tuesday at a press conference when he unveiled plans for year-round schools at the Beach.

The innovative program, successful in other parts of the country, involves a minimum of four elementary schools, with 11 other schools under consideration. They are Holland Road Elementary, Lynnhaven Elementary, Plaza Elementary, Windsor Oaks Elementary, John B. Day Elementary, Alanton Elementary, Brookwood Elementary, Trentwood Elementary, Kempville Meadows Elementary and the soon to be constructed College Park Elementary.

Brickell said the program is part of a commitment the School Board made to the public during the school bond referendum campaign earlier in the year. It was necessary to seek out alternate methods of providing classroom space for the rapidly growing Beach school population.

To convey the urgency and explain the program succinctly to the people it will be presented to the School Board first for approval, then to City Council.

Youth Killed

A 16-year-old boy was accidentally shot to death Tuesday afternoon while, according to police, crabbing with his brother in Owls Creek.

Officials identified the youth as Willy Wiggins, Jr., of Owls Creek Lane.

According to investigators young Wiggins was carrying a 12-gauge shotgun in his hand and riding his bicycle when the incident occurred.

Indications are the youth and his 11-year-old brother Calvin had started home when he rode back to the creek for a crab net left behind. Calvin was quoted with saying he heard a shot, ran back to his brother and found him lying on the ground, then ran home to bring their mother to the scene.

Investigators feel young Wiggins' bicycle struck something, throwing him over the handlebar, causing the gun to discharge wounding him in the chest.

and finally to the grass roots—the civic leagues, the PTAs, the coffee gatherings. The public information program will be intensive and speakers will be available when requested.

Brickell said the go-ahead was triggered when a $75,000 federal grant was received from the State Department of Education for Year-Round Education—Research and Development (YRE). The original figure requested was $335,000.

Noting that undoubtedly the program would alter the life style of some families, Brickell said, "It's not easy to change the pattern of families but we were able to keep all the children in a family on the same cycle." Brickell himself said he has some reservations about the workability of the plan.

Known as the 44-day 16-day cycle it continues through the year with the students completing the same amount of time off that they ordinarily would under the regular school calendar. The difference is that it will come in three week increments during the year.

All holidays will be continued and all students will receive five weeks off between May and September.

As the program begins, students participating will be divided into four groups.

The first group will begin school on June 18, 1973. Fifteen school days later, the second group will start classes and 15 school days after that the third group will enter school.

When the fourth group starts, 15 school days after the third, the first group will have completed 15 school days of classroom work and will be given three weeks vacation. When this group returns, the second group will be released for three weeks until 180 days of attendance have been completed by each group.

Brickell was asked if he expected resistance on the part of parents. "It would be naive to expect that people won't object," he said. The public information campaign, hopefully, will dispel some of the doubts of parents.

Principals in ten schools have been contacted; he said, and they have been made aware of the difficult task, yet they understand the necessity for the program.

Beach Students Win Top Honors

Two Virginia Beach students have won top academic honors in the 1972 graduating class at Virginia Wesleyan College.

Judith Lynn Hall, 22, completed her academic work at Wesleyan with a 3.83 average out of a possible 4.00 as the top honor graduate in the class. Miss Hall is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall L. Hall of 3508 Aurora Drive. She is a 1968 graduate of Bayside High School.

Sharing Summa Cum Laude honors with Miss Hall is Kathleen S. Olsen who completed her academic work with a 3.83 average out of a possible 4.00. Miss Olsen, 21, is the daughter of Commander and Mrs. H. L. Olsen of 2313 Leeward Shore Drive. She is a 1968 graduate of Copenhagen International High School in Denmark.

Other honor graduates are Linda K. Lawrence of Arlington; Leland E. King of Virginia Beach; Carl R. Rodriguez of Norfolk; and Robert F. Saul of Virginia Beach. Honor graduates must maintain an academic average of 3.25 or better out of the possible 4.00.

Commencement exercises for the sixth academic session at Virginia Wesleyan College were held on June 5.

Senator Canada Leads Youth Groups For Nixon

Fitzgerald Bemiss, Chairman of the Virginia Committee for the Re-election of the President, announced Thursday that State Senator A. Joe Canada, 33, of Virginia Beach has accepted appointment as Chairman of the Virginia Young Voters for the President Committee.

Canada, the first Republican elected to the Virginia legislature from Virginia Beach since the Civil War, praised the President for his "belief in young people" and his "dedication to building world peace."

"The President's faith in young people was never more strongly demonstrated than in his support for the 18-year old vote," Canada said. "And his dedication to building world peace never more amply proven than in his skillful negotiation of a new era of relations with the Peoples Republic of China and the Soviet Union."

They will support him, Bemiss said, "because President Nixon has a tremendous record of positive and constructive programs which affect all Americans, regardless of age."

"I am delighted that Senator Joe Canada will be helping us to register these young voters and turn them out on election day in support of President Nixon," Bemiss said.

Beach Private Eyes

By Les Lehigh

Depending upon where you work, and what line of employment you're in, there is the possibility that the employee next to you is a private investigator.

This statement is based on information from Jennie Merkle, operator of the Merkle Bureau of Investigation which is one of the private investigating and security agencies operating in Virginia Beach. Operations such as Merkle's provide a unique service to residents of the Resort City in that while they are not on the same level as the city's Police Division they are still concerned with the safety and well being of the city. Merkle illustrates this by saying, "Private police differ from regular police in that they are after the criminal element; people who hire us are after information."

Merkle says the Bureau's largest workload is in the field of industrial investigation, followed by domestic investigations involving husbands and wives who are suspicious of each other's activities. He says another large field involves providing uniformed guards for business firms.

Industrial investigations, conducted at the request of owners and/or managers of business firms, involves checking on employees in firms which are witnessing large amounts of losses. Records indicate a large portion of such losses are the result of employees stealing from within the firm.

Merkle indicates this can become of sizable portions in some firms by saying, "Usually if we find one employee in a store stealing, you're going to find others doing it to assist in a cover up of the activities."

The type of firms subjected to such thefts is as varied as the type of thefts involved. Merkle says department stores, grocery stores and restaurants are typical examples, while

"primary thefts involve merchandise easily converted into cash sales like groceries, meats and cigarettes. In department stores it's usually radios and portable t.v.'s. Such items, according to Merkle, "are easy to steal because of few inventories taken by stores."

He added, "Some stock thefts occur through removal of merchandise by employees and adjustment of inventory records," indicating that in some incidents when the theft has been discovered it's too late to recover the merchandise.

The theft of money is easily accomplished, according to Merkle, from cash registers at "check-out counters." As an example he points to "check-out cashiers adding sums of money to their register records which have not been collected, along with adding non-purchased items. This," he continues, "will balance out the register at the close of the day but money taken will never be discovered."

One unusual theft which Merkle uncovered involved a dishwasher in a restaurant who was removing foodstuff from stock, placing it in a protective wrapping, discarding it in garbage cans taken out doors at night, then returning when the restaurant was closed and removing the items from the garbage can.

To combat such thefts Merkle says he will place investigators, skilled in the line of work involvement, within the firms as regular employees. Skills of the investigators cover a wide range including painters, plumbers, t.v. repairmen, brick layers, and even accountants. Merkle says, "The investigator must have knowledge of the work involved to blend in with the regular employees. For this reason most investigators work on a part time basis from their regular jobs."

When questioned as to how large losses are from thefts within business firms, Merkle replied, "How much can a shoplifter steal compared to how much an employee can steal."

Another large field of private investigations involves domestic complaints which Merkle says, "are way out. Like I had a case where a man asked me to check on his fiancée for eight months before he married her."

The majority of domestic cases which the Merkle Bureau handles usually "...involve complaints of spouses running around on each other." Merkle points out, however that, "Most of these cases are just to show the wandering spouse his or her activities are known to the other one." He adds, "Most of these cases never reach courts, they are usually settled in a lawyers office."

Merkle's experience indicates no specific type of person is prone to marital infidelities, but adds, "When all other considerations are just about equal, age is a primary factor." His experience has shown that women aged 30 to 40 and men aged 40 to 50 are most prone to extramarital activities.

The Merkle Bureau employs both male and female investigators, the women are always wives of other investigators. Merkle says, "Man and wife team investigators really work good. This helps because they discuss the days activities at home, and some times this results in their unknowingly helping each other in an investigation."

Merkle adds that while women do just as good a job as men, "I don't like to use women by themselves. Maybe I'm old fashioned, but I don't like exposing women to danger when they're alone."

Chamber President Shot

Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce president, and owner of the Aeolus Motel, George H. Davis was listed in serious condition Wednesday morning after reportedly being shot in the chest with a 38-caliber pistol.

Authorities said Davis' wife, Mrs. Rose B. Davis, has been charged with malicious assault in the incident. She has been released on $1,000 bond pending court proceedings.

According to investigators Davis, 52, was shot at the couple's Waterfront Road apartment early Sunday morning. The Davis' just recently moved into the apartment from the motel.

Davis is a past president of the Virginia Beach Innkeepers Association. His numerous civic activities include service with the Virginia Beach Development Council. Police are continuing their investigation into circumstances surrounding the incident.

Couple Graduates

Mr. and Mrs. Paul L. Brubaker of Virginia Beach are the only husband and wife team to graduate from Virginia Wesleyan College this year.

Thrill Lacking But Comedy Pays Off In LT's 'Kill'

Suspense is one vital ingredient in a murder-mystery, such as "All the Way to Kill You With" which opened Friday at the Little Theatre of Virginia Beach. The "hair raising" suspense necessary for an effective murder-mystery is somewhat lacking in this show — but one must recognize it is not the usual "who-done-it."

The overall acting was fairly good and convincing, but at times the actors were unable to give that extra emotion to make the more dramatic scenes believable.

When conflicting forces confronted each other — the main character's love for his wife versus his jealousy or the forces of good (the local police) versus the murderer — the dramatic tension dropped below the credibility level. Focusing these conflicts to a crystal clarity readily recognizable to the audience would have heightened the sense of crisis and suspense.

The set design reveals a great deal of artful planning and just plain hard work. The action takes place in a ski chalet near a New England resort area. Lee Lively, set designer, was able to create what seemed to be a real person's home, not just a house or a theatre set. Two separate rooms make up the set where action, at times, takes place in both rooms simultaneously. Yet, no matter where the action is, the entire audience can always see what's going on. For the production staff, Larry Williams, manager and chairman, Don Ruder and Joe Worrall, one side comment says all: One lady from the audience was so fascinated by the realism of the scene, she placed that during an intermission she was compelled to touch it to see if it was real.

Paul Gaddis as Mr. Travers was unconvincing as a jealous lover turned killer. Generally, his acting was adequate, but at crucial moments when strong emotion had to be portrayed, his actions and words were rather empty. What should have been critical times of sharpened conflict, especially between Mr. Travers and his murder-accomplice (his brother played by Bruce Letten), became bogged down in forced, stilted actions.

The first part of the play was lived up to by the dialogue interplay between Evelyn Hopkins, nicely played by Floss Lawton and Erica Travers, played by Maureen Schugardt, whose figure and voice was perfect for the rich ski bunnies she portrayed. Thanks to Maureen Schugardt, the obvious emotional distance between herself and her husband as disenchanted newlyweds was effectively maintained as a secondary motive for the murderer's actions.

George Menz playing Russell Livingston, the victim, did as well as he acts. His death scene is realistic enough — he is believable, but yet not too ghastly. Russell Livingston, in the play, made up the third side of the love triangle with Erica and Douglas Travers. The audience knows from the start who is doomed, but exactly when the victim will die and how the killer will be caught are the unknown factors.

The most choice moments in the entire play come in the third act with the appearance of Chief Inspector Henderson, played by David Lang, and his youthful detective, Perkins, played by Randy McClellan. The two men's near-perfect sense of timing made the slapstick humor delightfully funny. While the Inspector interrogated the murder suspects, Randy McClellan could even remain funny in character while taking notes, practically motionless and silent in the corner of the room. Their slight-gag punner and super-leuth detective work create a scene stealing team, like a combination of Abbott and Costello plus Sherlock Holmes and Dr. Watson.

The special sound and lighting effects enhanced the realism of the entire performance. Maynard Allen and Carl Hamblin created the snow scene and the car lights on the window, which must be seen to be fully appreciated. Phil Uhler and Peter Lively co-ordinated special sound effects and music themes which blended smoothly into the action and mood of the play.

"All the Way to Kill You With" will run Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 p.m. through the month of June.

SOUL CATCHER, by Frank Herbert. New York, Putnam, 1972. $5.95.

When his teenage sister drowns herself after being raped by white men, Charles Hobbes abandons the white man's university for the mountains of Western Washington.

There he is invaded by one of the spirits of his Indian past, the Soul Catcher, an implacable powerful spirit which requires him to capture and ritually murder an innocent of the whites to pay for the innocents of his people who have been destroyed.

This strangely quiet book is the story of their trek, the Indian and the boy he kidnaps. They are opposites — Indian and white, bitterly experienced and innocent, insane and sane, captor and captive — but shared experiences and a growing knowledge of each other's essential being binds them together in a relationship which transcends respect or love or even trust.

SOUL CATCHER is a powerful book which builds slowly to a violent climax.

Suds And Sand

By Jon Sagester

It's a wonder Shirley's frozen strawberry daiquiri's don't melt.

A sunset is a beautiful sight and the sun rising over Virginia Beach is even more exciting, especially if you watch it with someone you count.

Between sunset and dawn a whole new world awakens and the lovely folk known as "Night People" come out to play.

Jon is going to attempt to tell you what the Night People are doing, where they're going and why. And if by chance you have a burning desire to join the FRONP (Fraternal Order of Night People) then put on your glad rags, open up your heart, and let the moonshine (?) in. I'm Jon.

For those who think there is nothing to do except on a weekend, I heartily recommend the Brass Lantern on Rosemont Rd. Besides being good neighbors they have instituted a comedy program designed to entertain and delight diners and drinkers alike.

Currently running spoofs of Broadway shows the cast is comprised of Lantern employees, and what they lack in talent (and they don't lack much), they make up for in enthusiasm.

John and Dave Collins started the idea for kinks and it turns out that everyone is enjoying it so much, including the customers, they have decided to carry it on through the summer.

Another good reason to stop at the Lantern is to have Shirley whip up a strawberry delight with the unlikely moniker of "Frozen Strawberry Daiquiri." A specialty of the house served by beautiful blonde Shirley makes it well worth the stop. Her Mai Tai's aren't bad either.

If you make it on a Wednesday through Saturday night you may have to wait while Shirley finishes her song in whatever show they are doing. That's worth watching too as she sure does end a song with a splash.

A top-notch way to start a Friday or Saturday evening of fun this month is to attend the Little Theatre of Virginia Beach production of "All the Way to Kill You With."

Cerine and Pat saw it the other night and had nothing but praise for it. And they are two gals who really enjoy night life at Virginia Beach, although Pat couldn't quite make it for the 4 a.m. breakfast this week.

Speaking of breakfast there is no better way to prepare for the sunrise than to meet the crowd and split a steak about four in the morning. One of the best places nearby is the Circle C on Laskin Rd.

Although Paul might not always be there the food is tops and he makes it a point to hire girls who can give efficient service with a pleasing personality in the middle of fun time (Pre-dawn).

As we struggle up to watch Ol' Sol peek over the horizon remember what Poor Richard said in his Almanac: "To err is human, To Repent divine, To persist Devilish."

The sun is rising, G'nicht.

Theatre Features Art Work

Reltha Sedel, well known local artist and instructor of the workshop, offered the class to introduce a new approach to expressing art by encouraging creative ability.

Judging by the work and comments of the students, it has proved successful. As Charlotte Cornelius stated, "The workshop has enabled me to break loose from the traditional view of art, and has opened a whole new, exciting world."

Another student, Betty Moss, feels it has been a challenge, departing from conventional still life study to thinking creative. She adds, "I view art today with a different perspective, looking for new values."

Sponsored by the YWCA, in co-operation with the Virginia Beach Arts Center, the exhibit will run through the month of June.

Herbie Mann Heads Jazz Festival List

Herbie Mann will appear in concert during the fifth annual Hampton Jazz Festival in the Hampton Roads Coliseum at 8 p.m., June 23. Mann's Friday evening performance will mark the fifth appearance he has made at the jazz festival since it originated outdoors in 1968 at Hampton Institute.

Herbie Mann has been voted number one flutist in the Down Beat readers poll for the past eight years. His "Herbie Mann at the Village Gate," "My Kinda Groove," and "Herbie Mann Plays the Roar of the Greasepaint" are all on the best selling charts. A few of his latest releases on the Atlantic label include "Memphis Underground," "Muscle Shoals Nitty Gritty," and "Memphis Two-Step."

Mann has been noted for bringing an outstanding new group with him to the jazz festival each year, and this year's fifth annual Hampton Jazz Festival will be no exception. Sidemen to accompany Mann during his Friday evening performance at the coliseum include "Fathead" Newman, Andy Mason, Sonny Sherrock, Carlos "Patao" Valdes, Reggie Ferguson, and Pat Rebillot.

In addition to Mann's appearance on June 23, the first evening concert of the jazz festival will headline Ray Charles, B.B. King, Jimmy Smith, Jan Sessalon, Clark Terry, Joe Newman, Zoot Sims, Illinois Jacquet, Roy Haynes, and Kenny Burrell.

Nina Simone will head the second concert on June 24 with Cannonball Adderley, Dave Brubeck Trio, Gerry Mulligan and Paul Desmond. "The Giants of Jazz" are also scheduled for the Saturday night performance featuring Dizzie Gillespie, Sonny Sitt, Kai

Promotes Surfing

Approximately 200 surfers turned out for a rally Friday night in an effort to organize themselves behind the Virginia Surfing Association.

After a watermelon race on the beach and free poppies and donuts, the surfers listened to Sgt. Frank Scarborough of the Virginia Beach Police Department discuss surfing and the law.

Scarborough commented that the major problem is not with local surfers who are familiar with the laws, but it is with out-of-towners who come in for a few days and don't know the rules and regulations.

He solicited the aid of all local surfers by asking them to help explain local regulations to all newcomers they meet, or to anyone they see breaking, or about to break, one of the rules.

Scarborough was followed by Jack Dowdy of the Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department who said, in essence, there will be no changes in the surfing areas this year.

He did note that Parks and Recreation, the Jaycees and others did approach the Commanding General at Fort Story in an effort to obtain new surfing area at the North end of the beach.

However, due to military exercises it is not possible for the Army to allow this year. Dowdy said the "door isn't completely closed on next year, though."

Following the food and talks, the surfers were treated to a Bob Evans surfing movie.

The rally was held in back of the ex-Morris Surf and Ski shop at 21st and Atlantic Ave.

According to Danny Johnson, president of VSA, the purpose of the rally was to solicit membership in the surfing association so they might better afford and select spokesmen to represent the surfers at the various meetings and discussions held concerning surfing areas and rules.

"The younger kids just don't have an opportunity to be heard and this is a way we can help them," Johnson commented.

Along with helping build a strong association the membership allows a discount to those who enter the various contests held each year at Virginia Beach.

Along with Johnson, other officers of the Virginia Surfing Association are: Pete Smith, vice chairman and Mrs. James Dixon, secretary-treasurer.

Kiwanians Adopt Son

Rosaller Capati, an 11-year-old Filipino boy, has been "adopted" by the members of the Kiwanis Club of Virginia Beach through the Foster Parents Plan.

Rosaller his sister and two brothers were abandoned by their mother a few years ago; their father is in a mental institution. They are being raised by a grandmother, in her late sixties, who by working as a laundress or seamstress, earns at most 50 cents a day.

Rosaller shares a crowded existence with his family on the ground floor of a two-story shack made of bamboo, native palm leaves, and milk carton boxes. The only furniture is a bamboo bed. There is no electricity. It's an existence without a shred of comfort or convenience.

The Kiwanis Club of Virginia Beach, by contributing $16 a month, assures Rosaller of rice, vegetables and fish each day. It provides medical and dental care, as well as guidance and counseling of social workers. Rosaller can now attend classes without embarrassment, knowing he is neatly dressed and has all the required books and supplies.

In return for their contribution, the Kiwanis Club will receive monthly letters from Rosaller translated by the Foster Parents Plan, as well as the friendship and gratitude of Rosaller and his family.

Any individuals, clubs or organizations interested in information concerning the Foster Parents Plan should contact the organization at 352 Park Avenue South, New York, N.Y. 10010.

Brickell Heads Superintendents Of Beach Schools

Virginia Beach School Superintendent E.E. Brickell has been elected Chairman of the Tidewater Division of Virginia School Superintendents for the 1972-73 school year.

The Tidewater group is composed of the School Superintendents of 21 school districts in Region 2 of Virginia's nine educational regions. As chairman of the Region 2 group, Brickell will also become a member of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction's nine-member Advisory Council.

Brickell has been Superintendent of Virginia Beach Schools since 1968 when he was elevated from an Assistant Superintendent's position. He has also been Superintendent of Franklin and South Norfolk City Schools as well as a teacher and a coach. He is currently on the Board of Trustees of Tidewater Community College, a member of the Executive Committee of the Virginia High School League, on the Board of Directors of the United Community Funds, and a member of the Drug Focus Committee.

We're Waiting

Sheriff John Marr told City Council Monday that the information on alleged violations in City Jail released thus far has been one-sided. He said he is being judged without an opportunity to tell his side. No man should be placed in this position.

The Sun asked Sheriff Marr last Wednesday for an interview to express his views and a tentative date was set Monday. What with the council meeting and all, he apparently was unable to keep the appointment. But the invitation still stands. And space in this newspaper will be made available to Sheriff Marr, and any other spokesman he may choose, at any time to bring before the public both sides to the jail investigation.

Two weeks ago the Sun called for the sheriff's resignation, based on previous information on mistreatment of inmates and the more recent investigation by the State which indicates that such violations have continued.

This stand was taken not to discredit an individual, but to hopefully force some action that might solve the apparent disgraceful situation at City Jail. And to—again, hopefully—discourage abusive treatment of human beings, regardless of their position in society.

Up until this week any possible solution seemed tied up in official red tape. The City claimed it could do nothing because it was the responsibility of the State. The State claimed it could do nothing until the City initiated action. And, while no one did anything because of political protocol, more citizens accused of crimes were crowded into the jail and subjected to possible personal abuse. This is not a comfortable feeling with which to live.

This week, however, the tide of concern seems to have turned. City Council has agreed to take some definite steps to confirm, or dispute, the allegations and the State has indicated that it will, finally, seek legal means to correct the situation.

The allegations brought out in the State investigation cannot be ignored. If they are lies, as Sheriff Marr claims, then prove they are lies. But if they are truthful accounts, as the State investigators apparently believe, then substantiate their accuracy and prevent any further violations. All that is needed is the truth. Once that is determined, the next step should be obvious. Sweeping the dirt under the rug and ignoring its presence will solve nothing.

The Sun has been both praised and reprimanded for its editorial stand on the resignation. Neither reaction was unexpected.

The Sun remains in its editorial stand. But this newspaper attempts in every way to be fair and honest and would welcome the opportunity to present Sheriff Marr's side of the situation. He can be assured the interview would be reported exactly as stated, unsolicited and without bias. He needs but to call.

Court Vs. Council

Virginia Beach is one hundred and twelve apartment units richer, thanks to Circuit Court Judge Paul Ackiss. He had to over-rule the city's elected representatives, plus a zoning enforcement officer, but he made it. And all he had to do was decide there is no legal difference between townhouses and apartments.

This accomplishment started some eighteen months ago when City Council approved a use permit for one hundred and twelve townhouses. But when the builder, Carolanne Homes, Inc., applied recently for the building permit the specifications appeared more like garden apartments to Zoning Officer Pat Janacek and he refused the request. The builder appealed to council but they stood firm on their original approval of townhouses, not garden apartments.

It all ended up in Circuit Court and there it came to pass that there's no difference between the two types of construction. Now the City has been ordered to issue the building permit and what the Kempville area will get will be apartments, not townhouses. What the city will have is what the builder wants, not what City Council approved.

It's a good thing the courts keep things straight. The average person would assume that garden apartments would differ from townhouses unit, providing more privacy for the inhabitant. They are both apartment types, so are garage apartments. But there certainly is a difference.

The real point, however, is that this ruling opens the door to what could become a problematical trend...the alteration and modification of building plans AFTER they have received approval. It dilutes the control of City Council and the Planning Department over what is built in Virginia Beach.

This is not a desirable situation, and repercussions from Judge Ackiss' decision will no doubt be felt for some time to come.

Sunday Sailors-Ugh!

Here they come—their wakes rooster-tailing behind them; their skiers whizzing by precariously close; their decks crowded with passengers unprotected by life preservers; their small children teetering dangerously on the tip of the bow; their beer cans thoughtlessly tossed on the water; their anchors dropped in clearly marked channels.

It is the season of the Sunday Sailors. And the true pleasure and relaxation of boating is again in jeopardy.

As the popularity in boating has increased, so have the hazards on the waterways. Too few outdoors enthusiasts realize that the purchase of a boat is not the end to their responsibility—it is merely the beginning. And a Sunday spin on the bay demands the same respect and adherence to law as a Sunday drive on Virginia Beach Boulevard.

A boat owner is not compelled by law to be a licensed operator. He simply purchases a craft, gets behind the wheel and takes off. But there are laws, and there are courtesies, for the protection of all boaters and the ones who fall to recognize this obligation are as dangerous on the waterways as a drunken driver on the road. Each and every person on the water has a responsibility not only to the safety of himself and other boaters, but to his own environment as well.

The traffic becomes increasingly heavy on the city's waterways. And irresponsibility seems to grow with the number of boats.

It is frightening to see boats overloaded with unprotected passengers, or unsupervised children cavorting recklessly on board or operators pushing for excessive speeds or skiers carelessly drawn into the paths of the boats. Death rides with them. It is alarming to see boats anchored in channels, exposing themselves to the onslaught of traffic and shifting the responsibility of safety to other operators, and to fight the wakes of thoughtless operators who heed not the rules of safety and ignore the plight of others they place in jeopardy. Destruction of property rides with them, thriving on their stupidity.

It is disgusting to see the lack of concern Man has for the very God-given resource from which he derives so much pleasure...the beer cans, the paper sacks, the bottles, the usual overboard debris which will, in time, kill the marine life and cloud the beautiful waters. Pollution rides with them, struggling against the forces of nature to destroy God's gift to Man.

These are the Sunday Sailors. Or so they are called by those who love the water and the peace it offers. But sailors they are not, for sailors must know, and respect, the waters upon which they sail. And they are repulsed by the irresponsibility of ignorant show-offs.

The Power Squadrons are doing their bit to offset the hazards of knowledgeable boat operators by offering courses in water safety and boating procedures. The Beach Jaycees have launched a visual aid program to remind boaters of their obligations—"It's Your Bay—Help Keep It Clean" says a sign at Long Creek Bridge and another at Lesner Bridge adds "Have a Nice Day—Think Safety—Don't Litter". And the Police Department does its best to keep down the violations with its patrol boat.

But the real responsibility rests with the individual operator. His own personal concern for other people, his regard for their welfare and the protection of Man's environment are the only characteristics that will truly rise him above the lowly status of a Sunday Sailor.

LETTERS ARE WELCOME

The Virginia Beach Sun management believes that a newspaper should be the voice of the people. The only way they can be heard, however, is through the Letters to the Editor. The Sun encourages and welcomes letters from its readers and asks only that they be reasonably brief and to the point and that they be in good taste. Please mail your letters to the Virginia Beach Sun, 138 Rosemont Road, Virginia Beach, Va. 23452, we look forward to hearing from you.

lodge, about the inhospitality of one of your local motel owners.

On April 24, 1972 I arrived at the BEACON MOTEL, 3344 Page Avenue, Va. Beach, Va. 23451, and I paid in full for a planned three-day stay. At 9:20 a.m. the next morning, having learned of an emergency back home, I informed the owner that I had to cancel my reservations for April 25 and 26, and I requested a refund of $25.44. The owner rudely refused.

It was bad enough that my vacation was ruined, but it was simply inexcusable of this man to refuse a refund when I gave him more than ample advance notice of cancellation.

Since this was my first visit to Va. Beach, you can imagine the atrocious impression I received of your local hospitality. I would be very grateful, however, if you would counteract that impression by doing one of the following things:

(1) Please contact the owner of the Beacon Motel (Phone 464-9343), investigate my complaint and urge him, for the good name of the community, to grant me a refund.

(2) If he still refuses, please have him censured or take whatever punitive measures are within your rightful powers.

If I receive a satisfactory settlement, I shall make it a point to visit Va. Beach an average of at least once a year for the next several years.

Very truly yours,
Arthur Whelan
East Islip, N.Y.

(Editor's note: The Sun contacted Tom Lyons, president of the Virginia Beach Linkers, who said the organization polices its own members to prevent situations such as this but the motel involved here is not a member. Bob Lober of the City's Consumer Protection Bureau was then contacted and said the city would attempt to assist Mr. Whelan in solving this problem.)

Mind Your Money By Peter Weaver

Renting A Car

If you plan to rent a car for a vacation or business trip this summer, shop around. Rates vary by as much as $8 a day.

In my area, for example, Avis charges $22.50 to drive a large car 50 miles for one day. Dollar Car Rental charges only $17.50 (includes estimated cost of gas you buy) to drive the same car 50 miles.

But Avis and the other of the Big Three renters (Hertz and National) give a 20 per cent discount to a wide variety of customers including those who have the renters' own credit cards, government employees (federal, state, local), major credit card holders who are employed by, or belong to, approved businesses and organizations.

So with a 2 per cent discount Avis' charge of $22.50 comes down to only $17 which is competitive with Dollar Car's $17.50 rate. The Big Three renters sometimes don't tell you about these discounts. You have to pry them out.

The Big Three won't give discounts on little cars, but on these the rates are competitive with most local discounters. For one day's drive of 50 miles in a Pinto or Vega, Avis, Hertz and National charge around $12.50 to $13. Budget Rent-a-Car charges only $11 for the same cars but has a $200 deductible collision insurance clause which gives you less protection.

Dollar Car Rental charges only $8.50 to drive a Volkswagen 50 miles but there's a catch. You have to drive a "minimum" of 50 miles. If you drive much less or more than 50 miles, the price is about the same as the others.

There are special, all-inclusive, weekly rates where they give you unlimited miles or 1,000 miles. If you plan to drive long distances, these rates can save considerable money. Driving less than 350 miles in one week, however, won't save you any money and might even cost more than the regular weekly rate plus mileage.

To figure out which one of these deals is best in your area, estimate in advance how many miles you will be driving and then call some of the major car rentals and some discounters. They are located under Automobile Renting and Leasing in the phone book Yellow Pages.

Ask for the daily rate, the mileage charge, who pays for the gas and how much free collision insurance you get ($100 deductible or only $200). If you pay for the gas, figure your cost at 2 cents a mile for small cars, 3 cents for medium-size and 4 cents for big cars.

As for insurance, a $2-a-day optional charge will save you paying the $100 deductible if you damage the car. If you're planning some difficult driving in an unfamiliar traffic area, this insurance might be worthwhile. For an easy drive, you can save money but refusing this optional charge.

Before driving off in your rental car, be sure to check for possible mechanical defects and body dents (have them note the dents on a special form). Check the tires, lights, wipers, brakes, engine tune and air-conditioning. It's a good idea to look in the trunk to see if the spare is inflated or the back is missing. Test drive the car before embarking on a long trip.

The cheapest method of getting a car for a long trip is to sign up with an auto transport company that needs drivers to deliver customers' cars to various cities all over the country.

You drive someone else's car across country or to some resort area and you only pay for the gasoline. These companies, regulated by the Interstate Commerce Commission, give you from five to seven days to make the trip.

To get more information, look under Automobile and Truck Transporting in the phone book Yellow Pages. If your phone book doesn't have any listings, ask the operator to help you check listings in the nearest major city.

Before accepting one of these "transport" cars, be sure you know who pays for repairs and how the insurance works. Read the contract carefully. Check out the car and test drive it at freeway speeds before taking off.

Ervin For Mayor

To the Editor:

This is my first attempt at this kind of thing, but I feel so strongly about Reid Ervin being our mayor that I'm hoping this little bit will help. Perhaps others who feel as I do will follow suit. I've never known anyone who has stood so much opposition and stood fast for the betterment of the City of Virginia Beach.

Most sincerely,
Ann Randolph Peterson

Grateful For Kellam Story

Dear Mrs. Crig:

I really enjoyed the article you did on our model office at Kellam. The students were also very pleased. We thank you.

The SUN has always done a good job for us. We have perhaps 30 to 40 new subscribers just from our classroom during the year because of the articles you have done. I appreciate it. I sincerely feel that we don't hear enough of what the young people today do that is GOOD. All we seem to hear is the hippie, drug cult, etc., news. This I can do without. From working with young people as long as I have, I know that there are far more good ones than bad. You have done the community a service as well as us.

Sincerely yours,
(Mrs.) Judith A. Schaefer

Garden Club Sends Thanks

Dear Mrs. Crist,

I want to thank you very much for the news coverage you have given our Garden Club this past year.

We were fortunate enough to receive a number of awards from the Council and I'm sure your articles were a contributing factor, especially on our "HANDS" project.

Thanks again.
Sincerely,

Astrology

By

Ray Williams

Licensed Astrologer; offices in the Byler Bldg., Virginia Beach Blvd.

Dr. Arnold Lieger is a senior resident in psychiatry at the University of Miami's Medical School and, as reported in my first column, stated that there is a "scientifically sound relationship" between the phases of the Moon and the murder rate in Dade County, Florida. Dr. Lieber made this statement after he and his associate Dr. Sherin analyzed nearly 1900 murders. He further stated, "I feel that eventually we are going to show that any organism, human or animal, is an integral part of the Universe and responds to changes in it such as variations in the Solar cycle and Lunar cycle."

In the January 10, 1972 edition of Time magazine, in an article entitled BEHAVIOR, there is a report by the Sandia Laboratories of Albuquerque, New Mexico, with the formidable title, "Intriguing Accident Patterns Plotted Against the Background Natural Environment Features." This 4-page report states—that Astrologers have long claimed—"Accident rates and other human behavior is influenced by the Moon and Solar cycles and other natural phenomena."

Dianne (not her real name, of course) was one of my students. Over a period of months a very real friendship developed between her husband and myself. Approximately two years ago Dianne came into my office one afternoon, and from her restless mood I could tell that something was bothering her which she felt the need to talk about. I had checked her horoscope in my file a few days before, after consultations disturbed me and I welcomed this opportunity to go over them with her. During the casual conversation which followed, I told her that these configurations were building to a point where she was going to need to exercise all the reserve strength, which I knew she had, or she might find herself in such a nervous state that her health could suffer as a result.

Being a naturally happy person and one who was more than normally aware of her strengths and weaknesses, she did not accept the possibility of her condition getting beyond her control. She had been feeling more nervous than normal lately, she admitted, but was sure that she could handle it. Shortly after our talk, I moved to Florida and lost contact with her.

A year later, I heard that the situation had, indeed, gotten out of hand and that Dianne had ultimately felt the need for hospitalization and counseling. Fortunately, the planetary configurations were of a transitory nature and lately Dianne is beginning to show marked improvement. I am confident that before long she will be her natural self again.

This case is a perfect example of what can happen when planetary configurations begin to influence a person in a negative manner. The really sad part is that Dianne could have been helped to understand the influences and, under those circumstances, her condition need not have deteriorated as far as it did. Unfortunately, the only advice she received from well-meaning friends was to "get hold of yourself."

NOTE: When I received the rough draft of this column from my secretary there was a pencilled note at the bottom of the page asking, "Where was Dianne's husband during all this?" In reply—Dianne's husband, Bill, we'll call him, had the attitude about Astrology that so many men have—it is a pastime for women who have nothing more important to do and should not be taken seriously. I think that, because of this, Dianne never felt that she could discuss the nervousness and anxiety she felt with him—and attempted to cover it up. This worked for a time but the final result was much worse than if she had had the understanding and cooperation of the one she loved most.

Astrological counselling brings UNDERSTANDING! If we are aware of the celestial influences affecting us, we have a chance to deal with them. In fact, Understanding is the answer to the mysteries of life!

Response Very Heavy, Results Next Week

Response to last week's SUN SURVEY question has been very heavy; and the response is one of the most emotional in the history of the SURVEY. The question "Who do you prefer as the next Mayor of Virginia Beach?" proves that the majority of people in Virginia Beach are vitally concerned about the leadership in the City for the years to come.

A quick review of all responses seems to indicate that the two Councilmen are considered by the voters to be worthy candidates for the Mayor's office.

Indicate your choice, with or without comment, and mail it today. A full report and tally of the results will be in next week's paper. It should be very interesting!

"Keep Virginia Beautiful"

Windsor Oaks Wins First Place In State Contest

"We could hear the cheers all the way to the office," C.J. Kelton, Windsor Oaks Elementary School principal said, when he announced on the loudspeaker that the school had placed first in the "Keep Virginia Beautiful" statewide contest.

The whooping and the cheering was in indication of the unified effort and cooperation from the principal, the teachers and the students. "All the way down the line," Kelton said.

It was evidence, too, of the strong organizational ability of its chairman for three years, Mrs. Marion S. Reynolds, 7th grade teacher.

The contest involved 1,314 public and private elementary schools. Winning schools were selected for conducting the best litter-prevention beautification activities during the school year, as recorded in written reports, in the classroom, schoolwide projects, community action.

On Tuesday, Henry G. Lühring, Jr., a member of the board of directors of Keep Virginia Beautiful, Inc., sponsors of the contest presented a trophy to the school. It was its first win; the previous two years, it placed third and second.

A 500-word essay written by Kirsten Sloan, SCA president, with Mrs. Reynolds as advisor, was a prime factor in capturing the award.

Kirsten noted, in the essay, that Windsor Oaks had increased in enrollment with 400 additional students during the year. All were instilled with a desire to keep the natural wonders of the state free from litter and pollution.

She listed the achievements of the individual classes:

FIRST GRADE: Bulletin boards on pollution in the community; students were shown movies and filmstrips stressing responsibility for cleanliness in home and school; students encouraged to pick up litter around school; assigned jobs to keep the environment clean.

SECOND GRADE: Collected trash around schools. The class was given an assignment to clean up its yards at home. All classes studied air and water pollution — many posters were done. A field trip to Seashore State Park showed the children plants and wildlife representative of the area. Emphasis was placed on keeping public lands clean and free from litter and protecting these areas for all to enjoy.

THIRD GRADE: Discussed natural resources; bulletin boards and posters on how to save them. All classes joined the "Fight A Forest Fire Campaign"; enough Hunt's Foods labels were sent in to have seven trees planted in one of the state forests; bird feeders were made to hang on trees at home and school.

FOURTH GRADE: Discussion and posters about beautiful places to visit in Virginia; students picked up litter on school grounds; several students went boating and picked up litter on the water. They collected Hunt Food labels to plant more trees in the state forests; Campfire Girls collected trash at a City Park and made a city-wide poster and project display about ecology.

GRADE FIVE — Lobby showcase display about "Spring Clean Virginia." Students wrote to National Audubon Society for list of endangered species; made posters and displays, which were in local stores, concerning the dangers of litter and pollution. One class wrote letters to President Nixon expressing its concern for protecting our environment. The President replied, and the Environmental Agency sent information.

GRADE SIX: Collected glass for recycling; boys took part in Project Soar (Save Our American Resources); several neighborhood clean-up projects initiated by students; painted class trash cans red, white and blue.

GRADE SEVEN: Wrote compositions for Isaac Walton League, with extensive research on conservation practices in Virginia; Beach posters and studies concerning pollution and respiration; classes cleaned up the school grounds all during the year; on the annual trip to Richmond, the students were made aware of the beauties of the Capitol and the necessity for a strong anti-litter campaign.

SCOUTS: Windsor Oaks is a meeting place for several scout troops most of whom attend the school. Their accomplishments were listed:

Cub Scout Pack No. 495: Collected paper in the community for recycling. This project, entitled, "Recycling For a Cleaner Environment" was displayed at Scout Pack 172 at Tidewater Community College.

Brownie Troop No. 381 picked up litter in the community. Girl Scout Troop No. 328 planted a dogwood tree on the school grounds.

Girl Scout Troop No. 394 wrote letters to Virginia Beach Mayor Donald Rhodes concerning pollution. Many of the scouts went to Back Bay Wildlife Refuge to plant dune grass.

All troops participated in Project Soar, to clean up the beaches.

PTA sponsored a Spring Carnival on the school grounds. Litter barrels were placed in the area — cleanliness and anti-litter were enforced.

Smoke The Bear stressed fire's prevention in Virginia.

S.C.A. at Windsor Oaks sponsored a school-wide "Decorate a Litter Bag Contest". Winners from each grade level were selected and their entries were displayed in the lobby.

Music Honors

Marsha Wade Miller, daughter of John Wade, 517 White Oak Drive, and Michael Jackson Parker, son of Cmdr. and Mrs. J. K. Parker, 3509 Sea Gull Road, have been initiated into Pi Kappa Lambda honor society for full membership next year at East Carolina University.

Both are students in the school of music and were selected for their scholarship, musicianship, and service.

THEY'RE PROUD WINNERS—Contributing to the statewide award that Windsor Oaks Elementary School won in "Keep Virginia Beautiful" contest, were these representatives of each class who designed their own litter bags, and won first place in their respective classes in the "Decorate a Litter Bag" contest, sponsored by the school S.C.A. They are front row: Lyn Kraemer, 4th grade; Patty McCracken, 1st grade. Back row: Kenneth Radmussen, 5th grade; Billy Dean, 6th grade; Connie Bell, 3rd grade; Peggy Zingraff holding the winning bag of Diane Kelley, 7th grade, who is not in the photo; Eric Johnson holding a winning bag for his sister, Ruth Johnson, 2nd grade. What Do You Substitute For Love?

By Rev. Joyce Kramer

God is love, love is God. Love exists for you. Believe in it, expect it, act accordingly.

Due to our lack of understanding of the nature of love we often accept destructive substitutes. One may over-compensate through activities, through constant busy-ness and participation in "causes".

Over-eating is a substitute for love. This gives weight and balance to feelings of inadequacy and insufficiency, while at the same time adding proof in the indulger's mind that he really is not lovable.

Alcoholism or problem drinking artificially quiets emotional demons of the love nature so that they can be submerged, forgotten, or falsely satisfied.

The compulsion to mass money, properties, and fortunes often indicates a subconscious seeking for love. One may collect material riches and things to compensate for lack of mental, emotional, and spiritual riches.

Maintain an attitude consistent with love. Accept no false substitutes and you will experience the love that exists for you.

I GIVE THANKS FOR THE SPIRIT OF LOVE THAT EXPRESSES IN AND THROUGH MY LIFE.

'Southern Hemisphere Fiesta' Fun At Star Of The Sea

THE 7th GRADE HISTORY CLASS of Mrs. Mary Chase at Star of the Sea Parochial School participated recently in a "Southern Hemisphere Fiesta" at the school. They clothed themselves in costumes representing Africa and South America, prepared foreign dishes which everyone enjoyed, and performed folk dances. Some 100 parents and friends attended. They compiled the food recipes for their parents. Pictured at the left are Donna Valdis and Thomas Wolf arriving with their contributions and looking mighty pleased. To the right, Rosanne Murphy, Rita Barrace and Marguerite Dietz have a taste of the exotic food.

HERE AND THERE... Ed Laskin, minister of music at the Commodore Levy Chapel, Norfolk, is successfully bringing good music and voice discovery to young boys through the Virginia Boys Choir. Tuesday they performed at St. Gregory's Church for the Women's Club. Further, Ed says that big plans are ahead for the choir, which now numbers 20 — a neat figure, considering that this is baseball season and young boys and baseball games are somewhat synonymous.

Moreover, Ed Laskin is going to make singing lessons available to boys between 7 and 14. Primarily Ed will stress proper singing technique with the once a week, 45-minute lessons. He can be reached at 450 Fajita Road, Portsmouth. KUDOS to Col. E.L. Rowell (USA ret.) for his great contribution to the beautification of Red Wing Park. Acting strictly as a volunteer basis, he cultivates azaleas, of all varieties, which he gives to the park. So far, his score is 4,000 plantings.

ABOUT FOOD — The Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service says you should never prepare other foods on the same surface used to prepare meat and poultry without sanitizing that surface. Be particularly careful, it says, when handling foods that aren't cooked or are only partially cooked, such as salads.

KIMBERLY... the Cadillac of knitwear, says that knits can be tested for texture to determine whether to hang them or keep them folded in a drawer. If you can see through a garment, because of its lacy stitch, then it should be folded. Otherwise it should be hung and it won't drag out.

NEVER, NEVER Kimberly says, press a wool garment with an iron, and always have it dry-cleaned. Good polyesters can be washed like stockings with the same gentleness. Squeeze free of dripping water, lay the garment on a large bath towel on the kitchen table and pat the garment into the correct shape (best to measure it beforehand). Usually it will dry in about three hours.

SOUND OF MUSIC Memo to brides: Music is not essential to a reception, but it does add to a festive celebration. For quiet background music, pianist, guitarist or accordionist is perfect. If there is to be dancing, a trio or an orchestra will have all the guests on their feet.

Navy News

There will be Rock Cornish hen or jumbo fried shrimp on the menu when the Forrester Officers Wives meet at Little Creek Officers Club June 30 for dinner at 7 p.m.

Linda Cratch Weds Robert Smith, Jr.

The marriage of Miss Linda Anne Cratch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Edwin Cratch of the Beach to Robert Ernest Smith, Jr., took place June 3 at 3:30 p.m. in the Church of the Advent, Norfolk. Mr. Smith is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ernest Smith, Sr., of the Beach.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of candlelight peau de sole with an empire waist of silk organza. She carried a bouquet of white sweetheart roses, champagne carnations, and baby's breath. Deborah Jean Hayman of Norfolk served as the maid of honor wearing an orchid chiffon gown trimmed with lace and embroidered roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Jefferie Ann Markham and Miss Cynthia Lane Kosjer. Their dresses of candlelight and lavender chiffon were similar to the maid of honor's.

John F. Shoulders, Jr. served as best man. Ushers were Harold S. Spatz of Exton, Pennsylvania, Tom Clark of Athens, Georgia, and Stephen Cratch, brother of the bride.

After a reception at the Church Parish Hall, the couple left for a wedding trip to Nassau. They will live at 1015 Fleming Circle, Apt. 3, Virginia Beach.

The bride is a First Colonial High School graduate. She attended Chowan College and Princess Anne Business College. The groom graduated from John Hanley High School in Winchester and The Citadel.

What To Give The Bride?

A delightful American custom is that which permits brides to file their patterns for silverware, glassware, dishware and other aids to good homemaking with the store carrying them. With that information available to them, well-wishers have little trouble in their efforts to provide the newlyweds a gift to last a lifetime.

"It is a custom which, in one form or another could be put to wider use," observed Miss Katherine Habel, a Virginia Tech assistant professor and Extension specialist in clothing, textiles and related art in the College of Home Economics. "Brides can do their friends and family a real favor by indicating what they really want as wedding gifts. They could make the giving of gifts a lot more fun," Miss Habel suggested.

Generous people often go through turmoil in choosing wedding gifts. Often the gift is sent with fear that it may not be right. They find themselves asking themselves, "Did three other people send beverage sets? How many clocks will be sent? And will there be the usual extra carving set?"

"Such worries can't take the fun out of giving," asserted the home economist. "Why not register each bride's wants with the store. And then let family and friends know which stores and what items are really wanted. People are accustomed to the procedure for accessory home furnishings. It is a polite and diplomatic way to answer the often asked, 'What do you want for a wedding gift?'" counseled Miss Habel.

The furniture stores and department stores are willing to cooperate. They will make a note of the bride's selections and preferences for display to those trying to decide what to get for a wedding present. "It will help," said the furniture specialist, "to tell the name of the salesman to see regarding the brand name and style of the piece or pieces of the furniture the bride selected."

Angels Draft Paschall; His Jersey Is Retired

No number 10 will be seen on the football and baseball fields of Kempville High School next year, or anytime in the future. That number, after a long and illustrious career, jersey number ten has retired.

While active, number ten was worn by Billy Paschall, Kempville's all-around athlete, outstanding in every major sport. The 6'1" 170 pound star athlete wore number 10 while quarterbacking the football team and while leading his team to the State baseball championship last week.

Paschall's pinpoint accurate passes won many games for the Chiefs, and when he was tossing those footballs no opposing coach could relax — regardless of the score. If his receivers could catch, Paschall was capable of losing a touchdown with every pass thrown. During his high school career, many coaches rated Paschall as the state's top passer and a very strong running threat as well. He completed over half of his passes for over 2,500 yards while in a Chiefs uniform.

In baseball, Paschall has been called "the man with the golden arm." With a good assortment of pitches that almost always singled through the strike zone, Paschall averaged over a dozen strikeouts per game, walked very few, and went undefeated this year. His career was capped last week when he tossed a five-hitter to win the State Group AAA baseball title. Not only was Paschall the area's most respected hurler, he was also one of the area's most feared hitters. On the mound or in the batter's box, Paschall could win a game with almost every pitch.

The recipient of a full scholarship at the University of North Carolina next fall, Paschall is expected by UNC coaches to lead the University's football and baseball teams to more glories. The question is whether or not Paschall will attend UNC next fall.

On Tuesday, Paschall was one of the three players in Virginia drafted in the baseball major league draft. A ninth round pick by the California Angels, Paschall could very well sign with them if the offer is good enough. The education could always come later.

One of the greatest honors that can overtake an athlete is to have his jersey retired. Paschall became the first Kempville athlete to be so honored. There is no question but that he deserved it.

Edward Farrar

Edward Farrar-Fisherman

By Ellen Hall

Just looking at him, Edward appears to be like any other Virginia Beach Junior High School student. His long, dark hair hangs in his eyes. He wears the uniform of youth—a sweatshirt with "Sunshine" stenciled on the back and corduroy jeans hanging low on his hips. Walking with his hands in his pockets, he talks about the motorcycle he will get someday ("mini-bikes are too little") and his favorite teacher, Mr. Ryder ("He's nice").

But, unlike most 14-year old boys, Edward loves to fish, fish, fish. Not just now and then, but every day in the summer and every weekend in winter. His friend Chris Graviton goes along.

Edward has all of his own tackle. He buys it from other fishermen who "get tired of it because they never catch anything."

But Edward catches a lot. He's been fishing for three years from the Steel Pier and has caught roundheads, spot, bluefish, dogfish, trout and shad. He has also hauled in some pretty big shark, the largest weighing about 50 pounds.

Edward describes it: "We got him all the way to the end of the pier and took the hook out of his mouth. To do this, you hold him behind his head with your foot on his tail. When his mouth comes open, you take out the hook with pliers. Then we threw him back. I only like to catch sharks because they're the biggest things out there."

Edward's goal is to catch a channel bass weighing over 40 pounds. There is a citation for that size, and Edward wants to get one.

"You get your picture in the paper and a certificate to hang on the wall. I've never gotten one, but I think I will this year."

Sometimes, Edward catches something that comes in with the beach to make. He says these things in the wing with a three-prong hook. What does he do with them?

"I take the barbs off of their tails so they won't get the surfers. I was stung once by one, but I was lucky and my leg didn't swell up."

"Like most boys his age, Edward likes to go to movies and watch TV. He watches "Frasier" and "Book Line and Sinker" local fishing shows, but learns "nothing I don't know" from them.

Fishing on the Steel Pier is really Edward's thing. Not only is it quiet being out over the ocean, but he gets to talk to other fishermen, tourists, and surfers.

"I know a lot of fishermen," he says, "but they don't fish as much as I do."

His plans for this summer are to fish as much as he can. He may even work on a charter boat, because when he grows up, he would like to be a charter boat captain. That way, he can do the things he likes best—talk to people and, of course, fish.

So, if you see a happy youngster with a string of fish out on the Steel Pier this summer, say "Hi" to Edward. He'd love to trade fishing tales with you.

Sessoms Wins At Dragway

The street eliminator class at Virginia Beach Dragway was won by the Sessoms Brothers last Saturday night. From Portsmouth, the team had an elapsed time of 11.19 seconds and a speed of 123.8 miles per hour in a Corvette.

Roger Cabbott of Virginia Beach won the show event with an elapsed time of 15.15 and a speed of 83.7 miles per hour. Cabott was driving an Oldsmobile.

Y.C. Bailey won the top stock with his Chevy. Bailey had an elapsed time of 12.17 seconds and a speed of 106.3 miles per hour.

The Sixth Annual Tidewater Football Camp for boys ages 13 through 18 will hold a pre-registration Saturday between 9 a.m. and Noon at Barry Robinson High School. Camp directors Jerry Sazio and Bert Harrell will be on hand to answer any questions by prospective applicants as well as to take registrations for the one week camp starting June 19th.

Ed Herring of Virginia Beach has been named the Most Valuable Player on Chowan College's baseball team. The first baseman, who was selected by his teammates, also won the same award last season.

Herring, who has become known as a slick fielder, led the team in batting with a mark close to .400. The Chowan Braves, under Coach Jerry Hawkins, finished their season with a 17-10 record, losing the conference title in the last game of the season.

Volleyball Season Starts Saturday

Volleyball players from all over the state and from as far away as New York and New Jersey are expected in Virginia Beach Saturday for the first Two-Man Volleyball Tournament. The tourney is scheduled to start at 11 a.m. on Saturday, June 10th, at 66th Street and Atlantic Avenue. The weather over Memorial Day weekend caused cancellation of the two tournaments scheduled for May 28th and 29th. This Saturday's tournament will be the last home tournament until July 1st. Kempsville Wins State Championship

The Kempville Chiefs are the 1972 State of Virginia Group AAA Baseball champions. The Virginia Beach, Eastern District, and Eastern Regional Champion won the baseball crown with a 5-3 victory over Washington-Lee High School of Arlington last Friday night in Fairfax. The losers were the Northern District champs.

Billy Paschall went all seven innings for the win. Paschall struck out 13 batters, while giving up four walks and yielding five hits. After a shaky first two innings, in which Washington-Lee scored all three of their runs, Paschall found his stuff and pitched five more innings of scoreless baseball.

Timely hitting by the Chief powerhouses complemented the superb Paschall pitching. Chief powerhouses complemented the superb Paschall pitching. Chief batters socked ten hits off two Washington-Lee hurlers.

Three of the ten Kempville hits went for extra bases. Steve Hansen on Hauck, and Rodney Blake each socked a two-bagger. Hansen also had a single. Rick Blesie and Al Price had a single each, and Mel Rupert and Ken Patton hit two singles each.

Don Hauck scored the go-ahead run in the fifth inning. Hauck was on second with a double and Mel Rupert was on first with an infield single when Steve Hansen pounded a double to score Hauck with the winning run. An insurance run was added in the sixth inning when Ken Patton scored on a Rodney Blake double. Patton was on base by virtue of a single.

As a team the Chiefs batted .206 in their final two games. Hansen led all hitters with three hits in seven at-bats for a .429 average. Patton and Rupert hit a .375 average with three hits in eight trips to the plate. Blesie went two for seven for a .286 average, and Blake and Scarper were close behind with .250 averages with two hits in eight at-bats. Price and Paschall got one hit in seven trips to the plate for a .143 average, and Hauck went one for eight for a .125 batting average.

The Kempville championship gave Virginia Beach school three State Group AAA titles this year. The Oak Lakes won the title in 1971 when they won the State wrestling crown. Two weeks ago, Princess Anne won the second State championship for city schools—the State golf title. Then last Friday, Kempville made it three, winning all the marbles in taking the State baseball championship.

After winning the Eastern District championship, the Kempville Chiefs had three games to go for the State crown. First they met Southeastern District champion L.C. Norcross in the Eastern Regional semifinals, and Kempville won 6-3. The Chiefs then conquered the Peninsula District champion, Bethel, for the Regional title. The score was 8-1, with Bethel on the short end of the score. Then came the State semi-final game, pitting the Eastern and the Northwestern Regional champions. Kempville defeated the Amherst nine 5-4 to win a berth in the State championship game. A recap of each of the three games follows.

On Saturday night May 27th the Chiefs found themselves just two games away from the State baseball championship after they defeated Peninsula District champion Bethel for the Eastern Regional crown. The 8-1 Kempville victory dropped the strong Bethel entry in the 4 and 3-thirds innings. Paschall struck out eight, walked four, gave up five hits and three runs, one of which was unearned.

Rupert tossed 3 and 1-third innings in relief, allowing three hits and one run while fanning three Amherst sluggers. Fireballing Don Hauck entered the game with the score tied at 4-4, and he picked up the win for his one inning of relief work. Hauck gave up no hits or runs.

The Chiefs hammered eight hits off two Amherst hurlers, two of them for extra bases. Steve Hansen slammed one of the extra base hits for a double and a single in two at-bats. Ken Patton, Rick Blesie, Mel Rupert, Billy Paschall, and Rodney Blake had singles.

Ken Patton singled home the winning run in the bottom of the eighth inning. Steve Hansen scored the victory run. After Hansen walked and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt by Rick Blesie, Patton's single sent the Chiefs to Fairfax to face Washington-Lee High School for the State Group AAA title.

out of the State pennant race with a 1-4 record.

Don Hauck went all the way on the mound for pitching a two hitter while walking three and fanning five. The one Bethel run was unearned. Hauck also drove a run across the plate with a sacrifice fly.

Although Bethel largely silenced the big bats of Don Hauck, who went 0 for 3, and Billy Paschall, who went 0 for 4, the Chiefs pounded out seven hits. Three of the Chief's seven hits were for extra bases. Rodney Blake blasted a triple that drove in two runs, and Ken Patton drilled a triple to drive in a single runner. Steve Hansen hit a double for the victorious Chiefs. Mel Rupert and Rick Blesie had a single each, and Rick Scarper had two singles in four at-bats.

A night earlier, Kempville won its Region 3 semifinals game, defeating Norcross 8-0. Billy Paschall pitched up the 7th, pitching five innings, and allowing only one hit. Paschall's control was superb as usual, and he struck out seven and did not give up a single walk. Mel Rupert pitched the final two innings of the game, and he fanned two and allowed only one hit.

Kempville hitters tagged two Norcross hurlers for eight hits, all singles except for Don Hauck's three-bagger. Rodney Blake and Ken Patton hit one single each, and Rick Blesie and Steve Hansen had two each.

The Eastern Regional title gave Kempville the right to meet Northwestern Regional champion Amherst in the State semi-final "playoff" game. Although the Chiefs defeated the Amherst nine 5-4 the victory was one of the toughest of the year.

Billy Paschall started the game for the victorious Chiefs, but he was lifted in the fifth

With the first beautiful weekend of the resort season now history, let us not let the warm weather, calm seas, and the pleasant smell of salt spray take our minds away from boating safety. According to Coast Guard reports the number of deaths from boating mishaps is still rising despite many efforts by boating safety agencies on both the state and federal level. According to the 1971 boating statistics, 1583 persons lost their lives in boating accidents during 1971, an increase of over eleven percent from 1970. In addition, the amount of property damage in 1971 was over nine million dollars, up almost one million dollars from 1970. At the same time, boat registrations increased only 7.6 per cent. Many of these lives could have been saved had the people involved been more aware of the basic boating safety procedures. 72 per cent of the fatalities resulted from capsizing, falling overboard, flooding or sinking. This 72 per cent could have been almost completely erased with common sense and by closely following safety procedures.

A sports car rally and an autocross are scheduled for this weekend. A Ladies' Night Rally, with pre-registration only, will begin with a drivers' meeting at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Norfolk at 7 p.m. June 10th. Sponsored by the Tidewater Sports Car Club, there is a $3 entry fee. Register by calling Beulah Mitchell at 423-3928. On June 11th, Autocross Number One will get underway at Mercury Mall Shopping Center in Hampton. The $2.50 entry fee can be paid at the noon-3:30 p.m. registration held at the Mall. SEVCO members pay $2, and a dollar discount will be given to cross-creekers and 60-milers. Call Robert Ealey at 438-7824 for more information. Sponsored by the Peninsula Opel Competition Club, competition will be limited to eighty cars, but cross-creekers and 60-milers will run before dark whether or not the limit is filled.

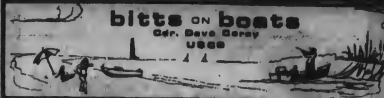

Safe Boating Series On TV

The Virginia Beach Power Squadron announced this week

that their national organization is sponsoring "Boating With The Power Squadron," a series of ten televised shows for boating instruction. The series will be particularly helpful to those pleasure-craft owners who have been unable to take the free boating classes offered at various locations by the United States Power Squadron and the Coast Guard.

Televised by WAVY-TV 10, the colorcasts will begin June 14th at 1 p.m. and will continue at the same time every week until the series is completed. A second showing for those unable to watch the Wednesday showings, will begin on Sunday, June 18th, at 9 a.m. and will continue until completion. The first show will feature members of the Virginia Beach Power Squadron.

The programs are as follows: 1-An Introduction to Boating; 2-Small Boat Handling; 3-Safety Afloat; 4-Equipment, Government Regulations, and Rules of the Road; 5-Aids to Navigation; 6-Basic Piloting and the Compass; 7-River Piloting with Marine Electronics; 8-Engine Maintenance; 9-Marine Weather; and 10-Let's Go Boating. Each show will feature two USPS instructors with lectures, teaching aids, training films, and slides.

GOOD FOR LIFE!

Did you know that you are required by law to have personal flotation devices on board your boat? The law requires every boat whether powered or not to have on board one Coast Guard approved personal flotation device in serviceable condition and readily available for each person, whether on board or afloat. For boats of less than 40 feet not carrying passengers, for hire, the device may be a life preserver, buoyant vest, buoyant cushion, ring buoy or special purpose water safety buoyant device. The required devices on boats of 40 feet to not more than 65 feet must be either life preservers or ring buoys.

Why? In 1971 there were 1472 drowning victims in boating accidents throughout the United States. 46 per cent of them were known to have had personal flotation devices available. 17.5 per cent were known not to have had personal flotation devices available and for 35.5 per cent it is not known whether or not they were available. 496 of those who drowned did have personal flotation devices available but did not use them or used them improperly.

In order to enjoy "safely afloat" you should be sure that you have the necessary number of Coast Guard approved personal flotation devices. An approved personal flotation device is one which meets the safety standards established by the United States Coast Guard and will be marked accordingly. No other devices will satisfy the legal requirements.

Types of personal flotation devices which the Coast Guard has approved are:

a. Life Preserver - These devices are most often of kapok type, but are also made of other material. This term is used technically to describe a personal flotation device that is worn like a jacket or bib.

b. Buoyant Vest - Are manufactured in several designs of kapok, fibrous glass or other buoyant material. This is the horse-collar type and is worn like a bib.

c. Buoyant Cushion - These devices are various buoyant materials in a variety of sizes, shapes, and colors. They are fitted with straps to assist in tossing and to provide a handhold. They are designed to be grasped. They ARE NOT designed to be worn.

d. Ring Buoy - This device is a circular type of the familiar life saver shape fitted with a grabber to permit a person to grasp the device. It is made of cork, balsa wood or uncellular plastic foam.

e. Special Purpose Devices - These devices are made in many styles depending on their intended purpose. Some examples are hunter's vests, water ski jump vests, racing vests, and flotation jackets.

Take care of your personal flotation devices and they will take care of you. Do not use your devices for cushions unless they were designed as cushions, and make sure that they are readily available in case they're needed. Examine your personal flotation devices now and see if they are what you should have aboard, both in numbers and in Coast Guard approved styles. And be sure everybody in your boat knows how to use the personal flotation devices you have aboard your boat.

WHAT ELSE? The information above, if taken literally, would insure that the boatman meets the legal requirements. But many of us involved in boating safety feel that there is more to it than that. And the figures will support that! For example, what good is a personal flotation device when it is not worn? All will have to agree that it is about as much good as an auto seat belt which is not used. Moreover, the personal flotation device that is not READILY ACCESSIBLE, might just as well not exist. Ask any person who has fallen overboard or has been in a small boat when it capsized. And most of the drownings happen as a result of one of these actions.

To play it most safely, therefore, all children would wear personal flotation devices at all times when underway. If there are elderly persons or non-swimmers of any age in the boat, they should be encouraged to do likewise.

Two Drown In Boating Mishap

A boating accident on Lake Smith last Saturday night claimed the lives of two 17-year-old Virginia Beach youths.

Police officials say Mark Andrew Wendt, Odessa Drive, and Tony Cannon, Doewood Court, drowned when an outboard motor boat overturned.

William J. Cooper, 18, Fawnwood Drive, managed to safely reach shore and escaped serious injury.

According to investigators the trio had borrowed the boat for an outing on Lake Smith. The motor reportedly was of greater power than the boat was designed for, and the craft overturned during a turn at high speed throwing all occupants overboard.

The bodies of Wendt and Cannon were recovered by the Chesapeake Beach Volunteer Rescue Squad during dragging of the lake about 45 minutes after the 11 p.m. incident.

Ervin Questions Appeal Decisions

City Councilman F. Reid Ervin Monday questioned standards being used by the City's Zoning Board of Appeals in granting variances.

Ervin indicated he is primarily concerned with variances granted to permit the erection of signs and - or billboards, as well as the use of lots in the city.

Most of the variances, according to Ervin, are being granted on the grounds that denial would place the applicant under undue hardship. He said, "Hardships are not being proven before the Board," and it appeared to him the question is, "Do we want to assure that hardship cases will be substantiated?"

Ervin indicated he had evidence that "...in some cases lot variances involve up to 20 feet." He added, "Some people are building on lot lines without the required set back."

Councilman Robert B. Cromwell said he felt "...the City should thoroughly review all applications prior to their hearing before the Board."

Ervin also questioned whether the City was being properly represented in the hearings through Pat Janacek, City Zoning Enforcement serving as an advisor to the Board. He also wondered Janacek could not possibly become involved in conflict of interest through consideration of the appeals.

These possibilities appeared remote when placed before Janacek. As for properly representing the City's position in considering appeals he said, "Needless to say I am placed in an awkward position in such cases but do not believe I cannot properly represent the City."

On the possibility of conflict of interest Janacek said, "I was a full member of the Board I can see the possibility of conflict of interest as a result of my position with the City, however since I serve only in an advisory capacity, without authority of final decision on appeals, I do not believe his possibility exists."

Funds Approved To Advance Local Airport

The City Airport Study Committee won City Council approval Monday of a request to finance a special consultant to represent the resort city in federal hearings concerning establishing a general aviation airport in the resort city.

The consultant would represent the City next month in Federal Aviation Agency hearings concerning the clearing of air space patterns to permit location of such a facility in Virginia Beach.

Council authorized an appropriation of $4,000 for retention of the consultant and preparation of necessary material to substantiate the City's plans during the hearing.

A. R. Mailhes, representing the CASC, told Council the planned sit of the airport is adjacent to Princess Anne Road opposite the Back Bay Postal Substation.

Mailhes presented Council with a letter from James P. Sadler, CASC Chairman, which pointed out "The only concern to establishment of a general aviation airport at Back Bay has come from NAS Oceana. The Airport Committee has been advised by competent authority that practical solutions are available which would result in some minor modifications of Oceana's air space patterns without any significant interruption of their operations."

Mayor Donald E. Rhodes reminded Council of one less discussed benefit such an airport would provide for Virginia Beach, that of a revenue benefit through taxes and storage fees for private aircraft.

Rhodes said he had been informed by spokesmen at Norfolk Regional Airport that "...60 percent of private planes housed at the Norfolk facility are owned by pilots in Virginia Beach. These pilots would like to have planes in Virginia Beach, and Norfolk would like to see them moved elsewhere."

Drinking Time Extended

Members of the Chamber of Commerce, Innkeepers Association, and Restauranters Association won City Council approval Monday of a resolution to extend time limitations on serving of alcoholic beverages in Virginia Beach.

The resolution called for serving of such beverages until 2 a.m. as opposed to the present

1 a.m. limitation, and was based on an actual time difference under the existing Daylight Savings Time system.

Such a move would also align the resort city with alcoholic beverage service now available in nearby areas such as the city of Norfolk.

Before such service will become a reality however the City must obtain formal approval from the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. This is not expected to create any difficulty since the SABCB has in the past received such requests with favor.

If approved the service would remain in effect only during the effective period of Daylight Saving Time.

No matter which new Audi you choose you still get 7 cars.

Every one of the Audis you see below has a lot in common with 7 of the finest cars in the world.

1. They all have the same type of steering system as the racing Ferrari.
2. They all have the same type of brakes as the racing Porsche.
3. They all have front-wheel drive like the Cadillac Eldorado.
4. They all have independent front suspension like the Aston Martin.

5. They all have an interior that bears a remarkable resemblance to the Mercedes-Benz 280 SE.

6. They all have just about the same headroom and legroom as the Rolls-Royce Silver Shadow.

7. They all get the same kind of expert service as a Volkswagen.

Now we'd like to tell you the difference between each one of our models.

Our Audi 100LS is the car you've heard so much about. Well, this year we gave it a larger engine as well as a better ventilation system.

Our two other Audis are completely new models.

There's the Audi 100 which doesn't cost quite as much as our 100LS because it isn't quite as fancy. But like we said, it has the same outstanding features as some of the world's most expensive cars.

And there's the Audi 100GL. It's got a vinyl roof, a center console, tinted windows and an automatic transmission—all as standard equipment. So naturally, it costs a little more than the other Audis.

The Audi 100, the Audi 100LS, the Audi 100GL.

The Audi
It's a lot of cars for the money.

Chesapeake College Honors Four Students

Four Chesapeake College students from Norfolk and Virginia Beach have been honored by a faculty committee for their contributions to the college and their fellow students.

Special awards for citizenship, leadership and scholarship have been presented to the four students. The awards are the first of their kind given to students in the six-year history of the independent, two-year college.

The four students honored are Keith M. McGurt of Norfolk for leadership, George L. Getrige of Virginia Beach for scholarship, and Virginia Beach students Steffi G. Berger and George Vanlandingham for citizenship.

Assisted by recommendations from all faculty members, the committee appointed by president Allan W. Mitchell chose the four from among 250 students. Committee members Miss Gloria Grant of Norfolk and Mrs. Emma Jean Westcott of Virginia Beach, history professor Mark Fleischer of Virginia Beach, and athletic director John Meyerhoff of Chesapeake.

Long Battle Ends; No Apts.

Thalia Wayside Incorporated apparently lost a three-and-a-half year battle Monday in efforts to construct a large multi-family and commercial development on property adjacent to Virginia Beach Boulevard.

The defeat resulted when City Council voted to uphold the revocation of a use permit originally issued in October 1968 to construct 400 multi-family apartment units.

Some 78 acres, is located approximately one block east of Thalia Road on the north side of Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Attorney Thomas Broyles, representing Thalia Wayside Inc., requested Council to overturn the revocation and reinstate the use permit.

During a discussion of the matter several councilmen pointed to the fact that in three-and-a-half years the only visible construction on the property to date has been a small on story building, which has become dilapidated.

Broyles defended Thalia Wayside's actions by saying a lengthy period of time had been required to complete financing of the project, and the project was now ready to be offered for bids.

Council's review of the matter indicated a number of extensions on the use permit had been granted, however due to the lack of physical evidence of intentions to complete the project the use permit was revoked last month by the city's bureau of Building Inspection and Permits. This review also indicated the building permit had also been revoked for similar reasons.

In response to a request into the legal aspects of revoking a use permit City Attorney J. Dale Bimston cited contents of the city code which showed that if building activities on a project ceases for a six month period the use permit shall be revoked.

Bimston also indicated that a review of the building permit appeared to justify a lack of showing cause for any further extension of the use permit.

Broyles again defended Thalia Wayside by saying no requirements had been violated at any time. He added, "At no time has six months passed when action wasn't taken to show cause to proceed."

When Mayor Donald H. Rhodes asked what had been done to keep the use permit active, Broyles produced evidence of checks issued by Thalia Wayside to subcontractors which he viewed as substantiating work. Rhodes countered by pointing to lack of evidence of physical work on the project.

Councilman Robert B. Cromwell asked Broyles, "What assurance do we have today your client is going to proceed any more rapidly than in 1968?"

Broyles requested Council condition renewal of the use permit by stipulating Thalia Wayside complete one building of the project, consisting of four units, within six months, and deposit a performance bond with the City to assure project completion.

Councilman Dr. Clarence A. Ferrill interjected, "They (SDWI) brought the charges, why don't they do the investigating?"

Councilman F. Reid Ervin suggested, "Why don't we pressure SDWI to file a complaint." He added, "These allegations are serious enough not to be ignored. The SDWI is not lacking credentials, therefore there must be some truth to the allegations."

Rhodes repeated his earlier position, "We need clarification from the Attorney General as to where we can go from here."

In airing the situation during Council's formal session representatives of an organization known as "JAIL" (Justice Among Inmates Locally) called for City Council to activate its own investigation into the jail, make a study of what happens to inmates in the jail, and determine why some remain in the City Jail for lengthy periods of time.

The group pointed to overcrowded and substandard conditions of the jail, with no rehabilitative programs for those confined there. They classified the jail as "...more than a temporary" holding facility. The average stay there is in terms of months, and some offenders are confined up to a year."

On the point of lengthy confinements Rhodes recommended "...consulting with attorneys as to how long some people remain in jail, and especially receive input from those attorneys who handle criminal matters."

Ervin suggested, "perhaps we need legislative changes in the State Code which permits stronger local control over jail. He added, "We intend to find out if these allegations are true."

Council decided to take three steps in clarifying the situation at City Jail: To request the Commonwealth's Attorney to seek within one week an opinion from the State Attorney General as to where responsibility over the SDWI to assist in a more in-depth investigation of allegations concerning the City Jail; and request the Commonwealth Attorney to determine in the interim if there is anything he can legally do locally concerning the allegations at the jail.

Rhodes raised the question of seeking a clarification as to how far the City can legally go in pursuing the matter."

Councilman Robert S. Cromwell pointed out, "Sheriff Marr is elected by the people and not appointed by the Council, therefore I'm concerned with what legal authority we have. If nothing else the SDWI has qualified personnel, let them come down for 30 to 60 days to investigate. The Council, people of the City and Sheriff Marr want this situation clarified."

Rhodes suggested a clarification of the law from the State Attorney General "as to where the responsibility lies, and if the SDWI will send a man here to assist in further investigation."

At this point Mayor Donald H. Rhodes raised the question of seeking a clarification as to how far the City can legally go in pursuing the matter."

'Home Away From Home' Opens

Col. L.R. Hutson, Commanding Officer at Fort Story, turned the Armed Forces Hospitality House keys over to Rev. John H. Jordan, Jr., Rector of Galilee Episcopal Church, Monday morning to signal the opening of the "Home Away From Home" in the resort area.

Located at 18th Street and Artie Avenue, Hospitality House is a non-profit organization operated by volunteer workers to provide recreational facilities for servicemen.

Time and weather had been hard on the structure. A joint Army-Navy operation was initiated to renovate the exterior of the City-owned building. The Commanding Officers of Fort Story, Ocean Naval Station, Little Creek Naval Amphibious Base, and the Fleet Anti-Air Warfare Training Center. Dam Neck pooled their resources for the renovation. The Commanders of the Naval installations provided the needed materials, and the Commanding Officer of Fort Story provided the labor detail, transportation, and technical supervision.

Under the supervision of SSG John R. Hill, men from the 461st Transportation Company at Fort Story renovated and repainted the exterior of the building. During the busy summer season, the gleaming white building will be open from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 to 9 p.m. on Saturday, and after church to 9 p.m. on Sunday.

Free to all servicemen and servicewomen, the Hospitality House will offer color television, ping pong, pool, will have song feats and Sunday cookouts (4 to 7 p.m.), and will have stationary and tables for writing letters.

The classes are directed by Charles W. Jackson, swimming coach at ODU, and his wife Christina, swimming coach at the College of William and Mary.

The program is divided into two sessions, each enrolling 200 students. The first session begins June 19 and ends July 14, and the second session begins July 17 and ends Aug. 11. Both sessions offer classes from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m., 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., 1 to 2 p.m., and 2 to 3 p.m.

"There is a six-to-one pupil-teacher ratio, and every Friday is visitors' day," Jackson said. "Parents can come and see their children progress, and they can consult with the instructor."

"You learn according to individual ability," Mrs. Jackson added. "There is a month of instruction entailing 30 lessons, and with classes over that length of time, advances can be made."

The swimming courses are offered through the Bounty Program in the University's Division of Continuing Education. The program is open to the public, and the beginning age is seven years although individual ability will be considered in a younger child. Vacancies remain at 2 p.m. in the first session, and at 11:30 a.m., 1 p.m. and 2 p.m. in the second session.

An innovation in this year's program, several grants are available for each family to cover the $17 tuition. For further information, contact the Division of Continuing Education at 489-8000, ext. 276.

Libraries Show Children's Films

The Children's Film Series, sponsored by the Children's Department of the Virginia Beach Public Libraries, will present nine new features this week.

"Twice Two," "The Story of Poisonous Snakes," and "Big Lighthouse, Little Lighthouse" will be shown Friday at 2 p.m. at the Windsor Woods branch.

Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Virginia Beach branch, "Millions of Cats," "Animal Life at Low Tide," and "Hallstones and Halibut Bones, part II" will be featured.

"Lady of the Light," "Alexander and the Missing Headlight," and "Corral" will be shown at the Beach branch at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

Walker Attends Marketing School

L. Wirt Walker, assistant vice-president of People's Bank of Virginia Beach, is presently attending the School of Bank Marketing in Boulder, Colorado. The school includes two weeks of classes running from May 29th through June 9th.

During the coming year, Walker will be required to complete a number of projects for the course to receive a thesis. He will graduate next year after another two weeks of classes in Boulder.

Walker has been with People's Bank for more than two years and has a background of 16 years in banking.

Unreported Taxes From 1958 To 1968

According to Internal Revenue Service, State Corporation Commission, and federal tax court sources three top officials of Terry Corporation of Virginia are involved in the alleged failure to pay some $5.6 million in back income taxes and penalties.

The officers, based on SCC records, are Terry Corporation President Emilio Olivieri, of Flushing, N. Y., and Corporation Senior Vice-Presidents Frederick Mopolitano and Horace A. Cistola, both of Virginia Beach. Records also identify Cistola as Corporation Secretary.

Their involvement, according to IRS officials, results from 59 Virginia Beach business firms and individuals, plus two persons in Flushing, N. Y., allegedly failing to report certain taxable income during the 10-year period of 1958 and 1968.

IRS authorities said in each of the 41 cases, taxpayers were served by IRS last September 28 or 30, after a lengthy investigation, with a "statutory notice of deficiency which constitutes a determination by the district director of IRS that the taxpayers, in this instance, owe the IRS a specific amount of tax." The source also indicated the notices were accompanied by a letter indicating each of the taxpayers had 90 days to petition the tax court for an appeal of the IRS decision. Records indicate petitions have been filed on behalf of each of the 41 taxpayers concerned.

The information came to light in the Commerce Clearing House, Inc.'s 1972 edition of the Tax Court Reporter, dockets, petitions, and index-digest.

This source listed the taxable income as monies allegedly derived from such transactions as disallowed business expenses; unreported income from land sales; unreported commission incomes; unreported receipts from interest payments; attempts to report ordinary income as capital gains; unreported income from dividends; and diversion of corporate funds for personal use.

Information published by Commerce Clearing House, Inc., identified the Virginia Beach taxpayers appealing the IRS decisions to federal courts, the amount of unpaid taxes and penalties allegedly owed, and taxable income years as:

Village Lumber Co., $71,968.84, 1958 to 1963; Etna Construction Corp., $7,442.90, 1962 and 1963; Southern Equipment Rental Inc., $32,358.55, 1963, 1965, 1966 and 1968; Terry Builders, Inc., $1,097,466.90, 1959 to 1966; Penbroke Realty Corp., $21,754.59, 1962 to 1964; Orange Realty Corp., $13,306.73, 1959 to 1962; and Olden Realty Corp., $11,579.33, 1959, 1960 and 1963.

Also, Orlando Realty Corp., $32,069.62, 1959, 1960, and 1962 to 1964; Armon Realty Corp., $52,195.28, 1959 to 1963, and 1966; Armon Olivieri, $37,557.58, 1958 to 1961; Armon and Maria Olivieri, $484,180.77, 1962 to 1968; Richard Olivieri, $6,035.25, 1961 to 1963; Richard and Maureen Olivieri, $52.48, 1958.

Also, Fair Realty Corp., $15,096.12, 1960, 1961 and 1964; Faith Realty Corp., $25,651.19, 1958, 1960, and 1961 to 1964; Falcon Realty Corp., $32,311.69, 1959 to 1964; Franklin Realty Corp., $24,571.72, 1958, 1960, 1961, 1963 and 1964; Frederick Realty Corp., $19,267.57, 1959, 1960, 1963 and 1964; and Freepart Realty Corp., $19,945.03, 1958 to 1963.

and 1966; and Terry Construction Co., Inc. $896,433.21, 1958 to 1966.

Also, Michael A. Cistola, $54,348.01, 1959 to 1963, and 1966; International Concrete Corp., $132,594.85, 1958 to 1963, and 1966; Oriole Realty Corp., $19,726.80, 1960 to 1963; Octavius Realty Corp., $4,494.75, 1958 and 1963; Ember Realty Corp., $35,727.36, 1959, 1960, and 1962 to 1964; Emil Realty Corp., $49,003.17, 1959, 1960, and 1963 to 1966.

Also, Echo Realty Corp., $31,593.96, 1959, 1960, and 1962 to 1964; Ohm Realty Corp., $24,362.04, 1958, 1959, 1961 to 1964, and 1966; Octogen Realty Corp., $29,582.19, 1958, 1959, and 1961 to 1964; and Eagle Realty Corp., $14,785.43, 1959 to 1964.

A preliminary search of records thus far available failed to indicate any existence at the present time of several of the above listed business firms.

The two persons in Flushing, N.Y., allegedly involved in this matter were identified by the Commerce Clearing House, Inc.'s, the amount of unpaid taxes and penalties allegedly owed, and taxable income years, as Emilio and Clara Olivieri, $234,519.90, 1960, 1963 and 1966; and Emilio Olivieri, $77,221.48, 1961 and 1962.

Commerce Clearing House, Inc., listed Montgomery Knight, Jr., et al, Virginia National Bank Building, Norfolk, Va., as attorney for each of the above taxpayers, and indicated motion for an appeal hearing in federal tax courts for each was filed last December.

IRS authorities said notice of their action, issuance of "a statutory notice of deficiency" and accompanying letters outlining appeal rights, have been filed with the U. S. Tax Court in Washington, D.C. These authorities also stated the taxpayers counselor has requested the matters be aired in the Washington, D.C., and this request has been agreed to. Thus far however, no date has as yet been set for hearing of any of the cases. Indications are no such scheduling will occur for at least several more months.

Outreach: They Mean Business

BY HELEN CRIST

Actually, you'd probably say that I belong to that nebulous chunk of the population referred to as "the establishment."

The thought was never more acute than the morning last week when I slowly mounted the brick red steps of the spiral stairway at the rear of 2022 Atlantic Avenue, to the second-floor office of Outreach Center. My assignment, really, was to photograph some of the young women of the Colonial Circle of the King's Daughters as they made a donation to the center. Good enough. But with each step a disturbing thought struck...there's a story here and I know absolutely nothing about it. How, in fact, could I establish rapport with this group whose purpose, I knew, was to combat drug abuse?

I wasn't really tuned in to the problem. Mine was the "get tight-get bombed" generation. Alcohol was the big deal.

But wait a minute. Wasn't this coping out too—just like the kids today with the drugs? Where's the difference? Escape from reality, euphoria...instant pleasure...easy out for problem solving?

I turned left at the head of the stairs. Intriguing drawings on the wall, I note. Furniture a bit battered, springs sagging in the chair and sofa.

Pretty brunette secretary Lois Hill brings Vernon Wayne Orton to the waiting room. He's assistant director-social worker. Nice young fellow, black, moves quickly. We go back to his office for an interview.

His credentials, I note from his resume, are impressive...graduate of Virginia State College, with a major in sociology, minor in psychology; graduate work, Virginia Commonwealth University, School of Social Work, Richmond.

"Just got this new desk today," Orton says, very pleased. Looks nice. "Seems as if you could use some draperies at these windows," I observe.

"We could," he says. "We could also use volunteer help too—for the Hot Line, counseling."

Lois comes in and sits on the desk—then Susan Davis, red hair, blue eyes, joins her. A slinking feeling warns me, as the three of them fasten their eyes on me, that now's the time for rapport...my establishment is showing, I strongly suspect.

The inane question: "Why do the kids take drugs?" Immediate response: "Boredom, loneliness, fear, maybe," Orton says. "It's the symptomatic of deeper problems—family discord maybe."

Lois then: "People our age and younger are so used to being entertained." Instant enlightenment. I reason... television, a big culprit.

For Susan it was boredom. She crosses her legs, encased in blue jeans and starts talking. "I came here five years ago with two guys—hitch-hiked from Seattle."

"Why?" "I was extremely attached to my family, and it came to the point where I needed to make a break and live my own life."

She'd had over a year at the University of Washington. "What about drugs?" "I was an LSD freak. It wasn't the same stuff that the kids get now. It was pure—wasn't cut then and it was pretty strong."

She held a job as bank teller—would come down from a high and report to work on Monday morning. During these periods, however, she was non-ambulatory, visual perception altered.

"It frightened me but it was very interesting." Boredom. She struck out then with the two men, supposedly for New York. In Wyoming, they told her it was too hot in New York—they'd better try for Virginia Beach.

"I'd never heard of it—and I refused, but they said they'd leave me right there if I didn't go."

Once here, she found work at the Leather People, a business on 17th Street, now defunct. But she was off drugs—liver and kidney complications had set in. "Besides," she said,

"when I came here there just weren't any drugs around at the time."

"What about now?" "Unanimous agreement.... There's a definite problem here now. Yes, I would say it's on the upsurge," Orton said.

Susan worked for a while as a nurse's aide at the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. "I've always been interested in medicine," she said. "My original plan was to go into nursing."

But she was bored with externals, and she was searching for inner peace, for answers. And I thought...isn't that what everyone, in the final analysis, is looking for? Who are we...where did we come from...where are we going...a longing for the Truth about life?

At any rate, Susan became acquainted with the Association for Research and Enlightenment. It was there, that she discovered that inner peace. Over a three month period, under the direction of Eula Allen, who taught lessons on Creation, correlating it with the Bible, and through Edgar Cayce's readings, she found her answers.

She also met her husband, Doyle Davis, nephew of Mrs. Gladys Turner, Edgar Cayce's secretary. Susan's husband is a carpenter at Sandbridge, and they live, quite happily now, at Creeds.

Rapport—it was there. I thought to myself that here was someone who could be of invaluable help to those hooked on drugs.

The Center made sense...the people there made sense...let's hope, I thought, that they're allowed to operate without interference.

Orton, enthusiastic, said, "We help people to help themselves."

"Any opposition from surrounding business people?" "None whatsoever," he replied. "This is geared toward short-term crises—as opposed to long-term treatment. Those cases are handled elsewhere after referral."

There's no sleeping at the Center—no hanging around. They mean business. They're out to help.

Just problem-solving and restoring self-respect and giving back confidence...and lots of just plain listening.

"It's surprising how problems solve themselves just by talking about them. And no one should be ashamed to ask for help," Orton said. "In fact, it's a good healthy sign when a person does just that."

I gathered up my note pad and camera and went through the hall to the stairway.

I walked down the steps again, but with a different feeling this time. It's good, I thought, this place is good...those people are going to help.

Outside, the sun sparkled like diamonds on the ocean...the business of living was going on...the world seemed clean and exciting...Please God, let the young people find it so.

What Outreach Is

Outreach Center, an arm of the Atlantic Mental Hygiene Center, was established by the City of Virginia Beach. It officially opened April 10 at 2022 Atlantic Avenue. Its purpose is to combat drug abuse.

—Prior to opening, there was an intensive training period for the staff and volunteer workers. Dr. Ann Karnitschnig is director of the program. Her assistant director-psychiatrist social worker is Vernon Wayne Orton. The staff also includes Stan Fouer, hotline coordinator; Susan Davis, clinic coordinator; Alice Remigallo, information coordinator; Lois Hill, secretary.

Hotline, counseling is available seven days a week, from 7 a.m. to 12 midnight every day except Friday and Saturday, when the hours are 7 a.m. to 1 a.m.

Counseling service is available from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Operating in cooperation with the local center is the Rubicon therapeutic community in Richmond. In April, five intake interviews for Rubicon were conducted locally, four of which were in the Norfolk or Virginia Beach jails. Three of the interviews have since resulted in admission to Rubicon.

The following services are provided at Outreach Center: +Medical screening, diagnosis and counseling for associated health problems and treatment for minor medical problems on an outpatient basis.

+Counseling on an individual and group basis for those desiring to avoid or overcome drug problems and psychological screening for emotional problems.

+Referral to other community agencies including employment, vocational rehabilitation and public health and follow-up action by program personnel to insure every possible avenue of assistance is looked into.

+Emergency information and referral employing a "hotline" telephone service which also will serve as one source for initial contact with the patient.

'We've Lost Touch', Says Retiring Teacher

Miss Woodhouse

A Virginia Beach elementary teacher who has taught in the same school for 42 years will end her 43-year teaching career this month and devote her time to gardening, refinishing old furniture and traveling.

Lillie Belle Woodhouse, who received her teaching certificate from Farmville State College in 1929, says it's frustrating trying to watch the clock all the time and get things done in today's society and she has jokingly threatened to throw away all her clocks when she retires June 30.

Miss Woodhouse began her teaching career in the Princess Anne County School system at a school that no longer stands today.

"There were just five of us teaching at the old Kempsville Elementary School, where Kemps Landing School is today," Miss Woodhouse said.

"I was paid $75 a month and considered it a real good salary. The following year I came up to Court House Elementary and have been here ever since."

Lillie Belle Woodhouse says although teaching methods have changed in the 43 years she's been in the classroom, kids are still basically the same.

"One of the differences," she said, "is they have fewer manners. Of course our teaching methods are less formal now and that might have something to do with it. But you have to keep pace with change," she adds.

"Who would have thought 40 years ago that we would be using movies, television or reading machines to teach children?"

She says educational changes have been gradual and she's not sure they have all been for the better.

"We used to all be so close," said Miss Woodhouse. "I mean all the teachers and administrators knew each other and we felt like we were all part of a big family."

"Today the school system is too big. We've lost touch with one another and the administrators have lost touch with what's going on in the classroom," added Miss Woodhouse.

She went on, "I think the administrators ought to have to go back into the classroom as teachers for a short time every few years to see what their decisions are doing."

Miss Woodhouse also feels that the city and even the country has outgrown itself. "I dread all this growth," she says. "It's just squeezing us right out. Of course you can't stop it, but it's just like a classroom. The more students you have the more rules and regulations you need to keep order."

"I just feel like something has been taken away from the people in the last few years. We're too organized, there's too much regimentation and not enough grass roots decision making."

Miss Woodhouse says she's looking forward to the time of her retirement will give her but it will be difficult to adjust to.

"I always tried to do my best," she says. "But you never really know if you have. I only hope someone better takes my place when I leave."

Morgan Takes Russian Tour

Kent A. Morgan, a Junior at Virginia Wesleyan College, will be traveling in Russia this summer in connection with the International Summer Studies Institute.

Morgan, son of Mrs. Francis A. Morgan, 2305 Pacific Avenue, is a 1965 graduate of Virginia Beach High School.

He will leave on August 15, on the 27-day tour which includes visits to Helsinki, Novgorod, Moscow, Leningrad, and Copenhagen. Dr. Daniel W. Graf, assistant professor of History at Wesleyan will conduct the group.

Libraries Survey Needs Of People

The Virginia Beach Public Libraries are conducting a survey over the next several weeks to evaluate how Virginia Beach citizens use their libraries.

Questionnaires distributed in the four branch libraries and by mail will ask library patrons what kind of materials they seek in the libraries, what difficulties they may have in using library services, how far they must travel to reach a library, and other pertinent questions.

The survey will be conducted in three parts: a survey of adults who enter the libraries over a one-week period, a mailed survey to a random sampling of residents within two-mile radius of the four branches, and, if time permits, in-depth interviews of a selected number of library patrons.

The questionnaires used employ a number of multiple choice questions with a final open-ended question designed to allow patron comments and suggestions. Survey results will help library personnel evaluate their services and facilitate future planning of library services and capacity.

The survey is being conducted by the Library Division summer intern, Linda Stone, who will tabulate survey results and complete a report evaluating the findings by the end of the summer.

Miss Stone is a recent graduate of William and Mary College. A native of Falls Church, she interned last year with the Washington Suburban Institute at Fairfax.

"The area is similar to that of Fairfax, in that it's growing so incredibly fast. There's never been any survey done and it's important to determine if people are getting the kind of service they want," she said.

It's also necessary to pinpoint the areas not covered, to determine where new libraries are needed, as a building program commences in the near future.

The survey questions were compiled by Mrs. Michelle Leber, of the Virginia Beach Branch. They were patterned after those of the Library Science School at the University of Maryland, and adapted to this area.

BBB Enlists New Members

June 6 was "B-Day" in Virginia Beach for the Tidewater Better Business Bureau, as a unique task force of well-armed volunteer "Commandos" staged a successful landing in the interest of better business.

Beginning with a breakfast featuring William P. Love of Be-Lo Supermarkets as kick-off speaker, over thirty Commandos spent the day calling primarily on Virginia Beach businesses. Most of the prospects had received a series of letters in a direct mail campaign designed by "General" J. Wayne Melchor.

In addition, public service spots produced under the guidance of Thomas Ble were aired on many radio, and television stations.

Over eighty businesses and professionals were enlisted into the membership ranks of the growing BBB, bringing the total membership to 824, announced Howard Jernigan, BBB President.

Commando "Woodie" Jordan won top honors and was awarded a color television set for enlisting fourteen members at a "debriefing" held Tuesday night at the command post set up at Thompson-Royal Dodge.

Commandos Jim Peery and Bob Renard tied for second place.

General" Dick Mayfield, reporting on the success of the campaign, stated that this drive has brought the BBB one step closer to reaching the year-end goal of 900 members. There were 598 members on the roster at the beginning of the year.

The summer sun is nearly upon us and those of you who can force yourselves out will probably find it welcome.

However, if it's raining on any Sunday you gals don't have to put your bikini's away.

Come on out to the haven of Snoopy's arch-enemy, The Red Baron on First Colonial and Virginia Beach Blvd. Bob and Lori, that capricious couple who hold court at the Baron have gotten together with the Bikini Hut and produced a new angle for girl watchers.

Any girl, (of age) who comes in on Sunday between 1 and 4 p.m., wearing a bikini, will get a chance on a drawing for a new bikini from the Bikini Hut at 17th and Atlantic.

"Boots" says you gals will have a chance on a value up to $50. Sounds like a fun way to spend Sunday afternoon without facing the blinding light of (ugh!) daytime.

A new wrinkle for night people who can't sleep all day. If you're going to start your big evening during daylight hours go on over to the Blue Hawaii for a first rate Polynesian dinner.

It's even worth crossing over the line into that other city. Being in Janaf Shopping Center makes them Virginia Beach residents, almost.

by Les Lehigh

"We'll definitely see an increase this Summer in kids running to and from this area," says Drew Jeffreys, counselor in the City's Intake Bureau, an organization acting as liaison between the Police Department's Juvenile Bureau and Juvenile Court.

Jeffreys cites his reasoning for this by adding, "School's out, a lot of kids have nothing to do and decide to try running away just to see what it's like."

This connection between schools and runaways is supported by Lt. Henry Capps, Juvenile Bureau C.O., who says, "This is the peak time of the year for runaway cases. Final exams are coming up, and reports are coming out, and some kids are not doing too good."

Annual Police Report statistics indicate a definite increase in the number of runaways in Virginia Beach. The Reports listed 906 such cases during 1971 as compared to 716 such incidents in 1970. Capps said those young people who run away because of "not doing too good" don't want to face their parents, friends, and-or classmates because of poor grades in school work.

When questioned as to what type of an individual makes up today's runaway Jeffreys replied, "The majority of kids we deal with come from middle class families. They don't get along with their parents and classmates. They are primarily 13 to 16 years old."

In Jeffreys' opinion there is one outstanding difference among runaways: "We very seldom see a black runaway." Among factors which contribute to a youngster suddenly turning away from everything and running away Capps says, "A lot of kids today no longer fear their parents or the home; they just don't want to put up with the hassle." Jeffreys quotes runaways with saying they just "want to do their own thing. With boys it's a move to get out on their own; in the case of girls it's to rebel against parental guidance."

Past experience indicates that drugs do not appear to play a major role in motivating a youngster into running away. This apparently is not true, however, once they flee home. Capps says, "Those who stay away for any length of time usually wind up supporting the 'drug pusher' doing whatever they have to do to obtain money, like turning to prostitution or stealing." Capps estimates

Zoning Ordinance Revision Meeting Minor Opposition

Charles Carrington, City Planning Director, this week said, "I don't look for any wholesale revision, or major overhaul, of contents of the proposed new zoning ordinance."

Carrington issued the statement during a "workshop session" review of contents of the new Comprehensive Zoning Ordinance as proposed last April.

The ordinance, which represents the first updating of zoning regulations since the merger of Virginia Beach and Princess Anne County in January of 1963, will be used as the basis for future planning of the resort city's development.

The particular workshop session involved opinions from private planners and architects on the feasibility of the ordinance in practicable application. Planning Commissioner Walter J. Pankiewicz served as chairman for the meeting, which was attended by that, "75 per-cent of runaways get involved in the drug culture." He adds, "A large percentage of parents of runaways deny their children are using drugs, and this is a very foolish attitude. The only people they're fooling are themselves."

In Jeffreys' opinion, "Being a restrictions could knock some of these people out of business."

Carrington told those attending the meeting, "We have tried to come up with an ordinance which would be easy to read, understand, and administer, and one which would not be controversial."

Parkiewicz said he felt "criticism of the ordinance was favorable. The only discrepancy in the matter of presentation of the contents and not towards the contents. I think we need a clarification of meaning rather than a change of contents."

When questioned on progress of work, including preparation of necessary zoning maps for future planning of the city, to enable proper action when the current moratorium on changes in zoning expires on Sept. 1 Carrington replied, "Barring and major revisions of the zoning ordinance the zoning maps will be ready for use after the moratorium."

Carrington said it appeared to him "the most controversy concerning the ordinance is in the creation of non-conforming lots", but that he felt a rearrangement of some of the requirements in the ordinance would correct this situation.

Architect Herbert Smith expressed strong concern over height and set-back restrictions which would be placed on hotels and motels. He said, "These

Phony S. S. Reps Working Beach

Unscrupulous persons sometimes try to obtain money and confidential information from social security beneficiaries by taking advantage of the reputation and prestige of the Social Security Administration.

Just a few days ago a person representing himself as a social security representative took a considerable sum of money from a social security beneficiary in the Virginia Beach area by promising a special bonus and reimbursements on various medical bills. The claimant trusted this person and gave him the money. He gave her no receipt nor did he return as promised. Beneficiaries beware! Every social security field employee carries an identification card. Always ask to see his identification. If you have any doubts contact your social security office immediately.

For further information please contact your Norfolk Social Security Office. The telephone number is 441-6391.

Additional Tax Sources Needed

To the Editor:
The Virginia Beach city budget, now under consideration by the City Council, points to a growing problem in this city: Lack of tax revenue sources other than the real estate and personal property levy.

For the last decade Virginia Beach residents have enjoyed a very reasonable tax level, especially when compared to other area cities. Because the city has also enjoyed a continuous expansion of the tax base through construction of new homes, apartments, shopping centers and stores, increased revenues have been found.

Unfortunately, little has been done to expand opportunities for additional sources of tax revenue. Tourism has contributed little outside the summer months. An exhaustive study which concluded that the city has never been acted upon.

Industrial development has lagged sadly, and other Tidewater cities have become

Mind Your Money By Peter Weaver

There are so many chemical food additives these days you practically have to stop eating to avoid them. Fortunately, not all additives are as bad as they sound. You have to be selective in your worries. Otherwise, you might slide into a form of paranoia, muttering such things as: "They're poisoning everything."

A couple of practical-minded scientist friends, who enjoy eating, suggest concentrating your concern on three major additives: 1-Nitrites and nitrites. These chemicals are used primarily in processed meats such as hot dogs, ham and bacon as a preservative to prevent botulism poisoning and to enhance color. They're particularly suspicious because they can combine with other chemicals to form nitrosamines which are a possible cause of cancer. The Food and Drug Administration recently discovered nitrosamines in cooked bacon and ordered a review of all nitrites and nitrites used in foods. Previously, nitrosamines had only been found in smoked fish treated with nitrites.

According to Dr. Jay Aron, president of the American Academy of Pediatrics, "nitrites can be particularly dangerous for babies." An infant body chemistry, he says, is more sensitive to the chemical which can cause a certain form of anemia in the very young.

2-Artificial coloring. In his book, "Eater's Digest," soon to be published by Doubleday, Dr. Michael F. Jacobson says there are two principal food colors to worry about—Red No. 2 and Violet No. 1. The red is used in soft drinks, ice cream, candy, baked goods, sausage, candy and soft drinks. The violet is used in USDA meat. Soviet tests showed Red No. 2 caused birth defects in laboratory animals, and Canadian tests showed Violet No. 1 caused cancer. Unfortunately, data from both tests were incomplete or lost. The

The Virginia Beach Sun management believes that a newspaper should be the voice of the people. The only way they can be heard, however, is through the Letters to the Editor. The Sun encourages and welcomes letters from its readers and asks only that they be reasonably brief and to the point and that they be in good taste. Please mail your letters to the Virginia Beach Sun, 138 Rosemont Road, Virginia Beach, Va. 23452. We look forward to hearing from you.

Rosemont Improvements Slated

The State Highway Commission, meeting recently in Richmond, approved the location and design plans for an improvement project on Rosemont Road.

Beginning at Hilber Street near the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway (VA 44), the construction project will follow the existing alignment of Rosemont Road in its southerly direction to its intersection with Holland Road, a distance of 1.6 miles.

The primary purpose of the project will be to reconstruct and widen Rosemont Road, converting it into a four-lane divided highway, to more adequately and safely serve present and anticipated traffic.

The design calls for two 23-foot roadways (four traffic lanes, two in each direction) separated by a 14-foot raised median with curb and gutter and five-foot sidewalks on an 80-foot right-of-way.

The intersecting street connections will be improved and left-turn lanes will be provided. Traffic studies are under way at the present time to determine if, and where, traffic control signals will be needed.

Storm sewers will be installed to properly drain the project. Recent traffic counts indicate that the traffic volume over Rosemont Road varies from 8,500 to 11,600 vehicles a day. The anticipated 1990 traffic count varies from 18,100 to 26,400 vehicles a day.

The total cost of the project is estimated to be $2,000,000 with the city of Virginia Beach furnishing the right-of-way. The construction cost is to be financed 85 per cent by state urban funds and 15 per cent by the city. It is tentatively planned to advertise for construction bids on July 5.

A public hearing on the project was held in May and the City Council of Virginia Beach has passed a resolution approving it.

Analysis Of The Survey

The two-week run of the Sun Survey seeking the people's choice for mayor has come to an end and the results are surely the most interesting generated by this column.

First of all, let us make it perfectly clear that the Survey question was not a part of an organized promotional effort backing Reid Ervin for Mayor. The question was posed on June 2 before the citizens' move for the Lynnhaven councilman was made known. It was, in fact, repeated last week, the very day the promotion came to light.

We mention this point because it is very important the Sun readers understand it was never intended that this column reflect support of any one councilman for mayor... that type of opinion is strictly for the editorial column.

The question was asked because it seemed both timely and of interest. It definitely was both; it's unfortunate that it coincided with a promotional effort that made it appear something it was not. The question had been asked by several persons; it was asked so that the citizens might have an opportunity to express an opinion on an election in which they will have no voice. Does that make sense?

For several days we have pondered the possibility of not publishing the results of the survey for fear it would make the Sun appear a part of an organized campaign. And this newspaper must remain politically independent if it is to effectively serve the people.

It was this desire to serve the people which finally influenced the decision to publish, at least analytically, the results of the survey. It would not have been fair to solicit the readers' participation, then deny them the very voice they had been offered. If the Sun is to be censured for trying to be honest and fair with the people, then it must be censured.

But, because of the situation which was developed this week, we will not reveal the exact number of votes. We will, instead, analyze to the best of our ability the response to the question.

Reid Ervin is obviously the people's choice for most anything... they support him with strength and dedication and from all corners of the city, not just his own Lynnhaven neighborhood.

The first week of the question, the response for Councilman Ervin was tremendously predominant... it came almost as an emotional outburst, the people obviously welcomed the opportunity to express their feelings about the dynamic young councilman from Lynnhaven, even though they realized it was merely expression, not a vote for mayor.

Then, in the second week, an interesting thing happened. The overall feeling slowed, and while Mr. Ervin continued, and continues, to hold a strong lead, support for Councilman Robert Cromwell and Mayor Donald Rhodes gained momentum.

The comments lost their emotion in the second week and logic seemed to take over. Several people voiced the opinion that the choice should be City Council's since the councilmen themselves must work together and must select the person best qualified to serve as mayor.

The main concern of the people, in the final analysis, seemed to be not for a particular councilman so much as a unified council; it was quite rewarding to see the number of citizens who chose to put personal preference aside in favor of what would hopefully be best for the city.

Some concern was expressed over the influence the Sun Survey might have on the decision of the 11 councilmen. The Sun, quite frankly, does not believe its Survey will have any influence on the decision. We believe that on July 1 the city will have on council 11 men who, for the most part, will listen to the people but will base their decisions on what is best for the city as a whole. The people are not always right. Council is not always right. But as long as everyone tries to be honest and fair, and tries to do their best, Virginia Beach will grow and prosper in an orderly manner.

Space does not permit all the comments, but since the readers have a right to speak out, here's a capsule look at what was said:

MR. ERVIN: "...received the greatest number of votes... at the time of his election... and should be elected mayor." "He is a gentleman... a veteran... is not a lawyer, doctor, real estate broker and to me is dedicated to represent the people of Virginia Beach." "He's honest, well-educated, genuinely interested... and lastly he represents all the people;" "...not one other... can match him in intelligence, integrity, interest of the voters' industry;" "...leader of the movement to change the population growth of Virginia Beach;" "...consistently worked for the people of this city..."

MR. CROMWELL: "Without a question of a doubt, if he would accept," "Council needs unity and I believe... can do this;" "...honest and conscientious and has the city at heart;" "He is the one man who could unify our council;" "He speaks quietly but intelligently... never loses his cool;" "...his experience makes him the logical choice."

MAYOR RHODES: "I want Rhodes for Mayor!" "Mayor Rhodes—period!" "What is wrong with our present Mayor?" "I disagree with the present Mayor quite often, but he is considerate to groups wishing to speak;" "...at official functions he does a splendid job;" "He has been a good Mayor and should be re-elected;" "...he tries to be fair..."

One reader summed it up beautifully: "Council should weigh carefully their decision without bias, and personal preference, and elect a Mayor who can represent the city in the best possible light, can unite 10 other members in dedicated duty without factionalism and can calmly and dispassionately conduct the business of his office."

Astrology

By

Ray Williams

Licensed Astrologer; Office in the Byler Bldg., Virginia Beach Blvd.

This weeks article is the first of a two-part series dealing with a subject dear to all our hearts, MONEY! Astrologers have been advising their clients in financial matters for a long time. One of the most successful was Evangeline Adams, a New York astrologer, who had a long list of illustrious clients who subscribed to her investment advisory service year after year. The most notable of these was the late J.P. Morgan, Miss Adams mentioned this in her book, "The Bowl of Heaven," published in 1926, apparently with his consent, because ethics would have prohibited it otherwise.

I first turned my attention to the possibilities of applying astrological methods to the stockmarket a few years ago, at the request of a client. She, like so many others, would have wonderfully profitable periods but at other periods would lose all that she had previously gained. At this time I was not aware of any published work on the subject. It seemed to me, however, that a business should respond to planetary influence just as a person did. I had been advising clients for years on the proper time to open their businesses, and to them I had a very good source of information with which to test the idea. After bringing some of the company's horoscopes up to date, I began quizzing my clients about the periods indicated to have been profitable and other periods indicated to have been "lean." Almost without exception the businesses followed the indications of the progressed horoscope. When they did not I went back to determine the cause. In some cases I found that the client had incorporated the business without telling me, thereby changing the birthdate of the company. With the new horoscope, the company then followed the planetary patterns indicated for it.

At this point I made the big jump. With a considerable degree of excitement I obtained the necessary information to erect the horoscopes of several companies listed on the New York stock exchange. I knew nothing about the companies selected or their stock value. I then erected the horoscopes for them and gave each an imaginary value of $100.00. As I progressed their horoscopes and good aspects appeared. I tried to evaluate their strength and, if possible, determine how much they would increase the value of the stock. When an adverse aspect appeared I would evaluate it and give it a loss value. For the increase I might say that the stock was at $15.00 and for the loss I might say the stock was at $8.00. This procedure was followed with each stock selected. Graphs were made to make the gains and losses easy to read.

After I checked and re-checked my results I "sneaked" into the stock brokerage offices located in the new Universal City, the home of Universal Pictures, in Studio City, California. I "sneaked" in because I was sure that if anyone found out what I was doing they would laugh me right out the front door. Fortunately this did not happen. I found them eager to help in any way possible, and never did anyone ask what I intended to do with the mass of information that I wanted.

In every case my graph of the companies gains and losses, was correct. They could have been more complete but I had not tried to include every progressed aspect, just the most important. I was, however, invariably wrong on the amount of increase or loss. This I had expected. What I was not sure of was that it was possible to tell when the stock would gain and when it would lose. In this I was 100 per cent correct. Never was there a period indicated to be a period of gain that proved to be a period of loss. I felt sure that my client would expect no more than that. As often happens in cases such as this, my client moved away before I saw her again and the data that I had gathered was put away in folders and nearly forgotten.

Since moving to the Tidewater area, however, I have made several stock market forecasts. I am happy to say that to this date none have proved incorrect. In March, 1970 the Dow Jones 30 Industrial stock average had closed at 777.82. The average for the month of May was 771.85, a loss of slightly less than 6 points. In June the market dropped sharply and the month closed at 691.96, a loss of almost 80 points. A minor panic had set in and when I appeared on the "Eyewitness News Magazine", on WAVY TV, early in July, the interviewer asked me what I thought the market was going to do next. At that time I stated that I was sure that the market would recover before the end of the year.

By the next month the Dow Jones averages had recovered to 731.97, a rise of just over 40 points. During September the market continued to rise and closed with a monthly average of 759.38. The gradual recovery continued during October with a closing average of 763.72. November saw a continuation of the recovery, closing at 769.23. December closed with a dramatic gain closing at 821.51 and increase of 52 points over the previous month and an overall improvement of over 129 points.

Now it is one thing for me to say that I made such a forecast, and it is another thing to prove it. The following is an exact quote of a letter published in the Astro-Advice column that I was doing for the Sun, dated Oct. 8, 1970.

"In the month of July I saw you on the Eyewitness News Magazine. At that time I said to myself, 'another soothsayer and prophet of astrology'."

Out of curiosity I kept the program on and listened. You made two predictions based on the science of astrology. One was that the stockmarket would recover by 1971. Since then the market has recovered 20 points. (Apparently the letter was written in early August).

That still did not sell me on the science of astrology. The second prediction changed me from a skeptic to a believer. You said the United States would be deeply involved in the Middle-East situation in the month of August and September.

This letter is a letter of apology for my saying there is nothing to the science of astrology. In my opinion I was wrong." Signed R.M.

Next week we will consider some of the work that has been done in this field by other astrologers. We will also consider what some of the recognized experts in the fields of finance and science have had to say about planetary influences and the market place.

FDA has ordered a review of all food colors because they have never been tested as a possible cause of birth defects. The World Health Organization issued a warning against Violet No. 1.

There are other suspected colors such as Citrus Red 2 (2 colors orange skins), Orange B (used on some hot dogs) and Yellow No. 5 (color butter, margarine, synthetic orange drinks). The red has suspected connections with cancer, the yellow is related to Red No. 2 birth defect suspicions and the orange causes allergic reactions in some people. These colors, however, are not widely used.

3-BHT and BHA. They're used as antioxidants in many products that contain vegetable or fatty oils. Before April 1, manufacturers could get away with just calling them "freshness preservers." Now, FDA says they must be labeled by name.

BHT accumulates in body fat and neither BHT nor BHA has been effectively ruled out as a cause of cancer.

4-Friendly chemicals. Some additives are not considered dangerous and are even mildly nutritious. Calcium propionate, for example, is used to inhibit mold in bread. Nutritionists say calcium is good for you and propionate is easily metabolized by the body. Phosphates used in evaporated milk, cheese, ice cream, bakery goods and other products are also considered somewhat nutritious. Although not necessarily nutritious, the ominous-sounding carboxymethyl-cellulose used as a stabilizer in ice cream, beverages and baked goods is not considered harmful. Neither are the glycerides (di- and mono-) which are used in ice cream and baked goods.

According to "Eater's Digest" author, Dr. Jacobson, "the most worrisome additives—nitrites, nitrites, colors, BHT, BHA—are usually found in foods that are of dubious nutritional value... you can avoid them without upsetting your diet." He suggests selecting brands that don't have these additives or substituting other kinds of foods and drinks.

Susan Hilder Marries David Ziemba

The Commonwealth Baptist Church in Charlotte, North Carolina was the setting June 10 at 3 p.m. for the wedding of Miss Susan Dianne Hilder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hamilton Hilder of Charlotte, and David Lee Ziemba, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Joseph Ziemba of the Beach. Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Cline W. Borders.

Mr. Hilder gave his daughter in marriage.

The bride wore a white crepe gown with bodice of candlelight lace. Her illusion veil was fingertip. It was embroidered with lace and seed pearls.

The matron of honor was Miss Carolyn Regan of Charlotte. She and the Bridesmaids wore identical gowns with yellow chiffon bodice, long full sleeves, green floral skirt over yellow taffeta. Their hair was yellow with olive green velvet ribbon trimming.

Bridesmaids were Miss Joy Hilder, sister of the bride; Kathy Cash, Monroe, North Carolina; Maria Force, Miami, Florida; Sylvia Kincaid, Bessemer City, North Carolina.

David Kennedy was ring bearer; Miriam Kennedy, flower girl.

Ushers were Roger Pinson, Lenoir, North Carolina; Wally Brown, Boone, North Carolina; Wayne Ziemba and Robert Ziemba, brothers of the bridegroom, of the Beach.

A reception following the ceremony was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The couple will live at Hillsboro, North Carolina following a wedding trip to the Upper Coasts of North Carolina.

After opening the package, wrap the cut cheese in foil, waxed paper or plastic to prevent drying. The U.S. Agricultural Marketing Service says that milk and dairy products are in seasonally good supply. Now's the time, then, to include Cheddar cheese in your menu plans.

EASY EXTRA SPECIAL DESSERT...Try an ice cream pie. Simply fill a homemade or purchased crumb crust with softened ice cream. Then swirl crushed fruit, mince meat, chocolate syrup or nut sundae topping into the ice cream. Freeze until firm.

DAM NECK OFFICERS WIVES CLUB will meet June 21 at the Officers Club at 11:30 a.m. They'll have musical entertainment with the luncheon. Members are encouraged to bring guests along.

A Family Celebrates

SHARING THE HAPPINESS of a 25th wedding anniversary, are Mr. and Mrs. Stencil Davenport with daughter Stacy and son Gene Davenport and his wife, Linda Davenport. The Chesapeake Colony home of the Davenports was filled with some 175 guests who came laden with gifts of silver for the couple. The party was elaborate and elegant: Two tiered wedding cakes, food of every description beautifully served; an enormous seafood bar in the basement...an evening to remember. Dare To Be Different

By Rev. Joyce Kramer

Don't be afraid to be different. Many people are caught in a daily routine that is boring and dull.

Use your imagination. Look for different and better ways of doing things. Make your activities more interesting. Breaking old habit patterns in daily routines will help you have more zest and enthusiasm for life.

Being willing to look for new ways of doing things often means the difference between mediocrity and excellence. A person caught in mediocrity does the same thing day after day in the same way, with the same people. How very dull!

Dare to be different. Dare to make your life interesting. FATHER, I GIVE THANKS FOR NEW IDEAS THAT ENABLE ME TO ADD MORE JOY, INTEREST AND VITALITY TO MY DAY TO DAY LIVING.

Twenty-One Retire From School System

Twenty-one people will retire July 1 from positions with the Virginia Beach City Public School system. Sixteen of these have been teachers, the other five have worked in other positions with the school system. The teachers are Mrs. Ruth Clark and Mrs. Hortense Parkerson of Bayside Elementary School; Miss Lillie Woodhouse, Courthouse Elementary; Bruce Morris, Cox High School; R. W. Morris, Mrs. Helen Dillon, Kempville High School; Mrs. Lois Melton, Kempville Meadows; Mrs. Elizabeth Falconer, King's Grant Elementary.

Also: Mrs. Cornelia Carter and Alonzo Carter, Kemps Landing Elementary; Mrs. Belva Hardy, Princess Anne Elementary; Mrs. Alice Durgan and Mrs. Mary Madoux, Virginia Beach Junior High School; W. E. Loback, Vocational-Technical; Mrs. Oselletta Grimes, Kempville Junior High School; Mrs. Deborah White, Linkhorn Park Elementary.

Classified workers retiring are William Duncan, Kempville High School; Mrs. Caddy Walker, Princess Anne High School; Charles Spence, George Henry, maintenance; Ernest Corpnew, warehouse.

Linkhorn Park Garden Club ended its season with an informal pool-picnic party at the home of Mrs. W.J. McCannan. It was too cool for swimming, so new president Mrs. E. Leslie Lam, (1) talked over Fall plans with Mrs. Thomas Kellary and Mrs. E.W. Elver.

VFWC Leader Luncheon Speaker

The president of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Norman L. Brown, was speaker recently at the Chesapeake Beach Woman's Club luncheon.

She spoke on the resolutions adopted by the V.F.W.C. and announced that Mrs. Williams B. Hughes, past president of the Chesapeake Beach Woman's Club, would be hostess for the V.F.W.C. Convention to be held next year in Norfolk.

Firecracker Open Softball Tourney Set For July 1st

The Softball Capital of the Eastern Seaboard, which is really Virginia Beach, will be the site of the Virginia Beach Firecracker Men's Open Slow-Pitch Softball Tournament on Saturday and Sunday, July 1st and 2nd.

A round-robin affair, all teams are guaranteed to play six games. Teams will be divided into a bracket of seven teams by a draw, and each team will play the other six teams in its bracket. All six games will be played on Saturday, July 1st, with bracket winners meeting on Sunday, July 2nd, in double-elimination play for the overall Firecracker Open championship.

The tournament will be limited to twenty-eight teams on a first-come, first-served basis. Tomorrow, June 16th, is the deadline for registration. To register, call Rex Bolton at 428-8388 or 428-3161 or Ken Vohl at 427-1164 or 545-9429.

All teams must be American Softball Association sanctioned in order to participate, and the entry fee for ASA sanctioned teams is $50. Teams not presently sanctioned will be sanctioned by tournament officials upon payment of the $5 ASA membership fee in addition to the $50 entry fee. Teams must have travel permits if they are from outside the metropolitan Norfolk area.

City Summer Playground Program Starts Friday

The summer playground program will begin Friday at thirty-one school sites scattered throughout Virginia Beach. Sponsored by the Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department, the sites will be open from June 16th through August 11th. The Monday through Friday programs will be open to all elementary, junior high, and high school students in the City, and the evening programs will be additionally open to adults.

The 170-yard 17th hole at Kempsville Meadows Country Club was set Sunday by beginning golfer Bill Henry. It was the first hole-in-one for Henry, who has been playing golf for only three months.

The "Who's Who" of NASCAR late model sportsman will be in South Boston, Virginia, on July 1st for the annual South Boston Raceway Permatex 400. Ray Hendrick, Lennie Pond, Al Grinnan, Bill Dennis, Runt Harris, Sonny Hutchins, Tom Ellis, Eddie Royster, Sammy Ard, Paul Radford, Sammy Long, and Jimmy Hensley make up part of the 30-car starting field in the 400-lap, 137.95 mile chase for a winner's purse of over $2,000. Time trials will get the program underway on Saturday, July 1st, at 7 p.m. The feature race is scheduled for the green flag promptly at 8:30 p.m. and the gates will open at 6 p.m.

The annual six-day learn-to-swim campaign conducted by the Norfolk Central YMCA for boys and girls in grades one through six still has a limited number of openings. Classes will be held in the YMCA's indoor pool at 312 West Bute Street Monday through Saturday, June 19th through 24th. Classes will begin at 9, 9:45, 10:30, and 11:15 a.m. and at 1 and 1:45 p.m. The six-lesson series is designed for the non-swimmer or the beginning swimmer, costs $5, and youngsters are to wear bathing suits and bring their own towels. Parents will be invited to watch the last class their child is in on the final day. Call the YMCA at 622-5328 to register.

Another hole-in-one was recorded at Kempsville Meadows Golf Course last week, the second ace in less than a week at the Kempsville course. Tim Saunders, a student at Jacksonville University who is home for the summer, aced the 170-yard third hole. Tim played on the golf team while he was attending Kempsville High School.

Before you set out on a trip in your boat, file a "float plan" with someone you trust. Similar to a flight plan filed by pilots, it should list when you are going, where you are going, when you are returning, the route you are taking, and who is going with you. Then if you have trouble and fail to return on schedule, rescuers will know where to look for you. This is just one of the many safety tips that could save your life offered in a free boating guide published by the U.S. Coast Guard. Get your copy of "Everything You Wanted To Know About Boating" free from any Coast Guard office or write the U.S. Coast Guard, 400 Seventh Street, S.W., Washington, D.C., 20590.

A Pic-Nite Rally will get underway Saturday night, June 17th, at 8 p.m., sponsored by the Peninsula Sports Club. The rally site is the First and Merchants Bank parking lot at the corner of J. Clyde Morris Boulevard (Route 17 South) and Jefferson Avenue. Contact rallymasters Carl and Don Hicks at 595-4967 to enter.

With the game against their parent New York Mets tonight, the Tidewater Tides are in town to begin a two-week home stand. They will meet Toledo in single games on June 18th and 17th and in a double-header on Sunday, July 18th. Then Louisville will visit Metro Park for single games on June 20th, 21st, and 22nd.

Two Beach golfers finished first and third in the Coastland Invitational Golf Tournament in Elizabeth City, North Carolina, last weekend. Greg Overton, the tournament winner, shot a 75-75-150. Carl Peterson's 74-78-153 was good for third.

The Tidewater Chapter of the American Red Cross will hold its annual learn-to-swim classes from June 18th to 23rd at Oscar Lewter's Beach, 19th and East Ocean View Avenue, for poor or non-swimmers. There is no charge for the 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. daily classes taught by Mrs. Alice Ferguson, a Red Cross water safety instructor. Registration can be made by phone by calling the Red Cross at 625-6791.

Tom Hicks drove his 1971 Nova to victory in the modified eliminator class at Suffolk Raceway last Sunday. He was the only Beach winner.

Piledrivers In Pic-A-Dixie

Virginia Beach's national champion softball team, the Indian Lakes Piledrivers, leave Friday night for a weekend tournament in Chattanooga, Tennessee. The Piledrivers will be participating in the Pic-A-Dixie Tournament, a 72-team marathon that is billed as the largest softball tournament in the country.

The Piledrivers will be the first national champion team ever to participate in the Pic-A-Dixie, thanks to the sponsorship of Indian Lakes. The Piledrivers are scheduled to play five games Saturday and will have to play three more on Sunday if they are to win the tourney. The double-elimination affair is played annually for the benefit of a hospital for the mentally retarded.

"The crowds there are tremendous," Johnny Strickland, team spokesman, said Wednesday. "We are getting a lot of t.v. and newspaper publicity, since we are the national champions, so I hope we do well. The competition there is very tough, with top teams coming in from all over the country. Many of the teams are very capable of winning, and I think it will take over 30 runs per game to win."

Minibike Site A Possibility

Bob Brennan and Jasper Hardison have been named to the City's Recreation Commission. The announcement was made by Commission chairman Maury Riganto at the June meeting on Tuesday.

Riganto also announced that the City is adding thirty-three acres to Princess Anne Park, which is located at the intersection of Princess Anne and Landstown Roads. The junior tennis program has grown tremendously, reflecting the current national and local growth of this sport, and 450 youngsters are enrolled in the Beach program.

Juvenile Court Judge Frederick P. Aucamp was on hand to discuss the City program where kids-in-trouble are assigned to the Department of Parks and Recreation to work at "hard labor" as a rehabilitative sentence. The program has been very successful, according to the Judge.

Top Beach Golfers Enter State Open

Approximately 140 golfers have registered for the 1972 State Open Golf Tournament at Lake Wright Golf Course, which will be held June 21st through 25th. The Open has not been held in this area since 1966, and it will give local golfers a chance to see some of the state's top amateur and professional golfers in action.

The Pro-Am Tournament opens the golfing activities on Wednesday, June 21st. Some of Virginia Beach's top high school golfers have already entered, including Allan and Curtis Strange of Princess Anne, Jim Henderson of First Colonial, and Pat Kuroski of Cox.

The pros will tee off on Thursday, June 22nd, for the first of four eighteen-hole rounds. Around forty of the state's top pros are expected to compete for $5,000 in prize money in the 72-hole event. Host pro, Claude King of Lake Wright, is rated as the pre-tourney favorite. A host of Virginia Beach pros will be gunning for King, however, including Jennings House, pro at Red Wing, Dave Zielski, assistant pro at White Sands, Lou Shue, Cavalier pro, and Dave Pond, assistant pro at Stumpy Lake.

Evangel Graduates

Leta Stanton and Jonathan Snyder

Two Virginia Beach students, Leta Stanton and Jonathan Snyder, were graduated from Evangel College on May 24th. The Springfield, Missouri, college of arts and sciences is affiliated with the Assemblies of God.

Leta Stanton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Stanton, 3038 Bray Road, received a B.S. in physical education. She was active in the College's athletic program and served as vice-president of the Women's Athletic Association. Miss Stanton was also a member of the Student Senate, active in SCOPE, the Evangel student Christian service organization, and was on the Dean's List.

Jonathan Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin E. Snyder, Jr., of 417 West Plantation Drive, received a B.S. in history. Claude, Jonathan was also active in SCOPE and a member of the Dean's List.

"A Good Fish Story?"

By Jay Brumbley, Sports Editor

Every now and then, a fish story comes along worth repeating. What makes a good fish story? Usually an out-standing fish story has an element of truth, a touch of exaggeration, a lot of enthusiasm in the telling, and requires a stretch of the imagination of the listener to envision a non-present fish.

This fish story is different. It is completely true, there is no exaggeration, and the fish that was "caught" actually was in front of the listener, which was me.

Last Friday, I was sitting at my desk working on my "Sportcetera" column when my thoughts were interrupted by the piercing ring of my telephone. Mrs. William Gambrell, the caller, asked me, "Do you want to hear a good fish story?"

Being an amateur fisherman and the newspaper's sports editor, her leading question immediately grabbed my attention. I listened attentively, almost in disbelief, as she unfolded one of the most fantastic fish stories I had ever heard. When she finished her story with the claim that the boys actually had the fish, I hung up the phone, ran to my car, and headed down Virginia Beach Boulevard much like a police reporter speeding toward the scene of a robbery-in-progress.

Moments later, I was at the Gambrell home on Poplar Point Road on the shore of Great Neck Lake. Billy Gambrell guided me down to the pier at the rear of his home, reeled in a heavy cord tied to a pier piling, and proudly displayed an eleven-pound wide-mouth bass at the end of the cord.

By this time, the other two young "fishermen" caught up in the web of the tale joined us on the pier. As they held the live, twisting, struggling wide-mouth monster (they were keeping it alive so that they could free the fish later), they repeated in unison the story that Mrs. Gambrell had related to me over the phone.

"We were out looking for these little turtles," Billy excitedly began, displaying a handful of tiny turtles, "which we sell to the pet shops for twenty-cents each. As we glided the boat past that log over there looking for turtles, we heard a noise and the boat shook as Roy jumped."

"Looking around, I saw this big fish in Roy's lap. Then it slipped out of his lap onto the floor of the boat and then jumped into Jay's lap."

"Boy, was I petrified!" Roy exclaimed. "I at first thought it was one of those snakes that jump into the boat sometimes! Boy! Was I relieved when I saw it was a fish!"

Also, I examined the fish. There were no hook or gaff marks. Even I became a believer of the tale.

"Do you think we will get a citation for the fish?" all three boys asked me in unison. The question stunned me. The fish was big enough, in fact neighbors could only remember one larger bass ever being taken out of Great Neck Lake, but the fish was not "caught" in the usual manner for which normal citations are given. The boys did not even have a fishing rod in the boat.

If I were chairman of the fishing tournament, I would give them a citation for their "catch," even if I had to make an exception or start a special category. If the three boys do get a citation, however, Billy's will have to be sent to his new home in Michigan. The Gambrell family moved from Virginia Beach over the weekend.

But, what a way to go! Billy's last week in Virginia Beach will be one he will never forget. And to all you fishermen, the big fish is still in Great Neck Lake. The boys returned it so that someone, at least, will get a citation-if the fish is ever "caught" again.

These little turtles were the object of Billy Gambrell, Jay Marshall, and Roy Pullin's search. Not only did they catch eleven, but they caught an utterly fantastic, almost unbelievable story.

Arts And Crafts Workshop Begins

An Arts and Crafts Workshop program, sponsored by the P.T.A., will be held this summer from 9-11 each Monday morning at the Windsor Woods cafeteria.

The workshops will present instructions on making items that can be sold in the Bazaar—Carnival held in the fall. Classes are free. Participants are asked to donate to the P.T.A. at least one item for every class taken.

On June 12, instruction on tote bags and aprons will be given; on June 19, mod podge and parchment stationery; on June 26, knitting, crochet, needlepoint, and ceramics.

On July 3 and 10, instruction will include paperweights, pincushions, book markers, and covered hangers. Classes July 17 will cover house plants in unusual containers. July 24 will be a repeat of all previous classes. On July 31, men's ties and women's scarves will be taught.

Classes in August will teach Christmas decorations and gifts.

All classes will be taught with a simple step by step method. Babysitters will be available for a small donation. Everyone is invited to bring their friends and neighbors to the workshops.

Beach Students Graduate

Many students from Virginia Beach are receiving degrees this month from colleges and universities across the country.

Susan Weing, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Daniel Weing, 2229 Windward Shore Dr., will graduate from Centenary College for Women in Hackettstown, N.J. Miss Weing was also co-winner of the Lowitz prize, awarded to the student showing the greatest degree of effort in piano throughout the year.

Robert William Koelling Jr. of Virginia Beach was awarded the Master of Arts degree from the University of Nebraska—Lincoln.

Among those receiving mid-year degrees from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology are Thomas W. Eagar, 613 Berkely Place and Victor F. Kalasinsky, 1501 Gardenwood Parkway. Eagar was awarded the bachelor of science degree in metallurgy and Kalasinsky received the bachelor of science degree in chemistry.

Four Beach students received degrees from Chowan College in North Carolina. Those receiving the associate of science degree are John Harvey Whitlow, son of Mr. & Mrs. D. F. Whitlow and a graduate of Kempville High School; Charles Harold Watson Jr., son of Mr. & Mrs. C. H. Watson and a graduate of Cox High School; and Virginia Summerfield Weller, a graduate of Cox High School. Sandra Jean Rice, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Robert Van Kirk and a graduate of First Colonial High School, received the associate of arts degree.

Degrees Awarded From W&M

Dr. Ralph Waldo Ellison, noted author and lecturer, was the principal speaker at the traditional ceremonies held in front of the Wren Building.

Frankie Ann Holmes graduated Phi Beta Kappa with a bachelor of science degree. The doctor of jurisprudence degree was awarded to Douglas Scott Wood. Anthony Jerry DiVito and Betsy Moore Seabeneck received masters degrees in education.

James Warren Littleton, Jr., Diane Frances O'Rourke, Jacqueline Bail Sivartsen, Steven Blair Thompson, Kathryn Winston Womack, and Robert Williams Woodbridge, Jr. also received the bachelors of arts degree.

Honored

Patricia Q. Wolff and Foy J. Shaw Jr., both of Virginia Beach, have been initiated into the Phi Kappa Phi, National Honorary Scholastic Society at Radford College.

Stores: International Dance Studio, Store: Help's Meat Market, Store: Hickory Farms

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS:

PICK UP FREE BINGO CARDS: Each week (adults only, please) pick up your FREE Bingo cards from any of the sponsoring merchants listed below. Rules of the game allow the merchants to give you only one card on each store visit. However, you may make as many visits as you wish each day of the week. THE MORE CARDS YOU PLAY - THE BETTER ARE YOUR CHANCES OF WINNING.

HOW TO PLAY: Check the ads in each week's issue of The Virginia Beach Sun. The ads of the merchants listed below will contain one or more "Newspaper Bingo" numbers in the "Bingo Bug" symbol (SHOWN ABOVE). Occasionally numbers in the "Bingo Bug" symbol may be found elsewhere in the newspaper. Be sure to check the Classified Ad section for additional numbers. IF YOU CAN MATCH (JUST CIRCLE OR "X" THE MATCHING NUMBERS) ALL 24 NUMBERS ON ANY ONE OF YOUR BINGO CARDS WITH THE NUMBERS PUBLISHED IN THE WEEKLY ISSUE OF THE VIRGINIA BEACH SUN - YOU HAVE A "BINGO"! - AND YOU ARE A WINNER!!!

AT LEAST $50.00 WEEKLY!!! Winners will share a weekly prize of $50.00 (in "Bingo Bucks" - they spend the same as cash with any of the sponsoring merchants listed below). If there is only one winner, he wins all of the $50.00. If there is more than one winner, all winners will share the $50.00 in equal amounts. If there are no winners any week, the $50.00 weekly prize will be added to the following week's prize fund.

CHECK EACH ISSUE OF THE PAPER: Each game is complete in each week's issue of The Virginia Beach Sun. A new set of Bingo numbers will be published each week in the sponsoring merchants' ads - and possibly elsewhere in the paper. A new color of Bingo cards for each week's game will be available at the sponsoring merchants' stores. To be eligible to win, you must play Bingo cards of the correct color for that week's game. The color of the cards for each week's game will be announced on this page.

IF YOU ARE A WINNER: If you have a winning Bingo card, ON WHICH ALL 24 NUMBERS HAVE BEEN MATCHED WITH THE NUMBERS APPEARING EACH WEEK IN The Virginia Beach Sun, print your name, address, phone number, and the name of the store where you got your winning card, and mail to this paper at 138 Rosemont Rd., Virginia Beach, Virginia 23452 (the envelope containing your winning card must be received by 5:00 p.m. Monday of the following week) - or bring your winning card to the office of this newspaper at 138 Rosemont Rd., Virginia Beach, Virginia by 5:00 p.m. Monday of the following week.

RULES OF THE GAME

NO OBLIGATION OR PURCHASE NECESSARY: There is no obligation or purchase necessary. A copy of the paper is available for playing the game at the office of this newspaper - also at the public library (ies) - also a Bingo card and/or copies of The Virginia Beach Sun containing the Bingo numbers may be obtained by mailing your request to this newspaper (please print your name and address clearly). You may play as many cards as you wish - they are free. Get additional cards - one at a time - each day of the week - from the merchants listed below (adults only).

DIFFERENT COLORED CARDS EACH WEEK: The color of the cards changes each week. To be a winner, you must play Bingo cards of the correct color for that week. Mutilated or altered cards will not be honored. ALL 24 NUMBERS ON A CARD MUST BE MATCHED TO WIN.

CHANCE DETERMINES NUMBERS: Bingo numbers for each week's game are drawn strictly at random at the office of this newspaper. Some duplication of Bingo numbers may appear in the merchants' ads - or elsewhere in the paper. This duplication does not affect the game or the total numbers drawn. All numbers for each week's game will appear somewhere in the sponsoring merchants' ads - and possibly elsewhere in the paper. Employees of this newspaper and members of their families are not eligible to win any of the prizes. Newspaper Bingo is a program copy-righted and registered by Marketing Research Associates, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Groin Use Still Debatable In Beach Replenishment

Lack of suitable means to determine benefits has delayed City Council's approving construction of a groin off the resort city's beaches to prevent continued erosion of the beaches.

The matter came before Council Monday in the form of permits from the Virginia Marine Resources Commission and Army Corps of Engineers approving construction of the groin by Shoreline Erosion Control Corporation of Virginia Beach.

J.M. Potter, S.E.C. President, explained to Council the groin would consist of 1,000 feet of steel sandfences placed approximately 400 feet offshore. The fence, consisting of fifty 80-foot sections anchored in the ocean floor about three feet under water, would be set-up between 17th and 20th Streets. Potter told Council the pre-constructed sections would be placed in the Atlantic Ocean by means of a helicopter.

The above granted permits contained stipulations that Potter first obtain permission of City Council to install the groin, and post a $50,000 surety bond to cover cost of removal of the groin if it proved unsuccessful in preventing beach erosion.

Potter explained he foresaw no problem in posting the bond but questioned the amount, when it would cost $5,000 to install the groin and $10,000 to remove it if proven unsuccessful.

Councilman D. Murray Malbon raised the question, "At what point and who would determine whether this is helping the beach?" Potter responded, "Maybe City Council could appoint an engineer, or perhaps my engineer, to conduct the tests."

City Manager Roger Scott suggested, "Perhaps Old Dominion University's Oceanography Department might be able to conduct testing."

Mayor Donald H. Rhodes reminded Council, "The City's request for experimental groins has been approved for the area between 24th and 34th Streets." Rhodes then questioned, "With this plus the operation of a commercial dredge, how can we determine what has caused the beach to build-up, if it does?"

Councilman F. Reid Ervin offered the opinion, "We will have to let the beach stabilize after current operations before permitting Potter to go in."

Potter countered with, "You'll be able to see a difference in that beach within 60 days," after start of his project. He added he was willing to work with city officials in determining benefits of the project.

Rhodes told Potter, "We are all striving to build-up, and the beach and we don't want to discourage you, but we have so many things to consider before going ahead. So we must have controls to determine if it is working."

Councilman Robert B. Cromwell suggested, "This will have to be deferred to the City Manager" for devising a method of determining success of the groin.

Council favored Cromwell's suggestion and deferred the matter to City Manager Roger Scott to determine the best procedure.

If the project proves successful the city will bear the overall cost, which has been estimated at $100,000. Should the project prove unsuccessful, Potter will bear all costs involved.

Even large pleasure craft are dwarfed by the size of the commercial dredge operating at Rudee Inlet to replenish eroded resort strip beaches. The dredge moved on scene last Friday and immediately began pumping sand, with the assistance of a large booster unit, onto the beach in the area of 24th Street.

Planning Commission Action

The Planning Commission met Tuesday to consider the following applications for use permits, changes of zoning, and trailer and subdivision variances.

The following applications were denied:

- +Application of Trans-Pacific Corporation for a use permit to construct 56 apartment units west of Holly Road in Linnhaven Park on the basis of traffic congestion in the area.

Court Action Possible In Claim To Council Seat

Walter J. Leveridge says he may take court action to challenge the May 2 re-election of at-large City Councilman George Ferrell. Leveridge is claiming Ferrell is not qualified to return to Council on July 1 due to failure to comply with requirements to disclose his campaign expenses.

Leveridge filed a letter with Circuit Court last Thursday which claimed Ferrell failed to meet requirements of the Virginia Election Laws which call for the filing of a final disclosure of campaign expenses with the City Electoral Board and the State Board of Elections "No later than noon on the thirtieth day after the election or prior to taking office, whichever first occurs."

A check of expense statements of all City Council members last Thursday at the Electoral Board office failed to show the filing of the required statement on the part of Ferrell. These same records indicated Leveridge met the requirement on May 15. These same records

Program Offered

Old Dominion University is offering a Summer Prep Program for students who need remedial or refresher work before entering an institution of higher education.

The non-credit programs combine verbal and mathematical studies with guided independent study in areas where the student is weak. Orientation and counseling designed to assist the new student are also included in the courses. Day students may take both verbal and mathematical studies at a total cost of approximately $300. Evening students are restricted to verbal studies, costing approximately $160, or mathematics, costing less than $100.

Students ranging in age from 16 to 42 have enrolled for the eight weeks of classes that begin on campus June 19. Registration is being accepted through that date. Further information may be obtained by contacting the Prep Director, Division of Continuing Education at ODU.

also indicated that John T. Atkinson, who finished third among the top four candidates for two at-large seats, also failed to meet the requirement.

Hotel owner Charles Gardner who won an at-large Council seat met the election laws requirement.

On the basis of these facts Leveridge is claiming he should be awarded Ferrell's seat on Council, since neither Ferrell nor Atkinson qualified as candidates.

Leveridge also discussed the matter with Commonwealth

Attorney Andre Evans, who sought an opinion of the matter from the State Attorney General's office. This opinion viewed the 30 day filing requirement as being directory rather than mandatory.

Yesterday, Wednesday, Leveridge said, "We're not satisfied with the opinion of the Attorney General's office. The law is very clear and concise as passed by the State Legislature, effective July 19, 1971, and we're contemplating further legal action based on the advice of my attorney."

Deputy Circuit Court Clerk B.W. Ballou (left) records Leveridge's letter challenging the election of Councilman George R. Ferrell.

THIRD GRADE CLASSES at Heritage Elementary School last week received the book, "People and Their Environment, Teachers' Curriculum Guide to Conservation Education" from the Lake Joyce Garden Club. Miss Katherine Vaden, third-grade teacher, (l) and Mrs. Mary Ellen Wood, (r) librarian at Hermitage, glance through the books with Mrs. James N. Agles, of the Lake Joyce Garden Club. Eventually the club will place the book in all third grades of the city schools.

Jail Decision Expected By Next Week

The State Board of Welfare and Institutions is expected to announce next Wednesday what action it will take regarding alleged violations of regulations at the Virginia Beach City Jail. Board members last Wednesday directed Department of Welfare and Institutions Director W.K. Cunningham to review a number of complaints concerning the jail, which included allegations that inmates beat other prisoners, with the knowledge if not the consent of the jailors. Cunningham was also directed to report his findings, coupled with suggested action which the SBWI might take, in two weeks.

The move followed a meeting between SBWI members and resort city officials in which the City requested SBWI take action as outlined in the Virginia State Code when infractions of jail operations are discovered.

SBWI earlier indicated it was waiting to see what action the City may take in the matter, however the City has requested SBWI fulfill its responsibility as stipulated in the State Code.

McCloud Graduates From Police Institute

Lt. Douglas H. McCloud has returned to duty with the Virginia Beach Police Division following graduation from the Southern Police Institute, University of Louisville, Louisville, Ky.

Lt. McCloud completed the comprehensive 12-week course with a "B" average, in subjects including Police Administration, Police Personnel Management, Psychology, and Constitutional Law. Completion of the course earns McCloud 12 college credits.

McCloud, 33, has achieved a number of other outstanding honors in connection with performance of his duties. In 1965 he was presented the Virginia Beach Jaycees' "L. Travis Branch Award" as Police Officer of the Year for devotion to duty and outstanding service to the City of Virginia Beach.

He is active in the Princess Anne F.O.P. Lodge number 8 currently serving as secretary, with previous service as president, and past president.

He is also active in the Virginia State F.O.P. Lodge, where he presently holds the office of Guard.

McCloud joined the resort city Police Division in September 1963, entering the Juvenile Bureau, after serving as two years as a Summer Police Officer. He was promoted to Detective Sergeant in that Bureau in August 1967.

In February 1972 and reassigned as Aide to Capt. C.W. Simmons, C.O. of the Police Personnel and Training Bureau.

His background includes special training at a number of crime clinics and conferences on police subjects including juvenile procedures, riot control tactics, K-9 Corps, fingerprinting, and sex crimes investigations. He is currently studying Law Enforcement at Tidewater Community College.

The son of Ira and Vera McCloud he resides with his wife Diana, and their three children, Gail, Chris and Melody, in the Little Neck area of Virginia Beach.

They had picked most of their campsites and all were interesting. But Barbara and Peter agree that an old graveyard was probably the quietest, and a Negro family recreational center in Georgia—whose owner came back after hours to turn on electricity and heat for them—was the most heartwarming.

They had planned to visit the beach. But a couple they met on a ferry off Hatteras told them about the Cayce center. "They said Virginia Beach was so nice that even Cayce settled there so I had to see what it was like," said Peter. What it was like was friendly.

"The people here are so warm and friendly," Barbara beamed and Peter added, "Just like a big, happy family." But he reserved his opinion of the Cayce readings until further study.

What was the biggest thing Peter had to learn during their traveling? How to refuse generosity—gifts of money, gifts of employment, etc. "It's hard for people to understand and we are doing this because we want to not be because we're destitute."

What are Barbara and Peter seeking for themselves and Ivan in today's world? According to Peter, a kind of life that will have roots and yet be rootless. And gazing off at the ocean Peter added, "And it's got to be close to water."

Why Do They Come?

By Thelma Barrett

Edgar Cayce, famed seer of Virginia Beach, left a legacy of more than 14 thousand psychic readings at his death in 1945. Since then the Association For Research and Enlightenment, where the readings are housed, has played host to thousands of visitors from all over the world. Why do they come? The answer seems to be as varied as the readings themselves.

Peter, Barbara and Ivan may one day write a book on ten-speed bike living—family style. Starting out from Florida on bikes, Ivan (aged 2) and his young parents got on as far as Virginia Beach some three months later. Their goal is Maine. "We can do forty to fifty miles a day easily," said Peter, "but our pace is geared to Ivan."

Their traveling day starts whenever Ivan happens to awaken in the morning. And the number of stops they make through the day is also set by him. "In fact," Peter added, "if Ivan ever shows signs that this trip is too much for him we'll cancel our schedule."

It doesn't look as though that day will come soon. Sturdy as his name, Ivan is a bundle of robust health with a lively interest in the world and the people about him. "And he's crazy about bike riding," laughed Barbara, pointing out Ivan's bike seat specially designed by father.

Why this whole venture? "It's something we can do now," Peter said simply. "Later we can't." Leaving a job with a wholesale air conditioning firm and its monetary security behind, Peter is financing this trip with just what he and Barbara pick up from odd jobs along the way. Nature and the outdoors have always had a strong appeal for both. But why such a rigorous form of travel?

"It's not rigorous," both chimed in. Except for some slight luring of the legs when they first began, Peter claims, "It's an exhilarating way to travel." Warning to his subject, Peter expressed hope that all abandoned railroad tracks will one day be converted to bike routes. "It's a great way to meet and really get to know people."

Avoiding tourist attractions, Peter maps their route so it takes them off the beaten path. "It's like discovering a new country every day," interjected Barbara, eyes sparkling. With their worldly goods scaled down to the barest essentials that will fit into two knapsacks strapped to their packs and a catchall on the rear of Barbara's bike, they can set up housekeeping at a moment's notice.

Staples like rice, canned mackerel and grits are standard gear. Perishables are picked up when needed. Bugs used to mar their evenings until they learned a trick. "We start looking for a campsite long before the supper hour," Peter explained, "so we can retire before dark. That way we avoid the insects that swarm around at dusk."

They had picked most of their campsites and all were interesting. But Barbara and Peter agree that an old graveyard was probably the quietest, and a Negro family recreational center in Georgia—whose owner came back after hours to turn on electricity and heat for them—was the most heartwarming.

fruit of the vine on the Lord's table? If not, why not? Is the above cartoon an accurate spoof at your attitude toward the word of God? For instance, when God's word says that we are "buried with him by baptism into death," (Rm. 6:3-5) would you argue, "sprinkling or pouring are just as good as burying?" And besides, you may continue "does the Bible say not to sprinkle?"

When Sun Sports Editor Jay Brumbley accompanied the Indian Lakes Pile Drivers to Chattanooga, Tenn. last week-end to cover their progress in the Pic-A-Dixie Softball Tournament, he had no idea he would go "arty". But even sports editors can be inspired by natural beauty and Jay was so intrigued by this dramatic cloud formation—at 14,000 feet—that he risked a shot from the airplane window. He got some good shots, too, of the Pile Drivers' grueling two days of tournament play. Photos and story are on page 8.

City Charter Blocks July Mayor's Election

By Les Lehigh

The failure to change portions of the Virginia Beach City Charter, as approved by the 1971 General Assembly, casts doubt over the election of a mayor and vice-mayor at the July 1 installation of the newly elected City Council.

Two portions of the City Charter were involved in the changes, the changing of the date of the Councilmanic election from June to May and installation of the Council on July 1 or first meeting thereafter, and the election of a mayor and vice-mayor during the initial meeting of the newly elected City Council.

While the General Assembly, which has the responsibility of approving revisions of the City Charter at the request of Virginia Beach officials, acted on changing the date of the Councilmanic election, action was apparently never taken to change the portion of the City Charter authorizing the election of the mayor and vice-mayor. The Charter presently reads, "At the first regular meeting of the Council in September, following the general election of Councilmen, the Council shall choose by a majority vote of all its members there one of its members to be mayor and one to be vice-mayor." This prohibits these elections during the first meeting of the newly installed council within the next two weeks.

This apparently leaves Council with no choice but to continue functioning under incumbent Mayor Donald H. Rhodes' guidance until September at which time he could be re-elected, or Council then could elect a new mayor.

Mayor Donald H. Rhodes was contacted at the Annual Mayors Conference in New Orleans for his reaction to Council's not being able to act on the office of mayor until September. Rhodes said, "They way it looks to me, I probably will remain as mayor at least until September, since there are no provisions to elect a new mayor until then. I have no intentions to resign, and probably will remain there until September."

On the failure to correct the Charter provisions Rhodes said, "My first thought was that maybe it was an oversight," He added, "It may be a blessing in disguise it will give us a chance to work with the newly elected Council forming in July. It may be of help to us to be able to work with the new Councilmen for two months before reorganization." Rhodes concluded, "I'm not particularly disturbed by it one way or the other."

Filling the office of vice-mayor is more difficult however since Earl M. Tebault, who presently holds that office, chose not to run for re-election.

Under existing provisions of the City Charter Council could authorize Tebault to continue functioning as vice-mayor until September had he been re-elected. However in his absence from Council membership, Council now is apparently faced with the appointment of a new vice-mayor to fill that office for the months interim until the authorized date of election. In discussing the situation with various city officials Wednesday, there was no indication of any request having been made to members of the General Assembly as yet to revise the unchanged portion of the City Charter. It was pointed out however that the General Assembly is not scheduled to convene until next year, so the City Council therefore has no alternative regarding the election of a mayor and vice-mayor within the next two weeks.

Two teenagers were killed in a collision of two autos Tuesday afternoon on a road near the intersection of Police Iden Deborah L. Chickasaw, 16, of Pocom, 15, of Virginia Beach, passenger in the Miss Thames, was killed. The accident on the city's highway day to 14.

Fear Of Favoritism At Rudee Dispelled

The advertising for competitive design bids for private development of the Lake Rudee basin is expected by July 1, according to A. James DeBellis, Director, City Department of Economic Development. DeBellis has quickly dispelled any fear of favoritism in the private development of city owned property at Lake Rudee. The fear arose during last Monday's City Council meeting when DeBellis unveiled details of a proposal for such private development through design bids, as requested by Council last March 6. At that time Council decided to discontinue the City's operation of a marina servicing charter fishing boat owners, and develop the property on a commercial sale or lease basis. Leonard Israel, representing International Developments Inc., of Dearborn, Mich., told Council he would like to bid on the property, but questioned how many design bid developers could afford to have a large sum of money remain on deposit with the City for a lengthy period of time which might be required in selection of the acceptable bid. Israel's appearance at the unveiling of the proposal, which reportedly resulted from a request from Ray Richardson, charter boat owner affiliated with Atlantic Charter Services, raised fears that he may be given preferential treatment in consideration of bids, or have received advance notice of contents of the design bid proposal. When DeBellis was questioned about any wrong impressions which might have been created by Israel's appearance he said, "Everyone has an equal opportunity to bid on this project. There will be a 90 day period within which the bidders can prepare and submit their documents, and the documents will have to outline exactly what is required." He added, "This precludes accepting any material plans, specifications from prospective developers before they have obtained copies of the design bid proposal."

Concerning Israel's possibly having obtained advance notice of the proposal's contents, DeBellis pointed out that copies of the proposal had been distributed only to members of Council, and that last Monday's meeting was the initial showing of the proposal beyond the staff members of his department who took part in its preparation. The retention of money by the City during review of bids, referred to by Israel, was a stipulation of the proposal that project bidders make a cash, or bid bond, deposit with the City to show "good faith" intentions of proceeding with the development on acceptance of their bid.

The deposit involves a sum of $15,000 or $25,000 depending upon which portion of land involved in the project the bidder is seeking to purchase and development. This deposit would be applied to the cost of land at the time of the successful bidder's purchase, and be refunded to unsuccessful

Decision Awaited On Wetlands

A decision is expected at next Monday's City Council meeting whether Virginia Beach will attempt to establish local enforcement of Wetlands legislation passed by the 1972 General Assembly, or rely on enforcement controls by the State. Such "Wetlands Boards" would be charged with strict adherence to the legislation to accomplish the purpose of preserving marshes and similar areas, which are quite prevalent in Virginia Beach. The question arose during Council's consideration last Monday of dredging projects which the City is seeking federal approval for which would involve marshy areas and/or areas of water affected by tidal action. The City must record such projects with the federal government no later than July 1 in order that they might be approved in waters which would be restricted under the legislation. City Manager Roger Scott told Council that meetings on the question have been held with officials of surrounding cities in hopes the Tidewater area would unite in local or State control. Scott said, "While Norfolk and Portsmouth favor State control, I feel there is also some considered leaning towards local control."

Community Services, presented Council with a detailed outline of the City's "Master Dredging Program, containing 13 areas where dredging is currently underway of programed for the near future. Flemming's outline tied these 13 areas to the requiring of additional drainage canals in the City's "Flood Control Program", and the location of new sources of sand to replenish regional beaches. The areas of concern include Pleasure House Creek; three sections of Long Creek (near the City Marina at Lynnhaven, west of the Long Creek Bridge, and east of the Long Creek Bridge towards the Broad Bay area); the Rudee Inlet waters; the eastern and western branch of the Lynnhaven River; four projected canals (1-Seaside Neck Canal, 2-a canal southward from Potters Road to Shipps Corner, 3-a canal from the Eastern Branch of the Elizabeth River to North Landing River, 4-a canal linking Rudee Inlet with Lynnhaven Bay); a connector canal linking 2 and 3 above together; and a canal in Thalia Creek. Dredging projects proposed in the future by the Virginia Beach Erosion Commission as a source of sand supply for beach replenishment have been in

Theatre Elects Officers

Horace "Mac" McManus was elected Tuesday night to serve as president of the Little Theatre of Virginia Beach. He succeeds Jim English who has held the office for three years while the group undertook construction of its own theatre building at 24th Street and Barborton Drive. Other new officers elected at the annual meeting, held in the theatre, are: Joe Worrall, business vice president; Ann Penington, production vice president; Betty Hamblin, treasurer; Jean Washburn, recording secretary; and Penny Martin, corresponding secretary. A number of members were also elected to the board. Herbert Harrell was elected to fill an unexpired one-year term. Elected to three year terms were McManus, Worrall, Bob Coulting, Pete Scoppa and Mike Hamblin.

Key Personnel Additions To Sun

David R. Dear, president of Dear Publication and Radio, Inc., Washington, D. C., today announced the appointment of David Poole, as general manager of Beach Publishing Corporation, publishers of the Virginia Beach Sun and The Windjammer. Poole, who has already assumed the duties of his new position, has also announced two key personnel appointments. He has named William H. Bowden advertising manager of both the Sun and Windjammer and Ron Dustman has been named to the newly created position of art director and assistant advertising manager of the Sun. Poole recently served as general manager of Collinwood Publishing Corporation and Boulder Publishing Corporation in Euclid, Ohio. Collinwood publishes three weekly newspapers with a circulation of 53,546. In announcing the appointment, Dear said "Poole brings to us an outstanding record of achievement in newspaper management and advertising direction. We are pleased to have obtained his services for Virginia Beach." Poole has served in advertising management positions with The Daily Times, Niles, Ohio; The Daily Times, New Philadelphia, Ohio; The Cleveland (Ohio) Press; and The Daily Times, Marietta, Ohio. "The Virginia Beach Sun has taken important strides in recent months to become an outstanding, well-read newspaper serving the people of Virginia Beach," Poole said. "We will concentrate our efforts on obtaining the widest distribution possible, the best representation of advertising in this market and an improved editorial product that will keep the people of Virginia Beach informed." "We look forward to working with the staff of the Sun and the people of Virginia Beach and making the Virginia Beach Sun a great newspaper," he added. Poole, 34, is married to the former Nancy Hamblight of

Grant Awarded For Erosion Aid Device

The development of a remote sensing device to measure variations in sand height may be the key to solving erosion problems currently plaguing Virginia Beach and other coastal cities, according to Gerald L. Shideler, assistant professor of geophysical sciences and oceanography at Old Dominion University. Shideler has received an $11,995 contract from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at the Langley Research Center for the development of such a sand height gauge; and, if testing proves its effectiveness, plans to seek additional funds to study beach erosion with the device and propose solutions to the problems. "Much of the effort regarding beach replenishment over the past two decades has been not only costly to the taxpayer, but to a large degree ineffective from the standpoint that it has provided only temporary relief to the problem," said Shideler.

"In order to develop an effective remedial program which has the potential of providing more permanent solutions to the problem, it is necessary that comprehensive scientific studies be conducted to evaluate the dynamics of the coastal sediment transport system. This can only be done by the long-term monitoring of off-shore sediment migration patterns. Hopefully, this gauge might have the potential of providing the necessary instrumentation for such a study." Only a few inches in diameter, the cylindrical gauge was designed at the Langley Research Center. Pressure-sensitive on the top and bottom, the gauge will be embedded in the sea floor to measure sediment erosion or accretion through pressure variations. A multi-channel recorder, connected by cable to the device, will record continuous measurements on a long-term basis. "The gauge might have a tremendous impact on the Tidewater area," said Shideler. "Problems of erosion and accretion, such as at Virginia Beach, Rudee Inlet and the shoals off Chesapeake Bay, are all related to sediment migration. In order to solve the problem, the basic requirement is to determine the pattern of sand movement — how much sand is moving and where it's moving. This data, received by monitoring several gauges in a given area, could then be correlated with meteorological data and water current conditions," he added. In the case of Virginia Beach, Shideler said, there have not been any good scientific studies of this nature involving a long period of time. One method of study has been the use of scuba divers to measure sediment fluctuations on stakes embedded in the sand, he noted, but this method is not efficient. "Scuba divers have to wait for good conditions to take readings, but storm weather is when most of the erosion takes place and they can't measure them. The key to the situation is remote sensing — gathering data in both calm and storm on a continuous basis." When Shideler receives the prototype of the gauge, a series of laboratory and field tests will follow to ascertain the accuracy of the device. The prototype is expected within the next several days. "We'll work out the bugs through the tests and then develop a number of instruments, all identical, capable of monitoring several areas simultaneously," he said. Shideler plans a pilot study to detect patterns in a small area if time permits. The site of the study may be the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay, Rudee Inlet, Lynnhaven Inlet, or the coast off Fort Story or Dam Neck.

Lantern Players Are Refreshing

"Live entertainment" in Virginia Beach can mean anything from topless go-go dancers to an ear-shattering rock group. But at least one place has come up with "live entertainment" that means "we'll do our best to entertain you" for any age group.

The place is the Brass Lantern on Beaumont Road. A group of young people who are people who are doing the thing called "entertainment" on their own particular talents. It isn't every profession, but it is refreshing. And it is entertaining.

Background music throughout the 9 p.m. hours is provided by a young singer, Larry Phinias, an assistant chaplain at Fort Story, who provides a delightful assortment of folk and popular numbers.

He could easily take over the dinner hour with his talent and his stage presence, but he obviously prefers to keep it at a subtle key for background enjoyment.

Come 9 p.m. the stage is set for more concentrated entertainment, and a quartet of young people—waitresses and Brass Lantern restaurateurs—turn out for a skit of the one-act variety which they have written, produced and directed. It will never shake up Broadway, but it's a fun thing simply because they, too, enjoy it and delight in entertaining the dinner patrons.

The skit ends and yet another act comes forth—a genuine Spanish flamenco dancer, complete with lavish costume and stomping feet, followed by additional numbers by the singing chaplain.

What the youngsters at the Brass Lantern have come up with is a real innovation at Virginia Beach. They give you good food—but most of all they give themselves. And that's a hard combination to beat!

What Is Live Entertainment?

Councilman George R. Ferrell raised the question during discussion of a request to permit dancing and live entertainment at "The Factory" located at the intersection of Gammon and Indian River Roads. Denial followed a motion from Ferrell upholding the Planning Commission's recommendation, which was seconded by Councilman Floyd E. Waterfield.

Ferrell questioned if the city ordinances obtain a definition of "live entertainment" denoting exactly what it consists of, a musical combo, single musical instrument, or topless go-go dancer, or similar attractions.

He was expected to have his answer within a short length of time.

Wesleyan Names Faculty For Music Workshop

Eight faculty members have been named for the 1972 Virginia Wesleyan College Music Workshop August 13-19. Russell Stanger, conductor of the Norfolk Symphony, will serve as music director for the workshop.

The faculty includes three members of the Feldman String Quartet, Mrs. Janet Kriner, Ronald Marshall and Mrs. Dora Short. Three college faculty members, Dr. Kenneth A. Keeling, Harold A. Jones and Paul G. Taylor will join two public school orchestra directors, Gregory Barnes and Mrs. Linda Decker, to complete the faculty.

Mrs. Kriner is principal cellist with the Norfolk Symphony Orchestra and a member of the Feldman Quartet. Mr. Marshall is principal violinist with the Norfolk Symphony and music director for the Feldman Quartet. Mrs. Short is concertmaster and principal violinist for the Norfolk Symphony and a member of the Feldman.

Dr. Keeling is a member of the music faculty at Norfolk State College and has just completed his doctorate at Catholic University in Washington. He has performed with the Norfolk Symphony and with the Feldman String Quartet.

'Gypsy' Isn't Perfect-But It's A Dadgum Good Show!

There once was this stage mother, the personification of all stage mothers...strong-willed, overbearing and devoted to the careers of two lovely young daughters. Her driving force was, of course, her own satisfaction in recreating, through her offspring, the glamorous "show business" life she herself had never had an opportunity to enjoy. Life had passed her by, her own talents obscured by years of wifely and motherly duties, until, at last, her only hope for self-expression remained in the accomplishments of her children.

So it was with "Mama Rose", mother of Gypsy Rose Lee and Baby June (later known as June Haver, the actress). And she is beautifully brought to life in all her driving brassiness by Arnyce Anders in the Cavalier Dinner Playhouse production of "Gypsy".

Miss Anders brings to the local stage a Rose who is annoyingly aggressive for her young daughters, yet pathetically sad in her search for her own recognition. It is a demanding role, but Miss Anders rises to the challenge and creates a character of considerable depth.

This was quite evident opening night in the touching scene in which Rose pushes innocent and insecure young Louise (Gypsy) onto the burlesque stage to make her debut as a stripper. A matron in the Cavalier audience impulsively, and emotionally, called out "Oh, no!" The audience broke out in hysterical laughter. But they missed the true significance...the actress had created a character so believable that those who watched became totally engrossed in the action. It was a sincere and spontaneous compliment.

Miss Anders is so overwhelming with her "belt-out" voice and power-packed actions that it first appears this will be a production by Arnyce & Company. Not so, not so at all. The entire cast is strong; they even manage to steal a few scenes right out from under Mama Rose.

The "You Gotta Get A Gimmick" number, for instance is a real show-stopper, as Pat Bruce (sporting a butterfly), Dottie Holz (her's is a trumpet) and Kathleen Winnett (she lights up) bump and grind their way right into Cavalier stardom. The audience (male members, of course!) whistled and shrieked—shades of old burlesque!—and kept the "stripper" onstage for several mid-performance encores. They were great, absolutely great.

Julie Styne's music in this show is tricky but memorable—"Let Me Entertain You", "Small World", "Everything's Coming Up Roses", "Together Wherever We Go"—and it is beautifully executed by Jane Gallatin and six musicians, with the staging and choreography by Gene Hammett.

Miss Anders' strong voice carries much of the music but the show's final number, "Rose's Turn", in which Rose admits she has forsaken her own life and her own happiness to pursue a hopeless dream through her daughters, is the real gripper.

And there are other exceptional numbers: Jack Bloom does a terrific job as a dapper song and dance man in "All I Need is the Girl" and the girls, Carol Garrison as June and Dawn Wagner as Louise (Gypsy), have their finest moment in "If Momma Was Married". Up until the "Momma" number, Miss Garrison's voice has been used only in a childish falsetto in her masquerade as a precocious child star and Miss Wagner has, as the role requires, smothered her own talents in favor of her sister. But here, at last, they show their true talented colors.

Director Jon Dawson adapted the show to the Cavalier stage via some very effective "gimmicks", especially the transition scene when the very young June (Angela Combs) and Louise (Karen Alperin) span the years right before the audience's eyes. It's all done quite smoothly with strobe lights.

Dawson also doubled up on some of the characters—this, too, quite effectively—with Bob Beard, Jim Welsh and Jim Scott providing an assortment of characterizations. These three were, actually, the background of the show, filling in around the plot wherever needed; no small accomplishment, to say the least.

Rose's love interest is in the form of Herbie, her devoted, patient and long-suffering boyfriend—and the girls' manager—who stands in the wings waiting for stardom to hit so that Rose will finally marry him and give up her wild goose chase for success. Danny Gunn brings to the role the perfect ingredients for credibility: flamboyance as the girls' manager, sensitivity as Rose's lover. The audience sympathizes with his objections to Rose's desire for Gypsy to be a stripper and understands when he finds the courage to walk out. But his absence leaves a void and one hopes until the very end he will return.

The Cavalier's "Gypsy" is a good show. It isn't perfect. At times the action is jerky and erratic; Miss Wagner is a bit too down-trodden and not quite believable as a sexy stripper; Miss Garrison lacks the polish Baby June should have in the production numbers; and the Courtney Branch got a lucky headpiece and won the chance to scoop up as many pennies as he could place in his bank in one minute. Charm Associates model Mary Wroten, on hand for the opening, times the quickly scooping youngster.

Day Camp Held For Handicapped

"Helping Hands for the Handicapped" is a community-wide effort to provide a free two week summer day camp for the mentally retarded and severely handicapped children of Virginia Beach.

The camp, to be held at Kingston Elementary School from 9 to 12 a.m., July 10 through July 17, will offer swimming, dancing, music, arts and crafts, physical education, and motor control and manual dexterity training.

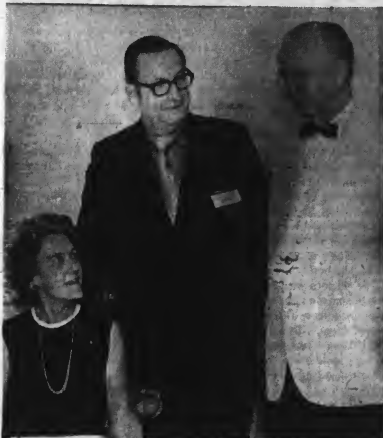

Any persons desiring to help either as a teenage counselor or classroom teacher, or by making a contribution are urged to contact Kenneth L. Treiber, camp director at 532 Caren Drive, 622-2780 or 466-3908. All donations will be received and acknowledged by return mail.

All prospective campers are also urged to contact Mr. Treiber.

New Multi-Family Units Approved By Council

Monday's City Council meeting resulted in approval of several applications involving the construction of additional multi-family dwelling units in Virginia Beach. The approvals concern construction of 37 townhouses and 9 apartments.

Devonshire, Ltd., appeared before Council with a request for a use permit to construct 43 townhouses for sale on the western extremity of Delaware Avenue, in the Shadowlawn Heights area of Lynnhaven Borough.

Planning Commissioners recommended approval of the application with a reduction of 40 townhouse units, based on the density factor of land involved.

Additional discussion on the part of Council, which also touched upon reservation of open space for recreational purposes, resulted in Councilman D. Murray Malbon motioning approval of the application for a total of 37 townhouses. Council approved the motion after being seconded by Councilman George R. Ferrell.

The new apartment units result from the approval of a request for a use permit from Vernon E. Chandler, II, for six apartments to be constructed in the Woodland Area of Lynnhaven Borough.

Planning Commissioners recommended approval of the application with a suggested reduction from the requested eight units to six units, based on density factors involved.

Council approval followed a motion from Councilman F. Reid Ervin, seconded by Malbon.

Transpacific Corp., also won Council approval for construction of a one-story professional office building in the area of Virginia Beach General Hospital. The building will be located at the intersection of Will-O-Wisp and First Colonial Road, and house physicians and other medically related facilities.

Council upheld the recommendation of Planning Commissioners and approved a request from T & K Construction, Inc., to operate a 50-horse boarding-stable near the intersection of Elbow Road and Salem Road in the Salem Methodist Church area of Kempville Borough.

Ferrell's motion to approve the application was seconded by Councilman Dr. Clarence Holland.

A request to operate a kindergarten day school and educational facilities, including a religious book store, from Tabernacle Baptist Church received Council's approval. The facility will be located near the intersection of Providence Road and Whitehurst Landing Road in the Kempville Borough.

Council voted to uphold the Planning Commission's recommendation on a motion from Ferrell, seconded by Councilman Robert B. Cromwell.

Miss Melinda Kicklighter won Council's approval on a request to operate a Montessori School on property adjacent to the Memorial Methodist Church in the Kempville Borough, near the intersection of Indian River Road and Sunnyside Drive.

Ferrell's motion to uphold Planning Commission's recommendations was seconded by Cromwell.

cluded in the City's "Master Dredging Program", in the Rudee Inlet Waters project, for federal approval.

These include cutting an access through marshlands to the Eureka Ark Co., site off Owl's Creek; Lake Rudee off Harbour Point; and the north, west, south branches of Lake Rudee.

These projects are concerned in the Wetlands Legislation not only because they involve marshlands, but also "tidal waters".

During discussion of the above matters Councilmen were quick to point out that while projects discussed here represent plans by the City of Virginia Beach, that individuals or private firms who might wish to conduct dredging operations in waters similar to those above would also have to federal approval.

bidders. In stating his objections Israel said, "Design bidders are not general contractors and don't have that kind of money to be tied up for long periods of time." He added, "One of my main concerns is if this thing is a definite project and how long would it take to bid."

Councilman F. Reid Ervin felt Israel's feelings, "...such a deposit would guard against irresponsible bids on the project."

City Manager Roger Scott echoed Ervin's feelings by saying "A bid deposit is a valid indication of good faith intentions."

The proposal calls for the project to be developed in two phases, on two separate parcels of land. Parcel "A" is the property now being used as a temporary marina which houses 22 charter fishing boats, and the police boat. Recommended private development suggests construction of motel, restaurant, salt water marine aquarium, or similar type development. Suggested sale price of Parcel "A" was $155,250.00.

Parcel "B", located approximately one block west of Parcel "A" with a privately owned marina separating the two, is recommended for use primarily as a marina with a minimum number of slips to house those boats presently located at the temporary city marina. Recommended sale price of Parcel "B" was $97,500.00.

The proposal also calls for sale of Parcel "B" first and construction of a minimum number of slips prior to the sale of Parcel "A" for its development. This is to facilitate the relocation of the fishing fleet to assure boat owners not losing any benefits of the "tourist season."

The design bid documents will be required to contain architectural renderings and sufficient supporting data to provide a visual concept, and supporting specifications, during review of the bids.

DeBellis says, "Design bidders will have 90 days from the date of advertising in which to file their bids with the City's Department of Economic Development. The bids will be turned over to City Council and Council members will within 90 days of receipt of bids, select the bid which will best enhance the area, and be an aid to the tourist industry and the City's economic base."

Council last Monday unanimously approved acceptance of the proposal and directed DeBellis to proceed as outlined therein on a motion from Councilman Dr. Clarence A. Holland, seconded by Councilman Frank A. Dusch.

C & P Asks For Rate Increase

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Virginia has asked the State Corporation Commission for a statewide rate increase.

Lee C. Tait, vice president of C&P, said at a news conference in Richmond last Thursday the company needs $36 million in additional revenues to realize approximately $18 million in income annually after taxes.

Tait stated, "C&P's earnings are inadequate. Last year we sought over $51 million in increased revenues or enough money to earn a 9 1/2 percent return on our investment but the SCC only granted the company $33.3 million or a rate of return of 8 1/2 percent, based on 1970 conditions. However, continued inflation coupled with heavy demand for communication services plus the normal delay in the regulatory process, will prevent us from earning even the 8.5 percent in 1972."

"Our rates have to be set at levels that will give us the earnings we need to attract investor capital and to meet our growing service obligations to the public—now and in the future. The conditions under which the company is operating have not materially changed and we still need a return on our intrastate investment in the range of 9 1/2 percent," Tait added.

According to C&P's local manager, Floyd Patrick, some of the rates proposed in Virginia Beach are as follows: Individual line residence rates will increase from $7.50 to $8.50 per month and two-party residence service will go from $6.25 to $7.00 per month. The rate for individual line business service increases from $19.50 to $24.40 per month.

The majority of customer-dialed long distance calls in the daytime would increase five cents and a ten-cent increase would also apply on most operator-assisted long distance calls.

Also, the company proposes to eliminate or reduce the mileage charges for some 5,600 customers in 23 exchanges throughout the state.

C&P's rate proposal also includes a monthly increase of fifteen cents on business message rate service extensions while individual flat rate business line extensions would be decreased by twenty cents.

C&P proposes to apply a $10 charge for customer-initiated records changes. This charge would apply to items such as, restoration of suspended service, customer-initiated change of telephone number, and changes in nonlisted or nonpublished telephone numbers.

Tait further stated that since 1952 the charge for the use of a coin telephone has been ten cents and a new rate of twenty cents is proposed. However, at the time C&P introduces the new rate on coin phones it will provide "dial tone first." The introduction of "dial tone first" will begin in about 18 months and will enable customers to dial the operator to reach emergency numbers without using a coin.

In addition C&P proposes to apply charges more realistic to actual cost for installing, moving or changing a residence phone—this will increase from $15 to $25 for new service and from $10 to $15 for additional service. The proposed service connection charge for individual business phones would go from $25 to $35.

The company's request includes a 25-cent monthly increase for nonpublished telephone numbers from 75 cents to $1.00 while nonlisted numbers will remain at present rates.

C&P proposes the statewide expansion of message rate service and the introduction of timing of message units, when facilities are available. Message rate service is a measured service which permits unlimited incoming calling but establishes an allowance of outgoing calls (50 for residence and 80 for business) that are included in the monthly rate. Customers who elect message rate service will be billed at a rate of one message unit for each five minutes of conversation or fraction thereof. The charge for each message unit would be increased from the present six cents to seven cents.

C&P's vice president said he hopes the Commission would look favorably on the company's request for a rate increase. "We must achieve adequate earnings to attract new capital," Tait noted. "In the next three years, C&P will need some $600 million for statewide construction programs, half of which must come from the capital market, where we are competing with alternate investment opportunities. We will continue our efforts to provide good service and, wherever possible, to improve the efficiency of our operations. But we are faced today with a combination of economic pressures that demand further rate relief."

Other items involved in C&P's rate proposal are: Monthly charges for Princess phones would increase 10 cents; the nonrecurring charge for color telephones would be reduced from $7.50 to $4.00 and eliminated on Triline and Princess phones.

C&P is also seeking rate adjustments for various other business services, including PBX's, Centrex, private lines and mobile telephone service. In addition the company proposes to charge hotels and motels for both telephone lines and extension phones the same rates it charges other business customers.

City Firemen—Paid And Volunteer

Even though the strain on them is at times heavy, and they seldom know what awaits them when they rush to the site of fire, the firemen of Virginia Beach are untiring in their efforts to protect lives and property. This was the scene last week when fire, which had broken through the roof as firemen arrived, heavily damaged the garage of the Charles Evans family on Mediterranean Avenue.

D. C. CURRENT
BY CYRENE DEAR

Summer is a good time to visit area churches either on Sunday or to stop in for meditation when passing.

Sunday, June 11th I chose to visit Luther Place Memorial Church at Thomas Circle. The service featured the senior choir of Congregational Christian Church of Fairfax, Va. It was accompanied by musicians from the Mexican Embassy with their guitars, bongo drums and trumpets.

The congregation joined in singing "Hey, hey, anybody listening" and a new hymn "If there is a Holy Spirit." The repeated refrain was particularly moving.

"If there is a Holy Spirit,
If there is a Heavenly Dove,
I would like to see and hear it
Changing this cold world with love."

Luther Place church is approaching its centennial year. It was organized in 1873 in memory of the peace between the states and the freedom of the slaves. It is a community-involved church. It operates a coffee house on Friday and Saturday nights for metropolitan youth and a weekend hostel for visiting Lutheran young people who come to visit the nation's capital.

The church cooperates with a local boy's club and a three-way project PRO-JE-CT, where Protestants, Jews and Catholics unite to serve the community. Mondays through Fridays all space in the parish building is used for an Early Child Development Center operated by the city's United Planning Organization.

Every Sunday the parishioners bring food and clothing that is distributed in the nearby 14th Street area which was the scene of the riots following the murder of the late Martin Luther King.

In the midst of all this activity the enthusiastic, bearded pastor conducts the traditional Lutheran service with its liturgy and homily.

One left the service in this beautiful historic church with a feeling of hope and joy and that something new has been added to the old time religion.

Sometimes I stop in the nearby Roman Catholic Church of St. Stephen the Martyr and sit in the pew marked John Fitzgerald Kennedy, who sometimes worshipped there. It too has adopted new practices of worship with women and youth participating in the service.

The New York Avenue Presbyterian church at 13th Street is within walking distance (about eight blocks). President Abraham Lincoln worshipped here and one can sit in the Lincoln pew if he gets there early enough. The Reverend Peter Marshall, whose Senate prayers and Mr. Jones, Meet the Master are still widely read, served there from 1937 to 1949, when he died of a heart attack.

The New National Presbyterian is a showplace, where Dr. Edward L. R. Elson calls himself "the President's minister" because the late President Eisenhower joined it while it was located on Connecticut and N. Dr. Elson recently announced that he would resign to take full time as chaplain of the Senate.

The Johnnies frequently worshipped at St. John's Episcopal Church on Lafayette Square because Ladybird and daughter Linda are Episcopalians. The former President sometimes went to the National Christian Church and even attended Catholic services after daughter Luci became a Roman Catholic.

President Nixon has made the White House his church while he is in residence. Services of various denominations are held and attendance is by invitation. Even reporters have to be on the list.

For one who still keeps her Presbyterian membership in Bethesda, Md., she manages to get around to churches in the district. She is convinced that God is not dead and continues to work in mysterious ways. His wonders to perform.

Very Few Care

Someone recently made the comment that few people actually care about the jail controversy, that they close out reports of mistreatment of inmates—until it happens to someone they know.

That person apparently knew what he was talking about because the current question has brought very little response. If the citizens are as apathetic about such a situation, small wonder that officials continue to shrug it off.

The mail wasn't absolutely void of Sun Survey response, however; another handful of questionnaires came in on the previous question concerning the public's preference for mayor. Since we explained pretty thoroughly last week where the Sun stands on this poll, we won't comment on the latest responses except to say that nothing has changed the trend previously discussed.

We probably should pull the jail issue out and pose another question. But we're bullheaded and will continue it the usual two weeks just to see if there are any citizens out there who really care. Meanwhile, why don't you think up a question for us? Your suggestions are most welcome.

Cromwell
For Mayor

To the Editor:
Reorganization of the Virginia Beach Council will soon take place. Who is elected Mayor is most important. There are several men (old and new members) who could be selected but in my opinion Mr. Robert Cromwell is the one who should be the new Mayor.

It has been my pleasure to know Mr. Cromwell for several years and to observe his position on City Council issues. His decisions have not always pleased every citizen but neither has every decision of any other member. Mr. Cromwell is fully qualified, least controversial, and will receive the cooperation of other council members. He will give desirable and purposeful leadership to the Council.

All of us realize progress must be continued in the city of Virginia Beach but for this progress to be effective it must be a planned progress. Robert Cromwell will give this kind of leadership as he will have the members cooperating with him for a well organized Council directing the affairs of our City.

Mind Your Money By Peter Weaver

Certain food additives are suspected of being potential health hazards. The most worrisome, according to some scientists, are such preservatives as nitrites, nitrates, BHT, BHA and some of the artificial food colors.

Because there isn't enough solid proof yet that these additives pose a real health problem, they have been okayed (with some reservations) by the Food and Drug Administration. Even so, some food manufacturers—to soothe public fears—are removing the more controversial additives.

In the baby food field, the main worry has been focused on nitrates and nitrites which may possibly cause anemia or cancer. These chemicals have been added to ham, bacon and other meats nitrates which come from farm fertilizers.

Beecham's says it has removed production all products containing nitrates and nitrites—even the spinach. Beecham hot dogs don't have nitrates or nitrites and the company has also removed the coloring Red No. 2 from its cookies because it's suspected as a possible cause of birth defects.

Gerber says it now uses only fresh ham which contains no nitrates or nitrites and has discontinued using bacon. Gerber meat sticks still have small amounts of nitrates and nitrites but the company says this summer it will either remove the additives or discontinue the product.

Also this summer, Gerber's spinach will contain a new warning: "Not recommended for infants under 12 weeks of age."

Heinz says it has diluted nitrite and nitrate additives in its corn dinners by mixing three parts fresh ham with one part nitrite-cured ham.

Wesson does not use anti-oxidant additives, BHT and BHA, in its cooking oil. These additives have been frowned on by some scientists. Crisco doesn't use BHT or BHA in its solid shortening but does use these additives in its oil. Planters peanut oil doesn't contain BHT or BHA nor do other Planters peanut products. Mazola corn oil contains some mild additives but not BHT or BHA.

Other products that do not contain BHT or BHA are: Wise potato chips, Jays potato chips, Red Star dry yeast, Downey's frozen French toast, Luter pork sausage, Gwaltney pork sausage, Del Monte and Mother Filbert's desserts.

Dannon and Colombo yogurts do not contain artificial coloring nor does Breyers' ice cream. Pepperidge Farm's "market" "Sprouted Wheat Bread" this fall which won't have any additives at all. The company now markets cinnamon-raisin and corn-molasses breads with no additives.

When you find that processed meat contains nitrites, nitrates, BHT, BHA or artificial coloring, you might want to shift to some other meat product or use the meats with additives only sparingly. Remember, cured ham and bacon have nitrites added but are not required to be labeled as such.

When processed meats have ascorbic acid or tocopherol listed as fresheners, it's usually a good sign because it means they didn't have to use as much BHT or BHA. These nutritious fresheners come from vitamin C and E sources.

In some stores you can find frozen meats that have few additives or none at all.

This is because freezing serves as a preservative. Professional restaurant food buyers say frozen meats stay fresher longer and retain vitamins, minerals and taste qualities better than most processed or fresh meats.

So your refrigerator can help serve as a substitute for some food additives. Bread without additives will stay fresher longer if it's refrigerated. So will vegetable oils that don't contain BHT or BHA.

Astrology

By
Ray Williams

Licensed Astrologer; offices in the Byler Bldg., Virginia Beach Blvd.

"If we wish to evaluate the present and project the future, we can do so only in the framework of the past. Patterns of human reactions are expressions of reactions to major cosmic forces, that directly or indirectly govern the state of the organic world as they do the inorganic, govern the individual as they do the mass, govern not only man today but have governed man in the past and will govern man in the future, despite all imaginable controls that we may devise." Dr. W.F. Peterson in "Man, Weather and Sun" (1947).

One thing seems obvious. If it was possible to determine periods when the stockmarket will be at a low point and when it will be rising, it would be possible to make a considerable profit on a relatively small investment. We would, of course need to know which stocks to buy, because some stocks will gain in value when the overall market is declining and others will lose ground when the market is rising. A very good example of this is the phenomenal growth of Fairchild Camera, which went from $14.00 to $144.00 in 1966, a year the Dow-Jones averages dropped from a high of 985.93 in January to a low of 800.85, in December. A loss of 185 points. I am sure that it is a possible movement and if the evidence presented in last week's article did not convince you, the work done by LCDR David Williams Ret., will!

Commander Williams is an Astrologer, Vice president, and a member of the Executive Committee of the New York Chapter of the foundation for the study of Cycles. He is an Electrical Engineer, and for over thirty years was engaged in procurement of engineering equipment for one of the nations largest Public Utilities, as well as for the U.S. Navy. He is also a life-long student of business and economic cycles, and author of "Astro-Economics", first published in 1969.

Commander Williams has been doing a quarterly stockmarket forecast for a national magazine for over seven years. He has made a total of thirty forecasts. Of these he has been twenty four correct and only six incorrect, giving him an average of 80 per cent correct. In addition to this he has picked 397 out of 210 stocks, on the American and New York stock exchanges that have increased in value. No other advisory service can claim anything like this percentage of success.

In his book, Astro-Economics, Commander Williams states, "The planets whose geometrical configurations appear to affect the business cycle the most are: Jupiter, Uranus and Saturn.... The conjunctions of Jupiter and Uranus, occurring at intervals of 13.812 years, have with but two exceptions since 1762 coincided with low periods of American business activity.... During 200 years of American history, the conjunctions of Jupiter and Saturn, which occur at intervals of 19.859 years, have with but two exceptions coincided with periods of financial and political stress."

"It is a curious fact that ever since the Great Mutation Conjunction of 1942, every President of the United States whose term of office fell within Jupiter-Saturn conjunction period, died in office. Commander Williams listed the presidents beginning with President Harrison and ending with F. D. Roosevelt. Since then President Kennedy was elected in 1960 and the last Jupiter-Saturn conjunction occurred in 1961.

Continuing he states "The conjunctions of Saturn and Uranus, occurring at intervals of 49.35 years, have with but one exception coincided with low periods of American business activity.... His list goes back to 1761 coinciding with the depression following the French and Indian War, and ends with the "Bottom of Stock Market" prices in April, 1942."

In his next chapter, Commander Williams goes into detail relating the good aspects of these planets. Space does not permit detailing these aspects, but we will give the overall effect. He lists 28 Jupiter-Uranus good aspect periods. Twenty good aspects between Jupiter and Saturn. Nine good aspects between Jupiter and Uranus. He then lists 36 lesser benefic aspects between these planets, most of which coincided with periods of business prosperity.

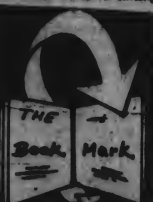

In an effort to explain how the planets affect us Commander Williams continues "Rodney Collin, in "The Theory of Celestial Influence" (1954) states "All phenomena in nature are the product of three forces—Sun, Planets, Earth. If the Sun is the source of life and energy, and Earth the quarry of raw material. Planets are the creators of form and function. The result is the whole world of nature. All rotating bodies in the universe create and are surrounded by a magnetic field. All magnetism affects all other magnetism. The true influence of the planets upon the earth is almost certainly of a magnetic nature."

"This interaction of magnetic fields is explained by David Dietz, Scripps-Howard Science Editor on June 14, 1968 as follows: "The sun is a great shot-gun, spraying the earth with showers of sub atomic bullets. Blast from the solar shotgun are heralded by the appearance of bright outburst of ultra-violet light on the surface of the sun—the so-called solar flares. A cloud of hydron gas is thereby released, which becomes electrified or ionized and the atoms of hydrogen separate into their constituent particles, namely protons and electrons."

"Collin further states, "If the possibility exist that a planet may stimulate an organ in one particular man, it seems indisputable that the same conjunction could activate this organ in millions of men, producing waves of business activity or depression, cycles of war, periodic fluctuations in birth rate, and so on."

Commander Williams' book was first published in 1969. In it he indicated the future aspects of the major planets and indicated what the results would be. In every case he was correct. He closes his revised edition with this statement: "When a method for correlating the ups and downs of the business cycle has been found to be highly accurate over a period of 185 years in the past, and a projection make 11 years into the future has also come true, one can reasonably be assured that equally good results will be obtained from following the planetary indications for as far into the future as one wishes."

I am happy to report that the work I have done agrees with Commander Williams' finding exactly.

But surgery is done, attaching 40 wires to points in Benson's brain and connecting them to a computer which would regulate his behavior. Then Benson, returned to his room for recovery and further observation, escapes from the hospital. Shortly after the escape doctors discover an error in the computer which could affect Harry's behavioral patterns; Harry must be found soon.

This leads to an eventful and very interesting search to find Harry Benson; at the same time several violent crimes are committed in the city, and the hospital staff members wonder about their responsibility. What will happen to Harry—and to their jobs—if he is not found? The suspense in this novel is overwhelming, and it continues even after the search is over and Harry is found—or is he? THE TERMINAL MAN is available at all branches of the Virginia Beach Public Library.

Patricia Dailey Marries Thomas Joseph Woolley

The marriage of Miss Patricia Lynne Dailey and Thomas Joseph Woolley took place June 18 at 2 p.m. at the Chapel-in-the-Woods, Naval Air Station, Norfolk. Captain Donald Dillard, USN, Chaplain Corps, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Captain Robertson Currie Dailey, USN, (ret.) and Mrs. Dailey. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Inez K. Woolley of Ft. Lauderdale, and Thomas Joseph Woolley of Miami.

Captain Dailey gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a white empire organza gown, with sweeping attached chapel train. Long slim buttoned sleeves came to a point at the wrist. She carried a cascading bouquet of white daisies, flowing with long ribbons tied in love knots.

Mrs. Donald Currie Dailey, sister-in-law of the bride was matron of honor. She wore a blue floral print gown of sheer flocked organza over taffeta.

Miss Kim Lamar of Evansville, Indiana was maid of honor. Junior bridesmaid was Miss Marie Louise Woolley, sister of the groom. Their gowns were identical with that of the matron of honor.

Kenneth Weeks, of Norfolk was best man. Michael Winer of Miami, and Bruce Woolley, brother of the bridegroom of Ft. Lauderdale, were ushers.

A reception was held at the Jamestown Room, Norfolk Naval Station. After a wedding trip to Mexico, the couple will live in Gainesville, Florida.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Wake Forest University. The bridegroom is in his third year of law school at the University of Florida.

PLAN AHEAD—and the women of the Virginia Beach United Methodist Church are doing just that. They've already firmed up the annual church bazaar. This year the date is November 8. For chairman they've selected the very capable and likable Mrs. Aubrey N. Holmes.

Mrs. John R. Shannon and Mrs. C. Hall Snellings are co-chairman of the luncheon to be served from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. Chairman of the buffet dinner is Mrs. Vernon J. Honeycutt. Hours for this are 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. It will be followed by an auction. Right here's a chance to say that you'd better not miss that auction, especially if you're an antique buff—because really excellent bargains are always discovered.

There will be a Curiosity Corner, gift shop, Christmas and knit shop, country store, attic treasure shop, bake shop, toy shop and a book room. And believe it or not even if you've yet to plan your summer vacation, these women of the church are already fast at work getting bazaar items ready.

A TREAT FOR YOUNGSTERS — The Edward M. Hardy Men's Bible Class and the Myrtice Parker Women's Bible Class at First Presbyterian Church played host last week to 24 boys and 15 girls of various ages, from the Presbyterian Home in Lynchburg.

These children were taken into the homes of church members during their visit to the beach.

There was a lively, entertaining and educational program arranged for the youngsters. They went to Red Wing Park for a picnic, to Ocean View Amusement Park and to R. G. Boster's big farm for a look at animal life.

This worthwhile program of the church is under the direction of Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Bein.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS NORFOLK AND VIRGINIA BEACH recommends reading "You and Election '72, by Antony Austin, Doris Faber and others. It's an in-depth coverage of important issues and candidates today: jobs, busing, Vietnam, women's rights, pollution, welfare, prices. The League, headed by Dot Miller, endorsed the book, priced at 50 cents. You'll find it at Safeway Stores, Inc. on Independence Blvd. between the Pembroke Mall Shopping Center and the Bayside Library.

ABOUT FOOD—The Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service says meat and poultry may be frozen if they still contain ice crystals or if they are still cold and have not been held at refrigerator temperatures for longer than one or two days. Remember, it says, that refreezing may reduce quality.

ONIONS ARE PLENTIFUL—A good easy method of cooking scalloped onions: Boil them whole in salted water for 15 to 30 minutes, depending upon size. Top with buttered bread crumbs and bake for 25 minutes.

Friendliness Can Be A Disarming Weapon

By Rev. Joyce Kramer

Are you a friendly, courteous person? Friendliness is the most disarming weapon a person can use. It brings people out of dependency and depression. It helps another to appreciate himself as a person of worth. Friendliness turns hate and hostility into warmth and congeniality.

If you are friendly, it shows in your voice, in your words, and in your face. Friendliness, or lack of it, is obvious whether we are face to face with a person or communicating by telephone or letter.

A friendly person is ordinarily a courteous person. Lack of simple courtesy is the cause of failure in many aspects of life. Practice being friendly and courteous today. You will be pleased with the interesting results.

FATHER, I GIVE THANKS FOR A SPIRIT OF COURTESY AND FRIENDLINESS THIS DAY. I LET YOUR LOVING PRESENCE SHOW THROUGH MY THOUGHTS, MY WORDS, MY FEELINGS AND MY ACTIONS.

A Summer Delight . . .

It's tempting, it's cool, it's elegant...a summer delight, is fresh fruit ambrosia.

By today's diet conscious standards, this understated dessert is a welcome ending to any dinner. But in bygone days, it was served as a symbol of outrageous luxury because of the rarity of its costly tropical ingredients.

Many variations on the ambrosial theme have been devised by good cooks; but the one ingredient is constant...coconut must be included for the dessert to qualify as ambrosia.

Summer ambrosia combines flaked coconut with fresh pineapple, orange sections, green grapes, and rum extract for a truly delightful treat.

For summer entertaining, try this recipe. It's elegant and representative of the bright shades of summer.

Summer Ambrosia
1 fresh pineapple, cut in bite-size pieces
1/4 cup confectioners sugar
1 teaspoon rum extract
1-one third cups (about) flaked coconut
3 oranges, sectioned
1/2 pound seedless grapes, separated into small bunches

+or use 1/4 cup rum.

Combine pineapple and sugar, chill overnight. Sprinkle rum extract over coconut and toss to flavor coconut. Combine coconut, pineapple, and orange sections. Chill thoroughly. Serve garnished with grapes. Makes 6 cups or 12 servings.

Club Donates To Camp Fund

The London Bridge Home Demonstration Club held a meeting at the social hall of the London Bridge Baptist Church. Mrs. W. A. Green presided. Members voted to contribute $25 to the Virginia Beach 4-H City Council so that some deserving youngster might be able to attend either the 4-H Club Congress at VPI or Camp Farrier this summer.

The members enjoyed a demonstration by Mrs. Green on the proper use of herbs and the procedure of herb culture.

'Nobody Would Listen' Say Wives Of Navy Men Aboard Carrier America

By Helen Crist

There were seven of them — all wives of Navy men who deployed June 5 aboard the aircraft carrier America for Vietnam. The husbands of six are officers; the seventh is an enlisted man.

"No names, please," they said, as we shared coffee and doughnuts at the suburban home of one.

Why no names? Phone calls—obscene and frightening, that in one case were so annoying that the telephone company turned off the phone so the wife and children could hold on to their sanity and get some sleep, at least.

OK—no names. What was the meeting all about?

Unfair publicity via the news media.

Said one: "When the America deployed, and a handful of protestors tried to block its passage by peddling out in canoes, the local media—the newspapers, television, and radio gave a full page of pictures to the protestors, plus big headlines and a four or five column story on the front page, slanted, we feel, against the Navy men."

"There were 5,000 men aboard, but the good that they were doing by serving their country was completely overshadowed by the reporting, inaccurate in some cases, and twisted in favor of the 31 who were arrested and released."

"Why then," I asked, as the tape recorder took it all down, "didn't they contact the media and make their objection known?"

"We tried, but no one was interested or available. One reporter said that the war was unpopular, and wouldn't even listen to what we had to say."

"Let's face it," one attractive wife said, "straight people don't make the news—they're not colorful."

The women told of the adverse effect that the reporting had on the Navy men's children. In one case, they said, a young boy was watching the TV news, when he came running to his mother in the kitchen crying: "Mommy, why is my daddy on a death ship?" The child had heard the account repeating the words of the protestors who called the aircraft carrier a death ship.

Then, almost in unison "We bitterly resent this."

"Another thing," they said, "the reporting was so biased that they said the Navy men were cheering for the protestors, when the truth was that the vast majority were cheering when the canoes turned over."

The question: What would have been the reaction if one of those in the overturned canoes had floundered in the water?

"The Navy would have been the first to come to the rescue—the frogman were standing by."

One of the wives said she passed a car carrying the protestors, as she drove her husband to the ship. "The car had a Pennsylvania license plate, dirty feet were sticking out of the windows, and the people inside were actually screaming. They looked like they were enjoying the whole thing and going on a swimming party."

The enlisted wife noted: "They just haven't accepted responsibility. I don't think. They fit from one cause to another, they don't hold down jobs. They say they want to help the poor, but what do they do for them?"

A mother of five children, who sat quietly listening spoke up: "Well, they have a right to protest. That didn't bother me at all that day. But when the newspaper took a full page for photos plus a big headline and story that was too much."

The word "revolutionary" was mentioned.

They objected to its use in referring to the protestors.

"I don't think the young people are revolutionaries. They get a hot idea to go down and protest and they say, 'OK, let's go.' We could have had counter demonstrations, but that's not going to serve any purpose."

One noted that she felt that patriotism is really dormant in all of us. "The young are impatient, idealistic and their biggest fault is that they have to do things right now—they don't know how to wait."

The women all agreed—"we all want to see the war come to an honorable end. The men feel they have a job to do. They're sent by the President to do it. They've spent many years in Navy training, and we're proud of them and we want them to know it."

Does the publicity annoy you, then, a great deal?

"Yes, it does. It's such a small group getting it all and we can't understand why."

Said another thoughtfully: "The people must remember that the President didn't pass all the laws (involving the country in the Vietnam war.) Congress and the Senate share equal responsibility, and the place to decide an issue is not at the base of a ship (referring to the canoelists.)"

The women suggested an alternative to demonstrations if people are opposed to the war. "If they really want to do some good, let them write their congressmen, senators, the President and let their views be known."

Overlooked, perhaps, they said, is the fact that aviators such as those aboard the America volunteer for their jobs—"they're not there in lieu of the draft. They're about the same age too as the protestors—between 22 and 27, recently out of college maybe. Our men would not have volunteered for this thing if they felt it wasn't the right thing to do."

A tall attractive wife said: "My husband would probably like to see peace more than the protestors. The Navy men think the way the President is handling it is the way to have peace. I think President Nixon is doing a brilliant job in foreign policy, but I don't think he will get credit until history records it."

Another remarked: "I'm 100 per cent for my country, but I think the spirit of America has really fallen."

And what of the POWs and MIAs?

A moment of silence, then, when the only audible sound was soft music from the stereo.

Thoughtfully, one said: "That's an issue close to the hearts of all of us. It will be the greatest day in the world when they're released."

One of the terms of peace stated by President Nixon is that the prisoners will be returned and the missing accounted for.

Is it possible? "Oh indeed—it's possible and it must be."

And what of the morale of the men who sailed aboard the America?

A surprising and unanimous reply: "I don't think the men have ever left with such a feeling that the end could be in sight. Most of them feel that the action of the President in permitting the military to operate within a wider framework than ever before, given him a greater chance than ever in negotiating peace."

Said one: "When the word was out that the America was going to Vietnam, my husband had many calls from Navy men begging him to let them get back in the squadron and go along. It was a good feeling."

For the wives, at least, the end of war seems close at hand.

Special Playground Summer Activities

The Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department and the V.P.I. Extension Service are presenting a summer program of special activities at the 26 elementary school sites which serve as summer playgrounds. The following schools will be open from June 16 through August 11, for boys and girls, during the hours of 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Alanton, Aragona, Arrowhead, Bayside, Brookwood, Cooke, Creeds, Kempville, Kings Grant, Kingdon, Luford, Lynhaven, Malibu, Newlight (park), Old Donation, Pembroke Meadows, Point O'View, Princess Anne, Seateck, Shelton Park, Thalia, Tranwood, Windsor Oaks, Windsor Woods and Woodstock.

Themes have been chosen for each of the weeks; these themes will be carried out with the help of eleven specialists, who will work on a rotating basis with arts and crafts, music, drama, and balloon twirling. The themes are: June 26-30, Salute to America; July 3-7, Happy Birthday, U. S. A.; July 10-14, Fantasy Week; July 17-21, Nature Week; July 24-28, Circus Week; July 31-August 4, Hawaiian Holiday; and August 7-11, Arts and Crafts Week.

The VPI Extension Service will also conduct its 1972 Summer Focus Program at the school playgrounds. Classes offered will be small engine-lawn mower repair, bicycle operation and repair, dog care, electricity, baby sitting (certificate awarded), and fashion sewing. Registration will be held at the following schools beginning June 26: Lynhaven, Malibu, Brookwood, Windsor Oaks, Luford, Bayside, Point O'View, Cooke, and Tranwood. Each class will meet three times a week for two weeks. A Nature Study Program will be conducted by Gerald Straley, horticulturist with the VPI Extension Service, and will feature nature walks and observation. This program will begin July 17 and run through July 21.

If there are any questions, check the nearest playground for a special activities schedule, or ask the playground director for assistance.

Learn-To-Swim Program Begins

The Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department announced Monday the schedule of the Learn-To-Swim program. For non-swimmers, who will be in the 4th or 5th grade this coming school year, the swim program will be held at the Fraternal Order Of Police pool on Birdneck Road. The instructional period will be for two weeks, five days per week, Monday through Friday, with one hour of instruction per day. Instructional classes are limited to 30 participants. Transportation to and from the playground will be provided by the Parks and Recreation Department using Virginia Beach school buses. It is necessary that parents apply in person to one of the playground sites listed below, and all openings will be filled on a first come - first serve basis.

June 26-July 7 (Must sign up immediately) Lynhaven, 9 a.m.; Arrowhead, 10 a.m.
July 10-July 21 (Deadline July 24) Seateck, 9 a.m.; Shelton Park, 10 a.m.

Winners in the local Pitch, Hit, and Throw competition are (kneeling) Jerry Volansky, Charles Bryant, and Randy Valmont. Runners-up (back row) are Tim Hugo, Brad Hudson, Brian Dewan, and John Strong.

Pitch, Hit, Throw Winners

Two hundred and twenty-five boys signed up for the Phillips Petroleum Corporation's annual Pitch, Hit, and Throw Competition. Local competition was held on June 11th at the Union-Kempville recreation field under the auspices of the Virginia Beach Jaycees.

There were four local winners in Virginia Beach. Jerry Volansky won the nine year-old bracket with a combined score of 338 feet. Dennis Kepling led the ten year-olds with 347 feet. The eleven year-old group was led by Charles Bryant's 377 feet. Randy Ballmont, became the twelve year-old winner with 443 feet.

Vitelli's Corvette Wins Two Firsts

The weekend started off well for Don Vitelli, but the weekend ended on a sour note. Don entered his 1972 Corvette in two shows over the weekend and won them both. But on his way home Sunday night, a lady ran into his prize-winning Corvette, causing about $1000 worth of damage.

On Saturday in Philadelphia, Don won the Cumberland Valley Corvette show, and on Sunday in Pittsburgh, he won the Corvette Club of Baltimore show. Both first-place trophies were in the Class A Stock category.

The next big show will be held in Monaca on July 1st and 2nd. We are working hard to get my Corvette repaired," Don said Tuesday. "The Monaca show is a must. I will have my car fixed in time to be there."

Marine Captain Lester Rickman Jr. stands at the ready position with the Winchester 101 shotgun he received for capturing the 12 gauge title at the Virginia Skeet Shooting Championships. He received the trophy for winning the overall championship with a 293x400 score.

Virginia Skeet Shooting Title Captain Lester Rickman Wins

Marine Captain Lester Rickman Jr. added another title to his already impressive list of skeet shooting accomplishments with his victory at the 1972 Virginia State Skeet Championships. He was presented a silver trophy and a Winchester 101 over-and-under 12-gauge shotgun for his win.

In amassing a 293x400 score, Rickman fired a 98x100 in the 28, 30, and 410-gauge competition and a 99x100 in the 12-gauge competition.

Since beginning his skeet shooting activities in 1965, he has won numerous trophies in the United States, Okinawa, and Japan. He won the 1971 Virginia State International Skeet Championship and the 1970 National Skeet Shooting Association World Military Championship.

He has also been selected to the 1972 National Skeet Shooting Association and Sports Illustrated Magazine All-American Skeet Championship Team. As an active member of the All-Marine Trap and Skeet Team, he has attained 98.8, 97.4, and 98.3 averages in the past three years. He is now looking ahead to the U.S. Armed Forces Championships and to the World Military Championships. He hopes to recapture the World title which he won in 1970.

Ricky Long Signs With Chesapeake

Ricky Long, who lives in the 3400 block of Crestline Drive in Virginia Beach, has signed a grant-in-aid with Chesapeake College. Ricky received the grant for his baseball ability.

A catcher, Ricky is rated as a good hitter, a team leader, and a good-fielding catcher. He batted .300 during the current season while at Maury High School. He is playing with the American Legion Post 60 team this summer.

George Badillo, rated as one of the top six guards in New York City, has signed a grant-in-aid with Chesapeake College. Following a very aggressive recruiting program for a junior college, athletic director John Myerhoff seems determined to make his Cougar team an area powerhouse. Badillo, a 5'11" fast-breaking and defensive minded guard, led his high school team to a 21-2 record this year, averaging 10 points and 8 assists per game. The Garfunkel Scouting Report rated Badillo with four stars, and he was recruited by 150 major colleges, including South Carolina and Virginia. In this year's Benedictine Tournament in Richmond, he was an all-tourney team pick, and Garfunkel's Report went on to say that he could play for any college except possibly those rated in the top ten. Badillo becomes the fourth grant-in-aid recipient signed by Chesapeake for their growing basketball program. Bayside's Robbie Cook signed earlier with the Cougars.

Ricky Long, a Maury graduate, has signed a baseball grant-in-aid with Chesapeake College. Ricky, who lives in the 3400 block of Crestline Drive in Virginia Beach, batted .300 this season. A catcher, Long is rated as a good hitter, a team leader, and a good-fielding catcher. He is playing with American Legion Post 60 during the summer.

Congressman Thomas Downing reports that the Golden Eagle passport program for National Parks is being continued. Passes will be issued free to those over 62 years of age and will also permit them to receive a fifty per cent reduction in concession charges within the Parks. The Golden Eagle passport has been very popular in the past, and many people feared that it would not be continued. Congressman Downing said the passage of the renewal legislation should come soon since both the House and Senate committees have approved it.

Front-runner Manuel Orantes of Spain boosted his lead among the men in the Grand Prix of tennis last week by winning both the Italian and the Belgian Championships and making the semi-finals of the French Championship. The 23-year-old left-hander has now won three of the last four Grand Prix tournaments he has played. The wins boosted Orantes' lead to 75 points over second-place Ilie Nastase. Andres Gimeno is third. Women's point leaders, Billie Jean King, Evonne Goolagong, and Nancy Richey Gunter did not play in any Grand Prix matches last week. Helga Masthoff jumped from seventh to fourth place with her German Championships win, and Linda Tuero, the Italian Champion, moved from sixteenth to eighth place.

The Tidewater Tides will be home again this week, meeting Charleston in four games. A single game will be played on June 23rd, 24th, 25th, and 26th.

A copy of the 1972 Duke Blue Devils football schedule and roster arrived this week. Only one Virginia Beach player is listed on the varsity team, and no Beach players are listed for the freshman team. Winslow Stillman is the lone local Blue Devil. Stillman is a 6'1", 300 pound, linebacker. It looks as though Coach Mike McGee's recruiters spend most of their time in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Maryland. Duke will be in Norfolk on October 28th for an Oyster Bowl clash with Navy.

Savage Awarded R-MA Diploma

Cary L. Savage Jr. was among fifty-seven graduating seniors who received diplomas during commencement ceremonies at Randolph-Macon Academy in Front Royal. He is the son of Col. and Mrs. Cary L. Savage of 1616 Arrowhead Point in Virginia Beach.

Savage was a letterman in varsity soccer at Randolph-Macon. He also participated in cross country and tennis, and he was a member of the Yellow Jacket Monogram Club and of the R-MA Explorer Post.

Tommy Butts— All-American

Tommy Butts, a graduate of Princess Anne High School who is headed for the University of Richmond this fall, has received more basketball honors. He has just been named to the Sun-Kist, Scholastic, and Scouting System of America All-American Teams.

It is believed that Butts is only the second player from Virginia Beach to be named to a high school all-American team. The all-American honor is the greatest that can be bestowed on an athlete.

Butts has been named to virtually every all-star team in the area. In addition to being a first team Virginia Beach SUN All-City Team selection, he has been named to the All-District, the All-Regional, the All-Metro, the All-Tidewater, and the All-State teams.

Our five Audis. Each one is a lot of cars for the money.

Every one of our Audis has a lot in common with some of the world's most expensive cars.

For example, they all have the same type of steering system as the racing Ferrari. And the same type of brakes as the racing Porsche.

They all have front-wheel drive like the Cadillac Eldorado. And independent front suspension like the Aston Martin.

Now we'd like to tell you the difference between each of our models.

Our Audi 100LS is the car you've heard so much about. Well, this year we improved it with a new and larger engine.

The Audi Super 90 is slightly smaller than the 100LS. Yet you'll find there's more headroom and legroom than you'd ever expect.

Next we come to the Audi Super 90 Wagon. It not only has all the engineering features we mentioned above, it also has 56.6 cu. ft. of storage space when the rear seat is down.

Our two other Audis are completely new models.

There's the Audi 100 which doesn't cost quite as much as our 100LS because it isn't quite as fancy. But as we said before, it has the same outstanding features as some of the world's finest cars.

And there's the Audi 100GL. It's got a vinyl roof, a center console, tinted windows and an automatic transmission—all as standard equipment. So naturally, it costs a little more than the other Audis.

Our five Audis. It really doesn't matter which one you buy. You'll always get a lot more cars than you expected.

Piledrivers Finish Second In Pick-Of-Dixie Tourney

3 o'clock in the morning! The name of a yesteryears song is also the scene of softball in Chattanooga. The Piledrivers won their sixth game of the day when they met Warren Motors of Jacksonville, Florida, at three o'clock Sunday morning. Over a 1,000 fans were on hand to watch the National Champions at that early hour.

"Gentlemen! We welcome the Indian Lakes Piledrivers aboard Piedmont charter flight A325 to Chattanooga, Tennessee. Captain Norton is at the controls, assisted by First Officer Edwards. I am Miss Carroccino, your stewardess."

With those words, the Piledriver's chartered Fairchild-Hiller 227 climbed into the twilight, leaving Norfolk at 7:10 p.m. Friday evening for the Pick-O-Dixie Tournament.

Two hours later, 14,000 feet above the Smokey Mountains below Asheville, the voice of the captain came over the speaker. "Gentlemen! If you'll look to the right, you'll see two parachutes." All eyes turned and peered through the plane's windows.

"A red one and a white one." Eyes strained and imaginations ran rampant trying to figure what had happened. But no one could see the parachutes.

"That is your co-pilot and your stewardess." Totally bewildered, everyone glanced up and down the aisles looking for either one. But the co-pilot and stewardess were not to be seen.

"If you'll look to your left, you'll see another parachute. That is me. This is a recording."

After a big laugh at how they were momentarily fooled, the merry passengers of the Piedmont charter settled back down to their various activities.

The plane landed in Chattanooga at 10:15. It was raining, and a waiting bus whisked us to our most welcome motel. There was no time wasted getting next door for a late dinner at the International House of Pancakes. After dinners ranging from pancakes to steak and eggs, everyone hit the sack.

6:30 a.m. came early. Everyone dressed and met at the pancake house for breakfast, and it turned out to be our last meal for 22 hours. The bus picked us up at 8 for the playing field, and upon arriving there, we were told that the rain had caused our game to be delayed until noon. Back to the motel we went to wait until an 11 a.m. bus would take us back to the field.

Back at the field, we found some games starting on other diamonds and two helicopters about ten feet off the ground on our field. The Army helicopters had been summoned to help dry off our field. Finally at 12:30 p.m. our first game began.

The Indian Lakes Piledrivers disposed of the Jonquill's from Marietta, Georgia, 20-17 in their opening game of the 72-team double elimination tourney. Jonquill jumped to a quick 9-1 lead, but the Piledrivers put 12 runs on the scoreboard in the third inning for the lead. Johnny Dollar, Bert Smith, and Johnny Strickland led the Piledrivers to their 21 run, 31 hit attack.

At 5 p.m., the Piledrivers met and conquered Champion Landscaping of Kings Mountain 31-20. The Piledrivers boomed 14 home runs over the fences 275 feet away. Sluggers Jerry Jordan and Bert Smith led the barrage. Jordan hitting four and Smith two.

Two hours later, the Piledrivers took to the field against Cannon Mills of Kannapolis, North Carolina, and the Virginia Beach champs dropped Cannon 31-11 with a 38 hit, 11 home run attack. All-Americans H.T. Waller and Nick Sessions led the win. Waller boomed 3 homers and Sessions had six timely hits.

At midnight, the Piledrivers met the Kentucky State Champions. A very close game that was not decided until the final inning, the Piledrivers eaked out a one run victory by defeating Jiffy 29-19.

Finally at 3 a.m. Sunday morning, a thousand cheering fans watched the Piledrivers drop Warren Motors 21-20. Warren Motors entered the tournament with one of the best won-lost records in the nation, 64-5, and they are the host team for the National Championships this year. The Jacksonville, Florida, team had won their three previous Pick-O-Dixie tourney games 45-6, 25-5, and 21-8.

At 4:30 a.m. Sunday morning, the Piledrivers returned to their motel. At 10 a.m. they were up again, eating breakfast, ready to return to the playing fields for their quest of the championship.

A helicopter is brought in Saturday morning to dry off a muddy diamond before the first game can be played.

Safe! Another Piledriver run scores as the ball was thrown high to the catcher too late to nip the sliding Nick Sessions.

Linwood Strickland is congratulated by his Piledriver teammates who met him at home plate following a home run that scored three runs.

Henry Cooper dives into second a split-second before the second-baseman can tag him with the ball.

Piledrivers lost their first game, being defeated 31-26 by the host team Cards Carpets of Chattanooga. The Cards were one of the five pre-tourney favorites, having won the Double Cola Classic, the Dixie Classic, and placing second in the Denver Tournament. They were recently ranked number three in the nation's slowpitch softball teams.

After a long wait, the Piledrivers met and defeated Jo Smith's Pizza of Milton, Florida, 16-13. This victory assured the Piledrivers of a spot in the finals.

Along about midnight Sunday, the championship game of the tournament was played. The Piledrivers met the Cards again, and lost 24-16, for a second-place tournament finish.

The Piledrivers were racing against time. The game finished about 1:30 a.m. The airline plane went on strike at 2 a.m. Back to the motel we raced. The first half dozen players to hit the showers used all the water. Everyone else grabbed a bar of Ivory soap, a towel, and dressed in their scivvies bathed in the motel's pool. The bus was loaded, and we were off to the airport for the trip home.

The pilot checked the plane out before the 2 a.m. strike deadline and had it ready to go. Hurriedly, the bags were taken off the bus and loaded onto the plane. Upon entering the plane, beer and a chicken dinner for everyone was waiting. The pilot, co-pilot, and stewardess had picked up the food on their way back to the plane. Not having eaten since 10 a.m., it was appreciated.

The plane arrived back in Norfolk just in time for many of the players to shower and dress and get to their jobs. It was quite a trip, but the Indian Lakes Piledrivers — tired and happy — had performed in the National Champion fashion to the delight of the thousands of fans in Chattanooga.

In the tournament, the Piledrivers had won six games and lost two, bringing their season record to 51-10. They scored 180 runs in the eight tourney games, hit 73 home runs, and punched out a total of 217 hits. On the average, the Piledrivers scored 22.5 runs, hit 9 home runs, and made 27 hits per game.

Mobile Home Owners Advised To 'Tie Down'

The Mobile Living Communications Center (MLCC), a national public service organization, has designated June as Mobile Home Tie Down Month in Virginia. The campaign is supported by the National Weather Service, the Office of Civil Defense, the Red Cross and the National Safety Council.

Tie down means anchoring of mobile homes to concrete foundation slabs or to the ground to prevent damage to the home from high winds including hurricanes, tornados and other high velocity gusts.

According to the National Weather Service, high winds cause an estimated $533 million damage annually in the United States.

Allen Pearson, Director of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center, says, "Mobile homes are sitting ducks for windstorms unless their owners take precautions. Almost any time a windstorm strikes, the mobile home park or court where preparations have been inadequate becomes a scene of utter devastation. I believe that 90 per cent of all wind and tornado damages to mobile homes could be eliminated by solid construction and proper tie down."

The Tie Down Month is being observed in thirty-six states designated by the Mobile Living Communications Center as part of the hurricane, tornado or high wind belts which registered significant mobile home damages from windstorms in the past decade.

Mobile homes are particularly vulnerable to overturning during strong winds and should be evacuated when strong winds are forecast. The mobile home itself is being protected by proper tie down. For personal safety, mobile home dwellers should go to the mobile home park community shelter or, if one is not available, take cover on low, protected ground.

Tie down equipment can be installed by contractors or by mobile home owners. Cost for equipment designed to withstand winds up to 130 mph ranges from $90 to $150 in most states. Contractor installation costs vary with location.

Tornados occur in all fifty states and in all seasons of the year.

HERE'S HOW IT WORKS:

PICK UP FREE BINGO CARDS: Each week (adults only, please) pick up your FREE Bingo cards from any of the sponsoring merchants listed below. Rules of the game allow the merchants to give you only one card on each store visit. However, you may make as many visits as you wish each day of the week. THE MORE CARDS YOU PLAY - THE BETTER ARE YOUR CHANCES OF WINNING.

NOW TO PLAY: Check the ads in each week's issue of The Virginia Beach Sun. The ads of the merchants listed below will contain one or more "Newspaper Bingo" numbers in the "Bingo Bug" symbol (SHOWN ABOVE). Occasionally numbers in the "Bingo Bug" symbol may be found elsewhere in the newspaper. Be sure to check the Classified Ad section for additional numbers. IF YOU CAN MATCH (JUST CIRCLE OR "X" THE MATCHING NUMBERS) ALL 24 NUMBERS ON ANY ONE OF YOUR BINGO CARDS WITH THE NUMBERS PUBLISHED IN THE WEEKLY ISSUE OF THE VIRGINIA BEACH SUN - YOU HAVE A "BINGO"! - AND YOU ARE A WINNER!!!

AT LEAST $50.00 WEEKLY!!! Winners will share a weekly prize of $50.00 (in "Bingo Bucks" - they spend the same as cash with any of the sponsoring merchants listed below). If there is only one winner, he wins all of the $50.00. If there is more than one winner, all winners will share the $50.00 in equal amounts. If there are no winners any week, the $50.00 weekly prize will be added to the following week's prize fund.

CHECK EACH ISSUE OF THE PAPER: Each game is complete in each week's issue of The Virginia Beach Sun. A new set of Bingo numbers will be published each week in the sponsoring merchants' ads - and possibly elsewhere in the paper. A new color of Bingo cards for each week's game will be available at the sponsoring merchants' stores. To be eligible to win, you must play Bingo cards of the correct color for that week's game. The color of the cards for each week's game will be announced on this page.

IF YOU ARE A WINNER: If you have a winning Bingo card, ON WHICH ALL 24 NUMBERS HAVE BEEN MATCHED WITH THE NUMBERS APPEARING EACH WEEK IN The Virginia Beach Sun, print your name, address, phone number, and the name of the store where you got your winning card, and mail to this paper at 138 Rosemont Rd., Virginia Beach, Virginia 23452 (the envelope containing your winning card must be received by 5:00 p.m. Monday of the following week) - or bring your winning card to the office of this newspaper at 138 Rosemont Rd., Virginia Beach, Virginia by 5:00 p.m. Monday of the following week.

RULES OF THE GAME

NO OBLIGATION OR PURCHASE NECESSARY: There is no obligation or purchase necessary. A copy of the paper is available for playing the game at the office of this newspaper - also at the public library (ies) - also a Bingo card and/or copies of The Virginia Beach Sun containing the Bingo numbers may be obtained by mailing your request to this newspaper (please print your name and address clearly). You may play as many cards as you wish - they are free. Get additional cards - one at a time - each day of the week - from the merchants listed below (adults only).

DIFFERENT COLORED CARDS EACH WEEK: The color of the cards changes each week. To be a winner, you must play Bingo cards of the correct color for that week. Mutilated or altered cards will not be honored. ALL 24 NUMBERS ON A CARD MUST BE MATCHED TO WIN.

CHANCE DETERMINES NUMBERS: Bingo numbers for each week's game are drawn strictly at random, at the office of this newspaper. Some duplication of Bingo numbers may appear in the merchants' ads - or elsewhere in the paper. This duplication does not affect the game or the total numbers drawn. All numbers for each week's game will appear somewhere in the sponsoring merchants' ads - and possibly elsewhere in the paper. Employees of this newspaper and members of their families are not eligible to win any of the prizes. Newspaper Bingo is a program copy-righted and registered by Marketing Research Associates, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

Obituaries

Why Do They Come?

By Thelma Barrett

Edgar Cayce, famed seer of Virginia Beach, left a legacy of more than 14 thousand psychic readings at his death in 1925. Since then the Association for Research and Enlightenment, where the readings are housed, has played host to thousands of visitors from all over the world. Why do they come? The answer seems to be as varied as the readings themselves.

JOSEPH L. EAST
Joseph Linwood East, Sr., 77, of Route 1, Princess Anne Station, died Monday in a hospital.

A native of Portsmouth, he was the husband of Mrs. Verona W. East and son of George W. and Mrs. Eva Belle Benedict East.

John Cutten
At an age when most children would have hidden their head under a blanket, seven year old John Cutten bravely got out of bed in the dark one night to investigate a light and a face he saw on the wall of his bedroom. Deciding it was a trick of imagination he went calmly back to bed, and to sleep. "I guess I was born with the tendency for investigation," John declares.

A native of Scotland, John moved to London at the age of 10, later became an electronics engineer and was one of the very first people to work on radar for the British Navy. "I've always enjoyed uncovering and verifying facts," admitted John, "but I never had any plans for investigating psychic phenomena."

This phase of his life got started when an American friend asked him to come up with a hypothesis which would be a bridge between the material and non-material world. This surprise what he wrote was published. "I decided if what I said was going to appear in print I'd better get busy and study the subject more deeply."

As a member of the reversed Society For Psychical Research in England, John Cutten became more and more involved with investigative work. "We have a surplus of ghosts in England," John admitted wryly. But John Cutten is not especially interested in ghost investigations. "Always you're called to investigate people instead of phenomena, he explained. "You get there after the phenomena is over. It's hard," John said, with disappointment in his voice, "to find a case to investigate in actuality—while the experience is in process."

What were some interesting happenings he's come across? John told about a titled English lady who started to write a letter to a friend but dozed off. When she awoke she found that what she had written seemed to be rubbish. The writing seemed to contain none of the kind of a disjointed message; they would go through though advised not to—there was mist—a colic dog—and a bed creak. The woman tore it up and dismissed the whole thing from her head. But sometime later the friend she had been writing to took a plane from Cairo in misty weather, one passenger had a Colic dog and the plane crashed on take-off.

"This is a good example of precognition," John pointed out once the torn pieces of paper were still retrievable as a verification. Another time a mother and daughter were visiting shops in Oxford Square. They rushed across a road, almost got run over by a bus, and in the confusion got separated. The daughter said to John, "I saw my mother go under the bus." She was sure that her mother had died until they found each other some moments later. "This is the kind of thing that can't be satisfactorily explained," commented John.

Sound familiar? It should; remember the Russian comatose who "confirmed" the non-existence of God? He'd been whirling around the earth for a few hours and boldly declared that he hadn't seen God and therefore, God didn't exist. Obviously the man didn't have a mind or any thoughts coming from his head, there is no God." (Ps. 14:1)

Suds And Sand

By Jon Sagester

The moon has risen and there are places to go and things to do. One of the places you must go for a special date or evening out, is the Moonraker at the corner of 16th and Atlantic.

There 'ain't no place, like this place, near this place, so this must be the place. And it really is.

The music is soft and sweet, the food is tops, particularly the seafood, and the atmosphere is pleasantly comfortable.

Added to this is friendly service by beautiful girls. All in all it is a spot that should be put on your must list. A great place to take a date for a plate or a potion.

Another spot for a fun evening is the Branding Iron Lounge. Minnie provides a good time for all as the "Branded Four" invite you onto the dance floor every Thursday through Saturday and "Frankie" will fascinate you with her repertoire of new and old tunes, Sunday through Wednesday.

You will be amazed at her ability to bring forth melodies from the organ and piano at the same time. She has a personality as perky as the tunes she plays. Drop by Virginia Beach Blvd. in Oceana and see if you can request a tune "Frankie" doesn't know.

It's fun to mobilize about the area and discover ways to occupy the "wee" hours. I never thought I would be thinking about golf when I head for the jungle after dark. But, Jungle Golf at 22nd and Pacific is open 24 hours a day and I heartily recommend 3 a.m. as the time to play a round.

Have you tried warmed over bluefish? It's goooooo! Heard of a place which serves twenty five cents draught beer all the time. That is about as rare as the legendary five cent cigar. Haven't tried it yet but fully intend to this week and I'll let you know.

Had someone ask the other day, "What is a night people?" I've been thinking about it since and so far haven't been able to come up with a complete description. Everytime I find something that fits, someone comes along with a completely different outlook. Any suggestions?

A "Night People" is fun. Do you know of anyone who needs 4,000 tickets to a bikini bash? I know where you can pick them up, cheap.

Hey Dan, Jo does not pick on people! Anyone who can put up with we night folk must be an angel. Particularly after we have been running all evening.

So stop in to thank Jo and her sidekick, Linda, who is new but mighty nice, for being angels of mercy while we wait for the big ball of fire to elevate.

A little gem of knowledge picked up in the wee hours—I've been thinking about it since and so far haven't been able to come up with a gratuity. It serves as a compliment to those who serve.

That revealing redhead, the sage of VWC left a note, stating, "White sheets are for wives, colored ones for lovers." Remember that, all ye who live alone and invite others in.

As happens to all good evenings out—the sun is peeking over the horizon. "Be Circle-Cing ya."

Green Thumb Contest July 8

The Terry Corporation of Virginia will hold its fourth annual Green Thumb Contest at Pembroke Meadows, July 8, at 11:00 a.m.

Residents interested in entering the contest are asked to spruce up their front yard, as the judges will select their winner on: general appearance and condition of the lawn; all-over trim of shrubbery and lawn; general color of shrubbery and flowers to coordinate with home and the excellence of design and originality of overall plans and designs, including the grouping of flowers, shrubs and their relation to the front yard.

Judged for this occasion will be Mrs. John C. Brewington, President of the Council of Garden Clubs of Virginia Beach; Eddie Barnes, Horticulturalist for the City of Virginia Beach; and Larry Bonko, columnist for the Ledger-Star and radio program "On the Go".

It's A Good Summer

The summer season opened at Virginia Beach this year with over 750 new rooms and $1 million worth of improvements underway on the beach.

Construction of new motels and hotels during the winter now gives Virginia Beach 7,000 units for vacationers and conventions.

New interstate access routes from the North and West make the beach an easy one-day drive from most of the larger metropolitan areas along the East Coast and mid-West.

Hotel, motel and other rental properties report a big increase in advance reservations this year over previous years.

It looks like the best year ever, city officials say. On the major improvements will be completion of the $1 million project for widening the beach itself. Long considered one of the finest resort beaches in the country, the 28 miles along the Atlantic Coast is all within the city limits of Virginia Beach. Dredging operations are dumping tons of sand onto the beaches as part of the beach's continuing plan for development of the city's resort facilities.

HERTA'S BEARS

The all new 1972 edition of the Hamid-Morton Shrine Circus will highlight the lumbering and lovable HERTA'S BEARS... Six big bruisers captured in the rugged terrain of Russia and Syria will perform in the 9th edition of Khedive Temple's Annual Circus presented June 29th through July 2nd at the Princess Anne High School Stadium, Virginia Beach.

Khedive Temple Presents Circus

Khedive Temple will again this year present the Hamid-Morton Shrine Circus at the Princess Anne High School Stadium, June 29 through July 2nd. Performances are at 2:30 and 8:00, Sunday, July 2, at 2:30 and 8:00.

Last year over 25,000 children were treated to a free day at the circus by local businessmen and the members of Khedive Temple.

Free tickets are being distributed again this year by area Police and Fire Departments, The Salvation Army, Housing and Redevelopments and many neighborhood organizations, and it is hoped that no deserving child will be deprived of the joy of seeing a circus.

This circus is unique in the fact that it is family entertainment. There are no side-shows and the price of admission to the stadium is all required for the entire show.

Free tickets are being distributed again this year by area Police and Fire Departments, The Salvation Army, Housing and Redevelopments and many neighborhood organizations, and it is hoped

Summer Journalism Institute

The Division of Continuing Education at Old Dominion University is sponsoring a High School Journalism Institute, July 17 through 21. Students who will hold responsible positions on their school newspapers, whether printed or mimeographed, are invited to attend.

The Institute will offer instruction and practice in writing news, features, editorials and headlines, and copyediting and proofreading. A comprehensive evaluation will be made of the students' school newspapers and awards will be presented.

Tuition is $25 and dormitory rooms are available for $4 per night. Meal tickets are $3.50 per day for three meals. Information and applications may be obtained by contacting the Division of Continuing Education, Old Dominion University, Norfolk, Va. 23506, Telephone 469-8000, ext. 272.

Play Runs Extra Night

"All The Better To Kill You With", now running at the Little Theatre of Virginia Beach, will play an extra day.

The last performances will be June 29 and 30 and July 1 at 8:30 p.m. For reservations call 428-8500, between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 428-9523 on nights of performances only.

P.A. Lions Club Installs Officers

The Princess Anne Lions Club held their installation of 9 officers last week at the Kempsville Meadows Country Club. The ceremonies were conducted by Ben Wroton and all of the Ladies of the Lions were present.

Aubrey V. Watts, Jr. was installed as president for the coming year. Jesse B. Pugh was installed as first vice-president; Arthur Silverthorn, second vice-president; and Arthur Jurgensen, third vice-president. Rex Carpenter was installed as secretary; James Welcott, treasurer; Jesse Mercer, Lisa Tamer; Mickey Bloem, Lisa Twister.

Les Howell, Steve Squires, Dave Bryant, and Roland West will serve as directors of the club. Walter Alford, immediate past president, will also serve on the board.

Youth Member Gets To Vote

One Virginia Beach youth will be among the voting members of the Virginia Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church when it convenes at the Hampton Roads Coliseum June 19.

Jim Faulkenberry of 132 South Gum Avenue was chosen by the conference's Norfolk District as an official youth member.

This is the first conference at which youth will have voting privileges. An amendment to the denomination's constitution last year brought youth into the decision-making process for the first time. Youth had floor privileges at previous conferences, but only the president of the conference youth organization had a vote.

The conference will close June 22.

Three Lucky Bingo Winners

Catolyn Sunday, 3045 Pewter Road, is presented her Bingo Bucks by James Lucas of Lucas Studio. (The third Bingo Winner was not available for photograph; the announcement will appear next week.)

Bertha Taylor, 413 Leffler Lane, receives her Bingo Bucks from John Seaman of John's T.V.

Summer Fun At The Libraries

The Virginia Beach Public Libraries begin a new series of children's events this week.

Films to be shown at the Windsor Woods branch at 2 p.m. Friday are "The Emperor's Nightingale", "The Santa Claus Suit", and "The Great Toy Robbery". On July 5, at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., the Virginia Beach branch will show "The House that Jack Built", "Animals of the Desert", and "Casey at the Bat".

On Thursdays, the Windsor Woods branch will have story hours at 10:30 and 11:30 a.m. and the Virginia Beach branch will have the story hour at 10 a.m. Bayside and Kempsville branches will have the story hours on Fridays at 10 and 11 a.m.

The Kempsville branch has a club for children seven to nine years old which meets at 2 p.m. on Thursday. The group will work with crafts while drawing on the library's literature to supplement and inform the children on various topics.

Two Play In Piano Audition

Donna Gafney and Greg Pawlowski, two local residents, entered the National Guild of Piano Teachers for the year 1972 and played a ten piece program. They both earned an excellent rating.

Donna is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Webster Gafney, Pump Station and will enter the eighth grade at Kellam High School in the fall. Greg is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Pawlowski, 3524 Virgilus Drive, Birchwood Gardens, and will be in the fifth grade at Malibu Elementary School in the fall.

Both Donna and Greg are pupils of Ida Patricia Davis, 4320 Lynnhaven Crescent, Thalia. Miss Davis is a new piano teacher with the National Guild of Piano Teachers in the Beach area. Miss Davis is a former pupil of Mrs. Blanche B. Schmoelle of Norfolk.

Dean's List

David Leonard Aurille, of the Beach, has been named to the Dean's List at Campbell College in North Carolina for the second semester.

The first submarine cable placed in Virginia Beach, by the C & P Telephone Company went under Linkhorn Bay last week. The 2,000 foot long cable is five inches in diameter, weighs 26 tons, is armor protected, and cost $23,000 according to Floyd Patrick, C & P's local manager. The cable will link the 32nd Street and Arctic Avenue communications center to the new Electronic Switching Center on Great Neck Road. After the cable was laid by the barge, it was water-jetted into a trench five feet below the Linkhorn Bay bed.

The Sun Salutes

Monday was a very special day at City Council. Former Mayor (still affectionately called 'His Honor') Frank Dusch ended 20 years of public service, 8 years as a councilman, 12 years as mayor. To make the occasion even more special, former governor Mills Godwin, (left) was on hand to present a certificate of appreciation to

Commends Sun For Truth

I would like to commend the SUN and writer Helen Crist for presenting the "other side" of the previously untold true story—of the patriotic men of the AMERICA. (Your June 22nd edition) Thank heavens there is an alternative to the biased news management as presented in the conglomerate-owned Norfolk newspapers.

The news media did indeed give disproportionate coverage to thirty one trouble-makers who caused considerable needless concern, and expense to the responsible citizens of our country while completely misrepresenting the positions of all but a handful of the 5,000 men aboard the carrier AMERICA who voluntarily serve their country because of their faith in the American way of life.

I am sure that I speak for many other proud citizens when I express my admiration for the navy wives who displayed their own courage by telling an apparently unpopular story—one which was rejected by the liberal-bent Norfolk news media—and risking continued harassment from that tragically irresponsible element which infests our society.

As a true believer in America, I wholeheartedly endorse the decisions made in the best interests of our country by our democratically elected President and enthusiastically support the men and women of our armed services. I pray constantly for a prompt end to the need for this and other wars and for the safe return of those men callously held prisoner by an, immoral and ruthless enemy.

Again, I thank the wives, Mrs. Crist and the SUN for presenting the truth in Virginia Beach. Sincerely,
Mary Barraco

LETTERS ARE WELCOME

The Virginia Beach Sun management believes that a newspaper should be the voice of the people. The only way they can be heard, however, is through the Letters to the Editor. The Sun encourages and welcomes letters from its readers and asks only that they be reasonably brief and to the point and that they be in good taste. Please mail your letters to the Virginia Beach Sun, 138 Rosemont Road, Virginia Beach, Va. 23452, we look forward to hearing from you.

D. C. CURRENT BY CYRENE DEAR

Two very different services were conducted in the National Cathedral and at St. Stephen and the Incarnate, both Episcopal, on Father's Day June 18th. The Very Reverend Francis B. Sayre, Jr., Dean of the Cathedral, (grandson of the late President Woodrow Wilson) in his sermon talked about the temple of God living in the heart of man. He also referred to the architect, the masons and the thousands of workmen who have and still are building this great and beautiful Cathedral to the glory of God.

A few blocks away The Rev. William A. Wendt announced, "We tried to get Gloria for Mother's Day and we couldn't so we got her for Father's Day," so it was Woman's Lib leader Mrs. Gloria Steinem, assisted by her colleague Ms. Margaret Sloan, who spoke from his pulpit. The musical accompaniment was on records from Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin and others. Both women had little to say about God and the family, but emphasized that liberation of women would also liberate men. According to reports, there were giggles as well as frowns in the congregation.

In the tiny Lourdes chapel of the gigantic Shrine for the Immaculate Conception, two devout women have been conducting a Perpetual Rosary for Peace every Sunday of nearly five years. Their chants are not those of most war protesters but are solemn in consecrated prayer. They have a small band of regular followers and are often joined by tourists who come to visit the famous Shrine.

Senator and Mrs. Mark Hatfield (R-Ore.) are noted for their non-alcoholic punch and excellent food when they give a party. Mrs. Hatfield is the author of two cookbooks and the Senator often assists her in serving their guests. At a recent party the headlines were other fruit punch drinkers, Cabinet member George W. Romney and his wife (both Mormons) and Senator Charles Percy, Christian Scientist.

Abigail McCarthy, the estranged wife of former Senator Eugene McCarthy (R-Minn.) has not only written a very personal book called Private Faces, Public Places but is her own best saleswoman. She doesn't even look like her former self. She used to be a conservatively dressed congresswoman with dark hair. Now she is a redhead with bouffant coiffure wearing bright colors. She talks like a Woman's Libber while on other platforms the former Senator reads his poetry.

Summer schedules at Kennedy Center offer pop and jazz concerts at reduced prices. The National Symphony had a night in Vienna which included such Strauss favorites as Blue Danube and Emperor's Waltzes, Mozart's Marriage of Figaro overture, and many other familiar tunes.

The Shaw Festival will be on for two weeks at the Center, opening with the playwright's comedy Misalliance June 26.

Wolf Trap Park Farm near Dulles Airport (the only National Park for the Performing Arts, under the Dept. of the Interior) is featuring the Ukrainian Dance Company with colorful costumes, folk dances and plenty of noise. For all Wolf Trap performances one can sit in the sheltered auditorium or bring a box supper and sit on the lawn or bring a chair. There will be opera, drama and other special events for the tourists and natives throughout the summer.

There is free entertainment in the city parks with Shakespeare on the Monument grounds and military bands on the Capitol steps and on the Potomac at Lincoln Memorial.

Astrology

By

Ray Williams

Licensed Astrologer; offices in the Tyler Bldg., Virginia Beach Blvd.

In past columns we have dealt with the possible uses of astrology in cases of marital compatibility and birth control. We have touched on its use as a character guide, its possible application in guiding one to successful investments, especially in relationship to the stock market, and also mentioned the Moon's role in emotional problems. We have quoted Dr. Carl G. Jung who, along with Freud and Adler, is considered one of the founders of "modern" psychiatry. We stated the findings of Dr. Leiber, of the Miami University Medical School. We also mentioned the work done by Dr. Dobyns and the late John J. O'Neill. So far we have been quite general in our discussion of the work done by these scientists and will deal with their findings in more detail, in future columns. For the present we are attempting to give the reader a broad picture of the interest science has shown in astrology, in the past twenty years.

In the October, 1971 edition of Today's Health, there is an article entitled "How The Heavens Influence Our Lives". The article begins by stating that science, "against its will" may be giving aid and comfort to astrologers, and others, by its studies into the earth's magnetic fields. Very early in the article the author states "Studies by scientists of international reputation are revealing more and more ways in which all life is affected by the earth's pervasive electromagnetic fields which are themselves altered by the sun and moon. The inhabitants of the earth can thus be said to be guided in some ways by geomagnetic signals controlled by heavenly bodies. There is already some evidence that humans may be affected by magnetic field variations."

Later the author continues "More recently, scientists all over the world have published a wide variety of studies showing how animal behavior is affected by geomagnetic forces and indirectly by the sun and moon. A renowned worker in this field is Frank A. Brown, Morrison Professor of Biology at Northwestern University. He has published a large body of work over the last fifteen years showing conclusively that plants and animals are capable of responding directly or indirectly to changes wrought by the sun and moon on the earth's magnetic atmosphere."

Later, quoting the work of Michel Gauquelin, on the affect of "rising" planets in relationship to the occupation of over 25,000 men, the author continues: "His conclusion (Gauquelin's) was that there was indeed a close correlation between the planet on the rise or at its zenith at the time of birth and the future occupations of great men. Different occupations were clustered around certain planets: Mars and Saturn for doctors, Jupiter for actors and the moon for writers, for example. (The moon is considered a planet in this context.)"

All of this does not come as a surprise to anyone who has seriously studied astrology. The only surprise, and disappointment I might add, is that new names are being invented to cover the effects of the planets on man. What has been called astrology for over five thousand years, (at least) is now being called "biomagnetics."

The author of this very interesting article goes on to state his belief that "As biomagnetics matures, it seems likely that one of the central assumptions of astrology—that man is the center of the universe—will again make sense."

Later the author suggests that "Perhaps within the next decade or two astrology will yield gracefully to biomagnetics." If I may be forgiven a seeming impertinence, I must state that I doubt that very seriously! Astrology has been what it is for thousands of years. It has been a guiding force in the lives of many people for so long that its origin has been lost in antiquity. One thing is certain, however. The builders of the pyramids had a thorough understanding of the workings of astrology. Although the exact date of the construction of these magnificent architectural wonders is not agreed upon, it is generally conceded to be more than five thousand years ago.

There is an overwhelming amount of evidence to indicate that instead of astrology yielding to biomagnetics, the scientists who have coined this new word to "cover" their research into this ancient science will eventually give it the acceptance that is quickly coming to acupuncture, long rejected as a form of quackery. Next week we will reproduce part of a column which I wrote for the Sun and was published September 3, 1970. It is an attempt to explain in a very limited space how the Sun, Moon and planets can affect us here on earth. Consider, if you will, my explanation. If you can accept that biomagnetics is a form of energy, you will see that I explained the workings of planetary influence just about the same way that the article in Today's Health did, but in much more detail.

Letters to the editor

Praises Article

To the Editor:

As a wife of a 22 year veteran of the Va. Beach Fire Department and a Fire Department Auxiliary member, I would like to thank you for the "Sun's" salutes to city firemen.

It's rewarding to hear someone bring to the attention of the public these men's untiring efforts. Your article was not written because of an outstanding deed, but for acts that they carry out almost every day.

Not many people know the feeling a wife or mother has when a fireman is called to a raging fire or when she is called to the hospital because of his injuries.

Thank you "Sun", you make it seem all worth while. Mrs. Robert H. Gray Kennedy Avenue

* Mind Your Money By Peter Weaver

Will the horse ever replace the car?

Maybe not. But, according to figures compiled by the American Horse Council, there are some 7.5 million horses now roaming yards, being rented out at stables or running around tracks. That's more horses than we had in the heyday before the gasoline engine took over.

For some new riders, it's all part of the back to nature movement—a pollution protest. For most parents, however, commuting with horses comes as a welcome, healthy hobby for their restless offspring.

Fortunately, you don't have to live on a ranch or be a millionaire to enjoy riding. An increasing number of children are learning on rented horses at rates of $5 or so a lesson. Some are even getting a free ride by working in a stable in exchange for the occasional use of a horse.

As a matter of fact, professional horsemen say it's bad for parents to buy a horse until the child has gained a thorough knowledge of how to ride and care for the animal.

The best way to get started is to visit your county agriculture extension office (listed under county government in the phone book). An extension agent can indicate the nearest 4-H Club where a child can join classes on how to care for and how to ride a horse.

There are now 256,000 children enrolled in 4-H horse and pony projects and their ranks are growing fast. Unlike the old days, 4-H clubs are not the exclusive fun of farm kids. City cousins are taking over. In Providence, R.I., for example, inner-city children are becoming rough-and-ready riders through an exchange program with suburban 4-H clubs.

At your county extension service, be sure to pick up the excellent booklet, "Horse Safety Guidelines," which contains all sorts of get-acquainted tips such as: "Pet a horse by first placing your hand on his shoulder and neck. Don't dab at the end of his nose."

You can also get the 4-H book, "Horses and Horsemanship," which gives hints on what to look for in buying a horse and gives such inside definitions as: "Floating—filling or rough, irregular teeth to give a smoother grinding surface."

Beginners don't need a lot of expensive equipment. With Western-style riding the most expensive item, the boots, cost around $20. For Eastern-style riding, "hard hat" is required for protection and some stables like riders to have jodhpur pants ($15) and jodhpur boots ($13).

A riding crop ($3) and grooming kit ($5), including brush, mane comb, hoof-pick, scraper, may come in handy later on. Those who eventually purchase a horse will need a saddle ($100 up) and bridle ($20 up).

When buying a horse, you definitely need the assistance of a veterinarian. Your county extension agent can suggest names. Veterinarians can, in turn, suggest names of reputable stables that sell the kind of horse you want.

When looking at a horse, make sure the person who will do the riding can handle the animal away from the barn. Work through a good, half-hour test ride. Then, when you've settled on the horse you want to buy, ask your vet to give the animal a thorough checkup.

"A competent practitioner," says Dr. Robert S. Mouser, director, Deepwood Veterinary Center (Virginia), "can determine the horse's age, can spot hidden disease or behavior problems and, in most cases, can suggest a fair price range." Fees run from $12 to $25.

For beginners, Dr. Mouser says, "look for a horse that's safe, friendly and willing—if necessary, you can give a little on looks and age."

Jail Response Remained Slim

Maybe the people in Virginia Beach are apathetic toward the City Jail situation. Maybe they were too involved in the outcome of the recent hearings in Richmond that they didn't bother to respond to the Sun Survey.

Whatever the case, response was "extremely light to the question, 'Should the City assume more responsibility for the operation of the City Jail?'" And only those who favored it responded.

Our next Survey question, because it directly effects all of us, will, we hope, generate a healthier picture of our concerned citizenry.

Postal rates are again scheduled to be increased, however there appears to be a possible alternative. A possibility exists that if the Saturday delivery of mail were discontinued, the Postal Service would save enough money to prevent an increase in mailing rates.

Most people look forward to the mail delivery each day, but how necessary is the Saturday delivery? Most "junk mail" arrives on Saturday. Most businesses are closed on Saturday and wait until Monday to pick up the weekend mail anyway.

Is the Saturday mail delivery important enough to justify a postal rate increase? Your response to the question, showing an interest and concern in the operation of services in Virginia Beach, may well influence the decision-makers in the United States Postal Service.

Would you be willing to drop Saturday postal delivery if it would prevent increase in postal rates?

THURSDAY, JUNE 29, 1972

Mrs. Berlyn West, Jr.

Maurica Denise Charles Weds Berlyn West, Jr.

Miss Maurica Denise Charles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice A. Charles of West Parkway, and Berlyn Grant West, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Berlyn Grant West, Sr., of Silina Drive, were married June 24 at 6 p.m. at Bayside Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Fletcher C. Hutcheson officiated.

Mr. Charles gave his daughter in marriage. Her gown was of white organza, with empire bodice, ribbon-laced Venice lace at the neck, waist, and tucked organza sleeves. The train was trimmed with bands of lace. A matching headpiece and elbow length veil framed her face. She carried white carnations in net with bridal ribbon streamers.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Peter H. Owens, sister of the bride, wore a gown of violet and white georgette.

Bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth T. Bloch, of Annapolis, and Miss Dawn Lorraine Harsh. Miss Carol Jean Charles, sister of the bride, and Miss Elizabeth A. West, sister of the groom, were junior bridesmaids. They wore orchid and white georgette gowns.

Dennis Albert Whitehead of the Beach was best man. Groomsmen were Christopher A. Adams, of Ft. Bragg, and Edward S. Harrison. Ushers were Peter H. Owens and Phillip S. Fletcher.

A reception was held in the social hall of the church. After a wedding trip to Nags Head, the couple will live at the Beach. In September, their residence will be Blacksburg, where Mr. West will enter VPI.

The bride is a graduate of Kellam High School. She is presently a student at Princess Anne Business College.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Kellam High School.

Mrs. Bruce Phelps, III

Strange Sisters Wed In Double Ceremony

Miss Janet Pauline Strange was married to Bruce Phelps, III, and Miss Shirley Joe Strange became the bride of Ronnie D. Wells in a double ceremony June 18 at 4 p.m. in the garden ceremony of their home on Bray Road. The Rev. Stanton Sizemore officiated.

The brides are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Strange. Mr. Phelps is the son of Mrs. James Primm, Charleston, West Virginia and Bruce Phelps of South Shore, Kentucky. Mr. Wells is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wells, of Paintsville, Kentucky.

Miss Janet Strange wore a white satin gown, trimmed with chantilly lace. The sleeves were puffed, the neckline high. Her veil was cathedral length. She carried a bouquet of mums centered with white roses.

Her matron of honor was Mrs. Norma Link of the Beach. Miss Suzie Fulgham of Louisiana was maid of honor.

The gown chosen by Miss Shirley Strange was of white satin and chantilly lace. The sleeves were puffed, the neckline low. A long train and finger tip length veil completed her outfit.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Kathy Wright, her sister, Miss Linda Layman of Waynesboro was maid of honor.

Mrs. Ronnie Wells

All four attendants wore blue flowered chiffon dresses, with large picture hats. They carried baskets of daisies.

Bridesmaids were Miss Pat Moody, Miss Mary Moore, Miss Debi Strange, Miss Paula Daniels and Miss Cathy Gobel. Their gowns were yellow chiffon. They wore picture hats and carried baskets of daisies.

Miss Stephanie Fifield was flower girl. Ring bearer was Wendall Fifield.

Mr. James Primm was best man for Mr. Phelps. Mr. Wells was best man for his son. Ushers were Alvin Mayo, John Link, Jay Van Hoose, Jay Cooper, Pete Kuhn, Tony Long, of Ashland, Kentucky and Richard Binder.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Phelps, III, will live in Norfolk. Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Wells will live in Virginia Beach.

Mrs. Richard B. Deal

Martha Ann Chevalier Weds Richard B. Deal

The marriage of Miss Martha Ann Chevalier, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Louis Chevalier, Jr. of Virginia Beach to Richard Brandt Deal, took place June 24 at 2 p.m. in Saint Nicholas Catholic Church. The Reverend Thomas Summers officiated.

Mr. Deal is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chetwood Deal of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and formerly of Virginia Beach.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her gown was of candlelight peau de sole with an empire waist of Alencon lace. The skirt was appliqued in lace and ended in a chapel train. She carried a cascade bouquet of daisies and roses.

Nance Paige Chevalier served as maid of honor for her sister. The bridesmaids were Jan Patricia Chevalier, sister of the bride, Miss Constance Eleanor Jones and Mrs. Nancy Harris German of Virginia Beach, and Miss Elizabeth Alice King of Clifton Forge, Virginia.

Mr. Deal served as his son's best man. Ushers were Stuart H. Deal, brother of the groom, Mark D. Chevalier, brother of the bride, Stuart T. French of Winston-Salem, and Westbrook J. Parker of Franklin, Virginia. Following the reception at the Harbour Room, the couple left for a trip to South Carolina. They will spend the summer at the Beach before returning to Winston-Salem in September, where Mr. Deal is a third year student at Wake Forest School of Law.

The bride is a graduate of Princess Anne High School and Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. The groom is a graduate of R. J. Reynolds High School in Winston-Salem and Hampden-Sydney College.

Hickman-Smith Vows Said

Mrs. James A. Smith

Connie Twiddy Attends Camp

Connie Twiddy of 1824 Streamline Drive was among 60 teenagers to attend the senior week of Crusader Youth Camp at the Pentecostal FWB Church,

Inc. in Dunn, North Carolina. The six-day camp, which closed last week, featured daily Biblical related classes, varied recreational activities and evening worship services.

The marriage of Miss Diane Fay Hickman and Ensign James Allen Smith, U.S.N., took place June 17 at 3 p.m. in Kempville Presbyterian Church. The Rev. David J. Anderson officiated. A reception was held at the church social hall.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Melvin Hickman. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles William Smith.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal gown of silk organza over taffeta in bridal white. Val lace woven with blue velvet ribbon enhanced the bodice, the wedding band collar and the cuffs of the modified bishop sleeves. The same lace formed an apron on the full skirt of the gown. The attached chapel length train fell at the back from a high-rise waistline. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion cascaded from a bonnet of lace which was trimmed with blue velvet ribbon and touched with seed pearls.

The maid of honor was Miss Patricia Nell Bailey of Suffolk. Bridesmaids were Miss Barbara Ann Powers of Portsmouth, Miss Diane Elizabeth Marshall, Miss Gayle Elaine Hickman and a junior bridesmaid, Miss Cheryl Anne Hickman of the Beach.

The honor attendant wore a gown of Wedgwood blue voils over taffeta. A similar style to that of the bridal gown, it featured white Val lace and blue velvet ribbon trim. The bridesmaids were matching gowns.

Mr. Smith was best man for his son. Ushers were Carroll Michael Brooks of Chesapeake, Richard Michael Hickman and Thomas Wayne Smith of the Beach.

The couple will live in Virginia Beach.

Mr. Vess gave his daughter in a marriage. Her gown was of white sheer organza and pseud'ange lace, with empire silhouette, bodice of lace and bishop sleeves. She carried pink and white rosebuds, centered with a white orchid.

Miss Phyllis Vess, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her gown was of empire silhouette, the bodice of white lace, the skirt of yellow organza. She wore a large white hat and carried a basket of mixed summer flowers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Amy Rummell, of Lynchburg; Miss Patsy Lester, of Glade Springs; Miss Debbie Painter, of Emory; Miss Cathy Jones, of Fries; Mrs. William Rice of Richmond; Miss Holly Cosby, of Manakin. Miss Debby Cosby, sister of the groom, was junior bridesmaid.

Mr. Cosby was best man for his son. Ushers were James Cardellicchio, of Short Hills, New Jersey; Danny Spruell, of Annsdale; Edward Cosby, Gary Cosby, brothers of the groom, of Manakin; William Rice and Matthew Johnson of Richmond. Junior usher was Samuel Vess, brother of the bride.

The couple left for a wedding trip to Florida. They will live in Springfield, Virginia.

The bride is a graduate of Kellam High School. She attended Radford College. At present she is a senior at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

'The Only Store In The World Established To Sell Exclusively' A Psychic's Remedies

By Helen Crist

Meet tall lean Tom Johnson, a North Carolinian—from Oxford, to be exact, who's manager of a most unique business—"the only store in the world established exclusively to sell remedies recommended by a psychic, Edgar Cayce."

It's the Heritage Store, Inc.; it's location, 204 22nd Street. And how is business? Booming, Tom says. "We fill on the average of 300 to 400 orders a month, and these literally find their way around the world."

Edgar Cayce, as is widely known, was the psychic who, while in a deep sleep, suggested treatment for illness of all manner, though he himself, when awake, had no knowledge of medicine. The library of the Association for Research and Enlightenment, Inc., at 67th Terrace contains some 9,000 psychic readings by Cayce which deal directly with recommended treatment of physical problems.

"The unique thing about Cayce's formulas," Johnson says, "is that they have almost no side effects if used according to directions, which is unusual in today's modern medicine."

Cayce had something to say about most of the diseases known to mankind. He recommended countless numbers of different preparations and items. "What we have done is take the ones he recommended over and over again for specific conditions and do research on them, because formulas often varied from individual to individual."

Johnson, himself, is a devotee of Cayce. With an A.B. degree in math from the University of North Carolina, he was working as a program computer in New Jersey when he first learned about Cayce.

He's a convert, so to speak, to Cayce's philosophy. "I read 'The Sleeping Prophet' and went crazy over it. I read all the other books and what Cayce said made sense to me."

He applied the psychic's remedy to himself as a test. "He gave certain eye exercises which he said would make osteopathic adjustment to eyes, head and neck, resulting in equalizing the pressure in the eye, and relieving eye strain."

At that time, Johnson was wearing glasses. His vision was 20-30 and 20-40. He used the eye exercises for one month. He misplaced his glasses, and couldn't get another pair for two or three weeks. He found, to his surprise, that he no longer needed glasses. "That was about five years ago, and I haven't worn them since."

But Johnson adds a word of caution: "I don't want to give the impression that these exercises will improve curvature of the lens because they will not do this, but they will often cure eyestrain and bring relief for sinus trouble, hearing difficulty and teeth problems."

Johnson said the health store really started back in the 30's as Cayce started giving more and more readings. "There was an organization called Health Home Remedies Co. They made quite a few preparations during the 30's and various people continued to make the remedies right up until the present."

"Most of the ingredients are based on herbs, oils, natural products, and substances from plants."

They make practically nothing at the store. All of the ingredients are made by two manufacturing chemists—one in Ohio and one at the Beach.

"Many of the things recommended are very unorthodox," Johnson says. The majority are orthodox however, in that conventional medicine accepts them as having some value. Some, will be researched more thoroughly until they're accepted more completely."

There is a circulating file, in medical and non-medical categories, available to ARE members and cooperating doctors. "The Osteopathic Physician," a publication for osteopaths, has published a price list and article on Cayce. "It is a growing phenomenon more and more doctors are getting interested in Cayce," Johnson says.

There are now some 300 medical doctors and osteopaths around the country who use his methods more or less, and some 500 chiropractors.

But one cannot go, for instance, to the Heritage Store and ask for a Cayce remedy. "We cannot tell anyone what Cayce said is good for this or that ailment. We can only refer them to the ARE, and the individual must be a member in order to get a list of doctors in the area who themselves are ARE members or who subscribe to Cayce's theories."

GENIAL TOM JOHNSON, manager of the Heritage Store, Inc., gives service with a smile as he takes an order from a customer.

Cayce's Formulas Prepared At Ingram Pharmacy Too

In Phoenix, Arizona, there are four medical doctors who use Cayce's remedies almost exclusively. And the big news is that a clinic will hopefully be established at the Beach within six months to a year, Johnson said.

He noted that there are only two doctors in the immediate area who use the psychics methods: one is a chiropractor, the other a bone specialist.

Are the remedies always successful? Tom Johnson leaned back in his chair and smiled. "Well, to paraphrase Lincoln, I'd say that not everything works for everybody all of the time, but most of the things work for most of the people most of the time."

He pulled from his files a stack of affidavits. Testimonials—some, for instance, for restoring gray hair to natural color.

Experts say... "after taking the tonic consistently for about a year, my hair is beginning to take on a beautiful auburn shade..." interesting side effect of the tonic is that my finger nails are stronger than they've been before..." "after one bottle of the tonic my gray streaks look like light brown hair."

Next week, we'll tell you of an interview with a man reportedly cured of a rare disease through the use of Cayce's remedy, after all other methods failed. The interview took place last week at the Marshall Motel.

DID YOU EVER HEAR of essence of wild ginseng, stomidine or black snake root extract? Vernon Honeycutt's been dealing with these and the like for 20 years at Ingram Pharmacy, where he's prepared Edgar Cayce's formulas for shipment around the country, just as the Heritage Store, Inc. does.

Garden Clubs Busy As Season Ends

New president of the Riverton Garden Club is Kay Cosgrove. Mrs. J. J. Schwartz installed her along with other officers at a luncheon recently at the Sheraton Inn, Military Circle.

Serving with Mrs. Cosgrove are Bernice Coogan, first vice president; Virginia Lassiter, second vice president; Pat Raymond, recording secretary; Alea Kats, corresponding secretary; Margaret Stewart, treasurer.

Gifts and words of appreciation were extended to the officers for this, the club's first official year.

The members said they will miss Bobbi Blum and Mary Vance Reiger, both of whom will be leaving the community. They thanked them for their contributions and dedicated devotion to the club.

Chairman of the luncheon was Diane Fitzgerald; co-chairman, Kay Cosgrove.

RED CARDINALS, perched on top of white chrysantheums and ivy, graced the tables when the Cardinal Garden Club of Birdneck Point held its luncheon and installation of officers at the Cavalier Golf and Yacht Club. Place cards and napkins were also in the cardinal motif.

Mrs. John M. Field conducted the installation. Mrs. John R. Anderson is the club's new president. Those serving with her are Mrs. C. Ray Striggs, first vice president; Mrs. Raymond G. Downing, second vice president; Mrs. James E. Knowles, recording secretary; Mrs. William F. Foley, corresponding secretary; Mrs.

Reeves E. Johnson, treasurer. Mrs. Charles M. Reed, outgoing president was given a Williamsburg flower print in appreciation of her untiring efforts on behalf of the club.

Mrs. Paul B. Maestas was hostess at her home for pre-luncheon refreshments. Mrs. Harold N. Webb was in charge of arrangements for the luncheon. She was assisted by Mrs. Robert L. Webb.

WHEN THE Lake Smith Terrace Garden Club gave annual awards recently to members, they chose to do it the fun way—with a cookout in the garden of Capt. and Mrs. B. W. Spore. Moreover, it gave the spouses a chance to prove that what they claim is true—"men are undoubtedly better cooks than women."

Of course this may not have set well with the women, some of whom are adjudged gourmet cooks, but it made for a happy social all around.

Mrs. Spore, Mrs. D. E. Aycock, Mrs. R. E. Babb, Mrs. R. L. Breedon, Mrs. Henry Dunks, Mrs. R. T. Erickson and Mrs. A.J. Given were hostesses.

A St. Francis of Assisi statue went to outgoing president, Mrs. A. J. Given, for placement in her garden.

Mrs. Jerry Tompkins is now president. Her first official duty was to introduce the new board.

A Bridal Shower

Mrs. Paul deWitt, (l) and Mrs. Frank DuBois are as anxious to see what's inside of the big gift box, as is Patricia Crist, for whom they gave a shower last week at Mrs. DuBois' home in Birdneck Point. Miss Crist will marry Lt. George Parsons July 15 at Eastern Shore Chapel.

BBSA Members Place In NNSA Regatta

Members of Virginia Beach's Broad Bay Sailing Association did well in last Sunday's Norfolk Naval Sailing Association's Eighth Annual Regatta. Nine members of the BBSA placed in the various classes in the regatta. Over 175 one-design boats took part in the competition on Willoughby Bay on a day marked by clear skies, mild winds, and relatively smooth water.

BBSA members swept all three places in the Shark class. Richard Johnson, in his Cat-N-Round, took first place. Peter Holmes finished second in his Predator, and Pete Hazelwood placed third in his Bottoms-Up.

Joey Sparks finished second in the Hobie class. Pete Bragg, in his Briar Rabbit, took third in the Thistle class. Stuart Fleming, in Pot Luck, finished third in his Windmill class boat. Cliff Church took third in the Sandshark class, and Tom Reise finished third in the Sunfish class. Phil Ransome was the Demonstrator to a second place finish in the 470 class.

Twelve different sailing clubs were represented in the regatta. Besides the Broad Bay Sailing Association, competing for the Navy trophies were club members from the Cruising Club of Virginia, Old Point Comfort Yacht Club, North American Yacht Racing Union, Hampton Yacht Club, Fishing Bay Yacht Club, Norfolk Naval Sailing Association (host), Warwick River Yacht Club, Chesapeake Bay Yacht Racing Association, Peninsula Yacht Club, Norfolk Yacht Club, and Country Club, Langley Yacht Club. There were also a number of entrants that were not members of any yacht clubs or sailing associations.

Fourth Beach Basketball Camp Opens July 31st

The Fourth Annual Virginia Beach Basketball Camp will be held at the Star of the Sea Recreation Center, 16th Street and Pacific Avenue, from July 31st through August 4th. The one week camp will be divided into three sessions: elementary, junior high, and high school.

The elementary session will be held daily from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. It is designed for boys in grades three through seven. Boys in grades eight and nine will attend the junior high session between 2 and 4 p.m. daily. The high school session, for boys in grades ten through twelve, will be held daily between 6 and 8 p.m.

Camp director Leo Anthony will head the camp's staff. Coach Anthony is head basketball coach at Princess Anne High School. Three other head coaches in local high schools will serve as co-directors, Conrad Parker of Bayside, Pat Richards of First Colonial, and Phil Williams of Cox.

The instructional staff is still being developed, and Coach Anthony says that he is expecting some outstanding collegiate coaches and players. Several professional players may also be on hand. Last year, the camp was highlighted by Tom McMillen, the University of Maryland player who was honored as the Most Valuable Player in the NIT tournament, and McMillen is expected back if he does not play on the Olympic team. Coach Anthony will release the staff as soon as positions are filled.

To apply to the Fourth Annual Virginia Beach Basketball Camp, write the camp at 916 Queen Elizabeth Drive, Virginia Beach, Virginia, 23462, or call 466-4268 or 422-7384.

Curtis Strange Finishes Fifth In VPGA Open

Curtis Strange finished seventh in the Virginia PGA Open Golf Championship at Lake Wright last week. Shooting a 73-72-76-70-81, Curtis Strange led all Beach golfers in the event. His father, Tom Strange, won the event in 1967.

Curtis shot a 70 on the final day of the tourney Sunday, which was the best score of the day. His final four-round score of 291 was five strokes behind the winner, amateur Nelson Long Jr. of Hot Springs.

J.P. Leigh, of the Portsmouth City Park Course, was the top professional in the tourney. He finished second, one stroke behind Long. As the top professional, he took home the winner's purse of $1,000.

To Cougars

Kent Heintzelman will play for the Chesapeake College Cougars next year, according to Steve Stocks, Cougar baseball coach. Heintzelman, a former Kempville High School student, batted .325 for Campbell College in the Carolina Collegiate League last summer.

An infielder, Heintzelman has been twice an American Legion All-Star while playing for Post 304. As a junior at Kempville, he batted .375 and topped that as a senior with a .381 average.

The Tidewater Tides will be in town for five games this week, beginning tonight, Thursday, June 29th, and tomorrow night with the Peninsula team from across the pond. Then Richmond will be in Metro Park for three games on July 3rd, 4th, and 5th. Both teams are close rivals and should prove to be good competitors in the race for the state's best won-lost record.

Do you know who the two youngest managers ever to manage a major league baseball team are? Roger Peckinpaugh was the youngest manager ever when he was named to lead the New York Yankees in 1914 at the age of 23. The second youngest manager in major league history was Lou Boudreau, who at 24 was named to manage the Cleveland Indians in 1942.

Want to win a bet the next time you are in a conversation with a group of baseball buffs? Everyone has been to many baseball games and looked at home plate hundreds of times, but very few people can tell you whether the point of home plate faces the pitcher or the catcher. Do you know which way the point of home plate faces? It faces the catcher.

For an interesting weekend, try to slip up to Chincoteague. 90-minute interpreted land tours of the Chincoteague Wildlife Refuge are held on Saturdays and Sundays through August. The tour, followed by the Wildlife movie and the sunset cruise, is not only educational, but it is a most enjoyable event that will be discussed by your family's members long after the weekend has ended.

You only have about ten days left to win your silver trophy in the Norfolk-Virginia Beach Annual Bluefish Tournament. The two-city Chamber of Commerce sponsored contest ends July 9th. Open to everyone who pays the $2 entry fee, anglers can register and have their fish weighed at all local marinas. A 19 pound and 6 ounce blue won last year.

Kent Hollenbeck, a 6'4" guard from the University of Kentucky, was the fourth draft choice signed by the Virginia Squires. He has called Virginia Beach his home for two years, since it was two years ago that his father, Melvin Hollenbeck, took over as group manager of the Sears, Roebuck, and Company store at Pembroke Mall. Although he was not drafted until the eleventh round, he could be a sleeper. He was just hitting his stride when a groin injury caused him to miss the latter part of his senior season. The other three signees are Old Dominion's Dave Twardzik, a 6'1" guard, 6'7" forward William Franklin of Purdue, and 6'3" guard Mike Barr of Duquesne.

Basketball season is just three months away. Coach Al Bianchi of the Virginia Squires released the ABA exhibition schedule last week, and the highlight of the pre-season is the Squires-Boston Celtics exhibition at Scope on September 27th. Coached by Tim Heinsohn and general manager by Red Auerbach, the Celtics are perennial contenders in the NBA. A day earlier, the Squires will meet the Kansas City Kings in the Richmond Coliseum, and, on September 30th, the Buffalo Braves in the Hampton Roads Coliseum.

Players are needed to make up a softball team to play the Connecticut Travelers on Saturday night, July 15th, at Cox High School. Any resident, student, businessman, coach, or player is asked to call me, Jay Brumbley, at 466-3430 to sign-up for the team. All positions are open, and two games will be played, one at 7 and one at 8:30 p.m. If you want to have a lot of fun raise a few bucks for a good cause, dig up your glove and give me a call. Two or three practice sessions will be held before game time.

pike's educational clinic is being held tonight, Thursday June 29th, at Tidewater Community College, Fredrick Campus, in Portsmouth. Sponsored by the Federal Aviation Administration, Eastern Region, the free clinic will be held in Building T-350 between 7 and 10 p.m. A dramatic film of an actual prop accident and a film entitled "Safety by the Numbers" will be shown. Don Triceback, of NARCO Avionics, and Ed Gellately, a Richmond GADO accident prevention specialist, will speak. There will also be an inflight visibility and Barany Chair demonstration. There is no cost to participants, and everyone interested in aviation safety is invited.

Individual trophies will be awarded to the members of the winner and runner-up teams on both days. On Sunday, additional trophies will be awarded to the top military team and the most valuable player.

The first tournament of the season, a Two-Man Open, was held on June 11th. The winning team was made up of Joe Bena of Chappaqua, New York, and Walt Fleak of Virginia Beach. Dusan Madar and Carter Hall of Bethany, Delaware, were the runner-up team. Dusan Madar was a member of the 1964 Czech Olympic team that finished second in the Tokyo games.

The hot rod eliminator class was won by Portsmouth's Seasons Brothers, who drove their Corvette down the quarter-mile track in 11.66 seconds at a top speed of 122.3 miles per hour.

Ken Colson of Chesapeake won the showroom stock class in his Plymouth. His speed was 78 miles per hour in an elapsed time of 16.78 seconds.

Dragway Results

Alfred Cousins of Chesapeake, took top stock eliminator honors at Virginia Beach Dragway Saturday night. He drove his Camaro 96 miles per hour in an elapsed time of 12.96 seconds.

Connecticut Travelers Will Play 2-Charity Softball Games July 15th

The Connecticut Travelers will be in Virginia Beach on Saturday, July 15th, to play two softball games at Cox High School for charity. The Connecticut Travelers have become one of the most widely acclaimed teams in softball because they are one of the nation's most unusual teams.

THE Princess Anne High School golf team received words of commendation from the Virginia Beach City Council on Monday for winning the Virginia Scholastic Golf Championship. Members of the State Champion team are Alan Strange, Curtis Strange, Jay Williams, and Phil Stewart. A certificate of commendation will be given to each team member and to the school.

Portsmouth Bucs Open July 29th

The Portsmouth Bucs open their rookie camp July 29th, according to Emory L. Davis, the Bucs general manager. Davis said Tuesday that the rookie-camp will last for four days, and then the regular training camp will open July 10th, at 8 p.m. The Bucs will have less than three weeks to ready for their first exhibition game on July 29th with the Philadelphia Stealers.

The Bucs will play a fourteen game schedule in the Seaboard League, half of them home games in Frank D. Lawrence Stadium on Queen Street in Portsmouth. Davis said that they have priced tickets as low as possible, hoping to fill the 10,000 seat Lawrence Stadium for every home game. Season tickets are priced at $25. General admission tickets are $2.50 per game for adults, $1.25 for students, and $.75 for children under twelve. Call 993-2180 to reserve season tickets.

All home games will be played on Saturday nights, with kick-offs set for 8 p.m. Joining the Bucs in the Seaboard League are the Philadelphia Stealers, the Hartford Knights, the Chamberland Cardinals, the Pennsylvania Coal Crackers, the Hagerstown Bears, the Long Island Chiefs, and the Ridley Knights. Two games will be played with each team on a game home-game away basis.

Following the lone exhibition game with the Philadelphia Stealers, at home, on July 29th, the Bucs will open their regular season at home on August 5th against the Hartford Knights. The season will end on November 11th with the League Play-Off Championship at a site to be announced later.

"Businessmen with softball on their minds and gold in their hearts" was the label applied to the team in a magazine in Sports Illustrated writing in the eighth year of touring the country raising money for various charities. In the past seven years, it is estimated that they have traveled over 30,000 miles and have raised more than $25,000 for charity.

The Travelers are well known in twenty states east of the Mississippi River, having played for charity in that many different locations. They have played in Canada and, in the United States, as far north as Maine, as far west as Illinois, and as far south as North Carolina. One of their most famous upsets happened in Canton, North Carolina, where they beat the Canton team that was ranked among the top five fast-pitch teams in the country.

What makes the team so unusual is that the team is made up of Connecticut businessmen who take their vacations together each summer and make a two-week tour, playing charity softball games along the way. They take their wives and children along on the tour and pay their own expenses. Every dollar admission received at the gate where they play is donated to a local charity.

The 1972 edition of the Connecticut Travelers leave their home the second week in July on a playing-tour through Virginia and West Virginia. They have games scheduled in Covington, Petersburg, Virginia Beach, and Christiansburg in Virginia and in Princeton-Bluefield in West Virginia.

In each town, the Travelers play a doubleheader, usually one game under fast-pitch rules and one game under slow-pitch rules. They are not choosy about who they play and have taken on all comers just for the fun of the game. Yet, the Travelers have been winning at a 750 clip, pretty amazing since often the teams they play are local champions in various leagues. On their charity tours through 24 states, the Travelers have won 83, lost 31, and have had two games end in a tie.

Fifteen players will be coming to Virginia Beach with the Travelers. Bill (Cowboy) Duncan, who works for the United Illuminating Company in Milford, will handle the pitching chores. Roger Ghaoun, owner and operator of the New England Design Company in Stratford, will room centerfield. Richard (Walrus) Leskovsky, a salesman for the United Illuminating Company, will divide his duties between first base and catching. Stan Szarek, a welder with the Cornell Carr Company in Monroe, will play second base.

Jim (Little Guy) Varney, also employed by the United Illuminating Company, will room rightfield. Joe Dodaro, an engineer with the City of Bridgeport, will handle third base. Brian Bedford of

WE APPRECIATE THE OPPORTUNITY TO SERVE YOU
600 VIRGINIA BEACH BLVD. PHONE 428-4351

Have you ever been out for a pleasant ride in your boat when all of a sudden some aquatic hot-rodder thunders past you at a frightening speed and all but scares you overboard? If it hasn't happened in your presence, just wait—it will! More and more reports are coming in from every direction that a few thrill-seeking sailors are making pleasure boating unpleasant for many. And some of these actions are costing the law-abiding boatmen money for repairs as well as concern for their own safety.

Generally, most of those who "go to sea" are safety conscious people who know how to operate their boats safely—and do it. Even those who perhaps don't know as much as they should about boating are probably afraid to take chances on the water.

The problem, then, is the water cowboy. He is the one who lets out all stops. The one who casts all care to the wind. When he gets in his boat he becomes a speed demon. He operates his boat in a negligent manner endangering anyone or anything in his way. The water is his world. And he is of great concern to everyone else.

It is possible that a few of those boat drivers don't know what problems they are creating. It's more probable, however, that they don't care. The Coast Guard and other law enforcement agencies are continually directing their efforts toward getting this hot-rodder off the water. Efforts are continuing to be made trying to stop these illegal and unsafe acts which could spoil boating for many, many more. It's not only against the law, it could be dangerous to the health of all—especially the offender. And it could cost him money.

NEGLIGENT OPERATION
Negligent operation means lack of care under the circumstances; the failure to exercise that care which a responsible, careful, and prudent person would exercise under like circumstances; failure to exercise that care which circumstances justly demand. Negligent operation is sort of like breaking the Golden Rule; sort of like doing something which you would not like being done to you.

And then there's a term called "grossly negligent" which means absence of all care. Willful disregard for the safety of persons and property involving intentional conduct but not intentional harm. To constitute grossly negligent operation the operator must have known that his act created an unreasonable risk of harm, but he need not have intended actually to cause harm. It's sort of like breaking the Golden Rule intentionally.

Either negligent operation or grossly negligent operation is sufficient to constitute an offense. And an offense may have occurred even if there is no accident involved.

WHAT'S NEGLIGENT?

Some of the actions which may be so characterized are:

- Excessive speed in close proximity to other boats, such as near marinas, in narrow winding channels, or during periods of reduced visibility.
- Overloading of vessels clearly beyond safe loading capacity as evidenced by instability, little freeboard, shipping water from slight wakes of other vessels, etc.
- Operating while under the influence of intoxicants, drugs, etc. and recognizable by erratic operation.
- Certain unsafe water skiing practices such as towing water skiers in the vicinity of other vessels, where the skier feels he may be hit by other boats.
- Operating in the vicinity of dams when such areas are known to be hazardous.
- Operating within swimming areas where bathers are present.

HOW TO HELP?

It is obvious that the Coast Guard and the other law enforcement agencies do not have the resources to patrol all the waters all the time in order to prevent reckless or negligent operation. It is equally obvious that in order to be aware of such operations they have to depend on other sources, responsible safety minded boatmen. If all those who see unsafe operation would report same to the Coast Guard or to their local law enforcement agencies, hopefully much of it could be eliminated and the waters would be safer for all.

All law enforcement agencies cannot be listed here, but a good idea would be to learn the identity of the agency and the men responsible for enforcing the boating laws in your area. Get the number of your nearest Coast Guard unit. And be prepared to provide those agencies with the information they need to properly follow-up on your complaint. Remember, these agencies are there to serve you and to insure that you and your family will have a safe and pleasant boating experience.

DID YOU KNOW...

...that a penalty of $500 may be invoked by the U.S. Coast Guard upon the boatman who is found to be operating his boat in a negligent manner on the navigable waters of the United States. And that the Coast Guard District Commander may, in his discretion, refer the case to the Department of Justice for criminal prosecution on the charge of negligent operation with a penalty as much as $2,000 or imprisonment for as long as one year?

Make safe boating your "cruise-aid". Address any questions you may have to the writer at Commander, Fifth Coast Guard District (obs), Portsmouth, Virginia 23705.

John Grady Leaves P.A. For Tarboro

John Grady, Princess Anne High School's head football coach for the past five seasons, resigned last week and will leave the area immediately to accept the athletic directorship and the head football coaching position at Tarboro High School in Tarboro, North Carolina.

Grady had resigned his position as head football coach at the end of the 1971 season at Princess Anne. He had planned to remain at the school as a physical education instructor and as head cross country and track coach.

While at Princess Anne, Coach Grady led his 1967 team to a State championship. Many of the athletes on his teams have gone on to various colleges and universities, and their collegiate successes have reflected back on his program at Princess Anne.

The Tarboro position was too good to turn down. It is in the State's largest athletic conference, the 3-A group, and is in the home-state of Grady. Grady attended Kinston High School, and Tarboro faces Kinston in the 1972 season opener.

Ralph Gahagan, who is recognized as one of the top coaches in the State of Virginia largely due to his string of successes at Wilson High School, will take over as head football coach at Princess Anne this year. No successor has been named yet to replace Grady as head cross country and track coach, but Principal Richard Drake said that it will probably be someone currently on the Princess Anne staff since there are no other teaching positions open.

Piledrivers Heralded Across The Country But They Deserve More Support Locally.

By Jay Brumbley, Sports Editor

Many times, we have the tendency not to really appreciate great things that are right here in our own back yard. Or to put it another way, we too often take things for granted.

Take the Indian Lakes Piledrivers, for example. They are a great slowpitch softball team—in fact, they are the American Softball Association's National Champions. The best in the Nation is right here in Virginia Beach.

I have watched them play quite a few games on their field in Oceana. They have methodically disposed of just about every team they have faced locally.

On tour with the Piledrivers a week ago in Chattanooga, Tennessee, I saw for the first time what national softball competition is really like. Take my word for it. It is really tough. Every game is like the World Series in baseball—either team is capable of winning and a break here or there often decides the results.

One thing was really evident about the Piledrivers when they were on display with other top teams. Every Piledriver is capable of hitting the ball out of the park; every Piledriver is a solid hitter. Only a half dozen other teams have such a line-up. Most of the teams have only four or five players as capable as any of the Piledrivers.

In addition to playing great softball, they are a great bunch of guys. Often, the Chattanooga fans would yell "hot dog" at some of the players on various teams, but none of the Piledrivers received such a rebuke. In fact, the fans came to see the Piledrivers, to see how their local teams would fare against the National Champions.

The Piledrivers received great advance publicity in Chattanooga. They were the most talked about team there, since they were the first National Championship team ever to play in the South's top softball tournament—the 72-team double elimination marathon Pick-O-Dixie.

Wirt Gammon, sports writer for the Chattanooga Times, spoke highly of Piledrivers' H. T. Waller and Bert Smith. "Sluggo H. T. Waller of the Virginia Beach team is proclaimed by some as the best slowpitch softball player in the country. He enters the meet with 37 homers. However, he trails teammate Bert Smith, who has slammed 45 for the club which has won 46 of its first 52 games this season."

Buck Johnson, sports writer of the Chattanooga News-Free Press, reported, "Johnny Strickland, the smiling manager of the National Champion Indian Lakes team from Virginia Beach, brought the Piledrivers out of obscurity to the pinnacle of the slowpitch softball game by conquering Detroit in the National Finals at Parma, Ohio. Indian Lakes has the power. Four members, Bert Smith, the National Tournament's MVP, Johnny Dollar, Nick Sessoms, and Linwood Strickland, made the All-America team last year, and the heralded All-America slugger H. T. Waller is now with the team."

Johnson also said, "The attention of the multitude of softball fans here for the cream of the nation's slowpitch softball is focused on the heralded Indian Lakes Piledrivers."

The fans loved the Piledrivers. Of course, when they were playing a local team, the Chattanooga fans would root for their local favorites. But when the Piledrivers were playing an out of town team, the fans would root for the Piledrivers.

"They look like champions."
"They are the best looking ball club here, man for man."
"They are the team I came to see."

"All of those guys can sure hit that ball out of her."
These were some of the comments I overheard on the sidelines while the fans were talking about the Piledrivers. At 3 a.m. Sunday morning, a thousand Chattanooga softball enthusiasts were sitting in the stands and standing three to five deep all along the perimeter of the playing field to watch the Piledrivers face Warren Motors. Warren Motors, a real slugging powerhouse, had easily defeated a host of their local teams by lopsided scores. The fans wanted to see the two powerful teams meet. And see they did, even though the hour was early. They cheered every hit as the Piledrivers won 21-20. In Virginia Beach, I doubt if you could get a thousand fans up at 3 a.m. on a Sunday morning to watch anything.

Last year, the Piledrivers were without a sponsor. They were sweating funds to get to the National Championship game in Parma. This year, thanks to Don Wizegan, the Piledrivers are sponsored by Indian Lakes, a huge housing complex being developed near Kempsville. They are travelling to tournaments, allowing fans around the country to see the champs. In the process, Virginia Beach is reaping many benefits in publicity as the Piledrivers are publicized in many softball hotbeds across the country.

Sponsorship of such a team as the Piledrivers deserves commendation. It cost $3,600 alone to charter the Piedmont plane to Chattanooga. Then there are the uniforms, equipment, other tournaments, etc.

By next season, the Piledrivers will have a new home. They will have a tourney area with three fields, all covered with Astroturf. This will be one of the finest softball complexes in the country. With a complex such as this the Piledrivers will be able to host other top teams from around the country right here in Virginia Beach. This will give the local fans an opportunity to see the tremendous competitiveness of national softball play.

The Piledrivers deserve more support than they are getting locally. They are a great slowpitch softball team. Man for man, position for position, team for team, the Indian Lakes Piledrivers are better than the Tides. I am not saying the Piledrivers could beat the Tides in baseball. What I am saying is that the Piledrivers as a team and as individuals could do better in national softball competition than the Tides could do in national baseball competition with all the other teams in their top minor league class around the country.

The Piledrivers are playing tonight at Princess Anne Park. In fact, almost every Tuesday and Thursday night the Piledrivers are in action. Let us all get behind them and support our team the way National Champions deserve to be supported.

The City's interns look over a city planning map prior to the City Council meeting last Monday.

Beach Continues Intern Program

This month three young women and four young men begin work on new projects for the City as Virginia Beach Municipal Fellows for 1972. Five of the interns are in the program for the first time.

The Municipal Fellows program began in 1969 as an experimental project conducted by the Department of Personnel. That summer, only two interns participated, yet the city received its first Employee Handbook and its first formal Capital Assets Inventory.

The 1972 Virginia Beach Municipal Fellows are:

Kathleen A. Guion, 22, daughter of Cdr. & Mrs. Joseph E. Guion of Virginia Beach. She is returning for a second year as an intern and is serving as Program Coordinator. Kathy is also preparing a study on a Beneficial Suggestion Plan for the city. She is a 1972 graduate of Mercyhurst College (Erie, Pa.) with a B.A. in European History.

Helen E. Weems, 22, daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Wallace E. Weems of Norfolk, is also returning to the program from last year. She is a recent graduate of Guilford College where she obtained a B.A. in Political Science. Her project as outlined, will be to log the net acres of actual and potential development for military, industrial, commercial and residential development, as well as marshes, lakes, canals and waterways in Virginia Beach.

Linda K. Stone, 22, a recent graduate of William and Mary College with a B.A. in Government, has been assigned to the Department of Public Libraries. Linda is busy preparing a survey on library patronage at the various branches throughout the city. When completed her project will aid the department in providing the best possible service to patrons.

W. Dave Singletary, 27, a native of Norfolk where he resides with his wife Phyllis is a veteran of three years with the Army Corps of Engineers and is pursuing studies towards a B.S. in Engineering at ODU. Bill is documenting the location of water and sewer pipes in the Beach Borough for the Department of Public Utilities.

Elliott Light, 24, a native of northern Virginia, graduated from the University of Virginia in 1970 with a BSEE in Electronic Engineering. In the fall he will return to complete his studies at the UVA School of Law. Elliott is working with another intern on a Franchise for cable T.V. in the city.

Chris Taylor, III, 21, son of C. Aubrey Taylor of the Beach, is a recent graduate of the University of Richmond having obtained a B.A. in Political Science. Chris is also working on the cable T.V. project which will include a report on the benefits for the citizens and the city if such a franchise were granted.

Thomas M. Kampfmüller Jr., 20, son of Mr. & Mrs. Thomas M. Kampfmüller of Virginia Beach. Tom is attending Washington and Lee University and will obtain his degree in Mathematics in June 1973. He will be working on a project for Community Services which will include a pamphlet for developers on the procedures and forms which must be used in subdivisions, and also a computerization of records.

PLAY BALL!

WITH THE VIRGINIA BEACH SUN

ALL STARS

"ALL WE NEED IS A FEW GOOD MEN"

We're looking for a group of businessmen to play on our softball team, against the Connecticut Travelers, (a traveling team of businessmen).

Game Day: July 15, Saturday

All proceeds go to charity: Practice starts June 28, all positions open. Call Jay Brumbley, 486-3430. Come on out for fun with the Sun.

All money will be used to help the children of Virginia Beach in various sports and sporting activities.

Any resident of Virginia Beach wishing to play on one of the two teams being formed to play the Connecticut Travelers should call Jay Brumbley, sports editor of the Virginia Beach SUN, at 486-3430. There will be a few practice sessions between now and game time, and everyone will be given a chance to play and have a good time entertaining this traveling group of businessmen. It should be a lot of fun and a very rewarding experience in raising money to help the underprivileged youngsters of Virginia Beach.

Restrictions Now On Bike Rental Operations

A number of bicycle rental outlets presently operating along Atlantic Avenue, in the Beach Borough, are faced with being forced out of business as the result of action taken by City Council Monday.

This results from a revision of the city ordinance to include requiring a use permit, addition to a business license, to operate such outlets.

Those opposing the revision included William T. Ireland, who told Council he was recently refused a business license to operate a bicycle rental on the west side of Atlantic Avenue because he had not obtained a use permit.

Ireland told Council, "Some of these businesses now in operation are being operated outside the law. If one (referring to himself) must abide by the law, all should abide by the law."

To illustrate his point he cited a number of bicycle rentals reportedly being operated in conjunction with hotels and motels, which he claimed do not have the required use permits. Two of those faced with having to cease operations are Bill Reid and Mrs. Sandy Barker, both of whom are long time rental operators. Reid informed Council he was told he could not obtain a business license to operate his rental this year since he had not yet obtained a use permit.

Mrs. Barker indicated the same difficulty. She also told Council she knew of a number of rentals in operation on public property without the required license. As originally proposed to Council the revised ordinance would permit those in operation for the past two years to have ten days to obtain the use permit. Those in operation longer than two years would have to cease operations until regulations were met, as would those who initially opened such operations this year.

Discussion of the ordinance revision prompted Councilman J. Curtis Payne to suggest, "All violators should be removed immediately." On a motion from Payne, seconded by Councilman F. Reid Irvin, Council approved a revised revision of the ordinance which permits those operators who had a valid business license prior to June 1, 1971 to continue in operation and obtain a use permit within ten days, while all other operations must cease and equipment be removed within seven days. The ordinance also stipulates all operations must be located on private property and be completely fenced in.

Miss Saady Named 'Miss Holiday Inn'

Beth Saady, of Virginia Beach, has been given the honorary title of "Miss Holiday Inn" and will serve as advisor and hostess for five Holiday Inns in the Norfolk-Virginia Beach area. A resident of the Beach for several years, she studied business at the University of Alabama and Old Dominion.

Formerly with the agency for International Development of the U.S. State Department, Miss Saady's duties will range from sales promotion for banquets, conventions, wedding parties, and receptions to hostess and advisor of the same.

Registrars Will Come To Schools

E.E. Brickell, superintendent of the Virginia Beach schools, received the unanimous approval of the Virginia Beach Electoral Board recently to provide registrars in the high schools to register 18 year olds to vote.

Confirmation of the plan came from John H. James, Chairman of the Virginia Beach Electoral Board, who suggested further meetings with school officials to discuss the details. "We are now past our local elections for some little while," said Brickell and I do not feel that either the Electoral Board or the schools could be charged with partisanship in this effort. "With the advent of the right-to-vote for eighteen-year-olds has come an added responsibility for us, I believe, and that is to make every reasonable effort to provide opportunities for our young people to register to vote, and to encourage them to become involved, by voting, at least, in our political process."

New Courses Offered To Beach Students

Robert B. Eddy, principal of the Virginia Beach Vocational Technical Education Center, spoke recently at a meeting of the Virginia Beach Council of Social Services and discussed the opening of the Center scheduled for September.

Students in the city high schools will have first priority for placement in the center. If there are any vacancies remaining in any of these classes, then school drop-outs and adults will be accepted. There will be no fee for high school students, but a minimal fee will be charged for all others attending the Center.

The following courses will be offered to day students; accelerated stenography, accelerated typewriting, advanced clerical accounting, auto body repair, auto mechanics, automated data processing, carpentry and cabinetmaking, commercial art, cosmetology, drafting and design, and electricity.

Also to be offered are electronics, food services trades, home-making occupations, horticulture, machine tool trades, machine transcriptionist, masonry trades, plumbing and heating trades, practical nursing, welding, and refrigeration and air-conditioning.

Some of the classes will be available in night sessions also.
